CANINE FOIBLES

AUCKLAND, N. Z. (CP) — A woman entered a grocery store, asked for chocolate biscuits and refused all shown her because "my dog won't eat them unless the chocolate is on the outside." In a jewelry store another paid £4 for earrings because her dog's ears "do stick up so."

Island Folk Of St. Helena Turn To Canada In Crisis

MONTREAL, (CP) — A tiny British island colony in the south Atlantic—famed as the death place of Napoleon—is up against one of the most severe crises in its long history. The 3,000 inhabitants of St. Helena are looking to Canadians for a boost that will help them survive the depression threatening the island's economy. R. A. Thorpe, the island's only industrialist, was here recently to attend the Commonwealth Chamber of Commerce conference and to drum up business for St. Helena's only export: hand-made lace. "The island's population is having a hard time," he said in an interview. "There is practically no prospect for the future, except the one possibility I came to explore here—and that is a market for the lace our womenfolk make."

Isolated Spot

St. Helena, off the main shipping lanes about 1,500 miles northwest of Capetown, has changed little since the time more than a century ago when Napoleon, his armies crushed at Waterloo, landed there to start the 19-year exile which ended with his death. Mr. Thorpe, who bears a resemblance to Sir Winston Churchill, owns eight flax mills on St. Helena, practically the only source of employment for the islanders. But six of the mills are closed down and the others are likely to shut soon. Cause of the distress is the exhaustion of the plantations and unprofitable production. Only other employment is in upkeep of the island's 100 miles or so of roads.

Roads Out

"The British colonial office had all the roads tarred last year," Mr. Thorpe said. "That job is finished and maintenance is a simple task because of St. Helena's good climate." The lace work of the St. Helenian women is famous for its light delicacy. It is done on centuries-old patterns, many of them brought to the island by the first settlers—slaves who tilled plantations of the Dutch East India Company, and later the British East India Company, in the 17th century. Napoleon's home, Longwood, which the British government conceded to France as French territory, is being repaired and restored to be exactly as it was when the "Little Corporal" died there in 1841. Mr. Thorpe himself has the original post-mortem document made out after Napoleon's death. It indicates he died of cancer.

Cancer Death Rate Could Be Halved

TORONTO, (CP) — Kansas City osteopath L. Raymond Hall says about 225,000 people will die from cancer in the United States this year half of them needlessly. He told the American Osteopathic Association's annual convention here Wednesday that the cancer death rate could be halved if all doctors used present-day methods of diagnosis and if people consulted their doctors in time. In an interview, Mr. Hall said many older doctors were too pessimistic about cancer. This pessimism affects the patient, whose outlook influences the success of his treatment, he said. "Before cancer had spread too far it can be completely removed by surgery. More surgery is needed even radical surgery which may leave the patient crippled." Mr. Hall added: "We cannot produce incontrovertible evidence, but we are sure do think that smoking causes lung cancer." (CP)—Cherry sales for this district brought a total of $26,196 for 568 acres, an average price of $44 an acre. SITTINGBOURNE, Kent, Eng., acre.
