Anxiety Over

No Cause For Alarm

The crowd before the palace gate was not sure whether the announcements were good news or bad. A London specialist, however, said he was convinced there was no cause for alarm. "After every major operation such as the King has had," the specialist explained, "it is the usual thing to wait for a period of about 10 days to make sure there are no immediate complications."

Princess Elizabeth and the Duke drove to the palace this evening. Conservative leader Winston Churchill went there during the afternoon.

The King's doctors have never said what his ailment was, nor have they announced whether they removed all or part of the lung. Surgeon Price-Thomas said in a medical paper written before the operation that the removal of a lung was often followed by a second operation for the removal of several ribs so contraction of the body's surface might fill the gap the diseased tissue had occupied.

If only part of the King's lung was removed, the possibility of such a second operation presumably would be considerably lessened. The King obviously faces a long convalescence and there has been much speculation whether he will be able to resume his full load of official duties.

His projected tour of Australia and New Zealand next year with Queen Elizabeth and Princess Margaret is in doubt at present. Today Sir Norman Watkin, court official who is arranging details of the royal visit, was ordered to fly home to London from Australia.

Despite the postponement of their tour, Princess Elizabeth and the Duke expressed hope they would be able to visit Washington.

Rosart, assistant to the Belgian delegation of the Production Board to N.A.T.O., Major Edouard De Vlieg De Comptich, military and air attaché to Canada; Wing Commander E. Emond, Canadian military liaison aide and Major J. A. R. Gagnon, Canadian military liaison aide.

Speakers Warmly

definite future.

"The dairy cow is gaining in popularity," he said, "and with the hoped-for developments in produce shipment by air, and the fact that within ten years Nova Scotia will have to obtain outside sources of dairy products, dairy farming will be a very profitable branch of the agricultural industry here."

The dispersal of industry also came in for comment by the Premier, who said that it is a healthy trend. He anticipated that within five years several small industries will be established on the Island.

Other Speakers

Hon. C. C. Baker, Minister of Agriculture, complimented the Association officials on their magnificent achievements in the past few years, and on the "good, clean, friendly competition" which the match provides. With the addition of the handicraft exhibits, he said, the event is really an exhibition now, although plowing is still the basis of good farming and will continue to be the foundation on which successful farming is built. Mr. Baker endorsed the remarks of the Premier as to the importance of dairy farming, and advised the building up of dairy herds by farmers who are in a position to do so.

Referring to an article in The Guardian reporting on a plowing match held in the province in 1930, Mr. R. R. Bell, Provincial Conservative leader, compared the prize money and the cost of equipment at that time, and the prices prevailing now. "The question of farm credits is an important one to industry here, he added, and for future prosperity and to maintain the interest of the year people in farming we must have a progressive policy concerning capital and credit."

In a brief address, Hon. W. E. Darby, Attorney-General, said that this was his first visit to the match and he took the opportunity to add his congratulations to the officials and to express the hope that in the near future, Prince County would organize a similar show and that it would be the outstanding success that the Provincial Match had proved to be.

Other speakers were Mr. Charles Yeo, President of the P.E.I. Federation of Agriculture and Mr. W. A. Gaudet, honorary president of the Association.

Fine Handicraft Display

With a full programme of plowing in the morning and afternoon, the judging of nine classes of horses, highland dancing and step-dancing, and the senior sports all run off according to schedule, and all drawing a great deal of attention, one of the most popular exhibits was the display of handicrafts in the newly erected building on the grounds.

The attractive displays of fruit, flowers and homecraft drew many favourable comments, and in itself amply repaid a visit to the match, apart from the shelter the building offered against the unsettled weather.

NEW GLASGOW, N. S., Sept. 26.—(CP)—President L. A. Forsyth of Dominion Steel and Coal Corporation today announced a large expansion program for the company's Pictou County plants.

The plans include the extension of several shops at Eastern Car Company of nearby Trenton.

Wing Cmdr. Willis Guest Speaker At R.C.A.F. Ass'n

Wing Commander D. F. Willis, commanding officer of the R.C.A.F. station, Summerside, was the guest speaker last evening at the monthly meeting of the Summerside Wing of the R.C.A.F. Association held in their club rooms.

Wing Commander Willis in addressing the members chose as his topic "The Air Defence of Canada" and reviewed the problem of air defence of this country in the event of an attack and what is being done about it.

He reminded his audience that the things that we formerly accepted as invulnerable barriers such as the ocean, the ice can things that would set us aside from the air threat, no longer existed as barriers. They have been crossed by fighter air craft and so can be crossed by heavy bombers. He pointed out the fact that in present warfare one atom bomb carries the punch of several hundred bombers in the last war.

Wing Commander Willis outlined the various modern methods which Canada's air force has perfected to combat the threat of an atomic attack. He spoke of the growing strength of the R.C.A.F. which, he said, had doubled in the past year and which would double again in the coming year.

The meeting was presided over by the president of the Wing, Gregory Mulholland, and before the address of the guest speaker, reports of the various committees were received and passed.

The president asked that all members of the Wing make a special effort to turn out on Remembrance Day because, he said, it was most desirable that the Wing participate as a separate group on that occasion.

At the conclusion of the meeting a most enjoyable lunch was served by the members of the entertainment committee.—S
