Remembrance Day TO MOTHERS

O, Mothers everywhere today Who miss the happy smiling face Of that dear boy who nobly marched away, And left you weeping o'er his vacant place.

How many hours have you spent in prayer With pleading hands uplifted for that son who you prayed had fought the fight And glorious victory won—

Now in the silence of this holy hour When once again the bugles softly call You see the vision of an Angel son, Though from your eyes the bitter teardrops fall.

But O, today you can be glad and proud You had that brave young life to give, Be comforted—because of him Your country has a longer life to live.

Unveil War Memorial At Georgetown Today

"This afternoon Georgetown will once again, in common with the whole world, honor the dead who fell in the wars of the past as Remembrance Day ceremonies will be observed at 2:00 p.m. with the focal point being the new war memorial to be unveiled by the provincial president of the Canadian Legion, Comrade Earl Cannon of Summerside.

The beautiful new memorial, of Rock of Ages Barrie granite, the purchase and erection of which was sponsored by the Georgetown branch of the Canadian Legion, through contributions from veterans organizations of the town, the town of Georgetown, the citizens of Georgetown, various religious and non-religious organizations of the town and former residents of Georgetown, stands approximately eight feet in height, and is mounted on a granite base. On the face of the monument, close to the top, is a crown, which contains the rose, thistle, shamrock, fleur-de-lys, and Maple Leaf—representing England, Scotland, Ireland, France and Canada. Below is the inscription in honor of those who paid the supreme sacrifice in world wars one and two, and this inscription is the same as appeared on the bronze plaque, which was on the original monument erected in 1935. Below the inscription is an inverted sword (the sign of peace), with the names of the fallen of the 1914-18 war on one side, and those of the 1939-45 war on the other, with the dates above. Below is the inscription "Also in everlasting gratitude to those who, daring to die, survived." Below are the names appearing on the monument:

1914-18: Stephen F. Cherry, John P. Dalton, Martin P. Dalton, John W. Lavers, Temple W. MacDonald, M.C., Guy MacPhee, John V. MacPhee.

1939-45: Oliver J. Babineau, Newman J. Batchelder, Rudolph J. Fouchere, Walter X. Jamieson, James D. Keenan, Hugh A. MacDonald, Francis A. McEachern, Frederick W. Walker.

The parade will form at the Legion Home and will proceed through Main Street to the monument. Order of parade: Parade marshal, Comrade Lawrence S. Batchelder; standard bearer, Comrade Michael Burke, Jr.; veterans of world wars 1 and 2; Ladies' Auxiliary; Boy Scouts and Cubs, led by Scoutmaster D. A. MacCormack; Provincial Government representative, Mr. George E. Saville; Mayor of Georgetown, Andrew MacNeill; Town Council; clergy; school children; citizens.

Program at the unveiling ceremony at monument: "O Canada", by school children; address and unveiling of monument by Comrade Earl Cannon, provincial president of Canadian Legion; prayer of dedication.

Gives Views On Space Travel

BIRMINGHAM, Eng. (Reuters)—Space travel will be feasible by the end of the century if researchers will spend $840,000,000 over the next 20 years or so, says an inter-planetary enthusiast.

Valentine Cleaver, former chairman of the British Interplanetary Society, said all that is necessary is to spend the money and follow this timetable:

1. Send off by 1965 100-ton satellite rockets carrying instruments. He said 10 could be sent at a cost of $140,000,000.

2. Complete a man-carrying rocket to visit the moon by 1975, but not land there. Cost, $700,000,000.

3. Achieve full space travel by the end of the century, involving exploratory trips to other planets. Cleaver said research work by military authorities was bringing
