Liberals Disquieted.

LONDON, December 26.—The liberal leaders are disquieted because of the feeling exhibited among British non-conformists regarding the interference of the priests in the Kilkenny question. The ferment on the subject seems to be likely to prove greater than that excited by the conduct of Mr. Parnell. Mr. Gladstone himself is said to be alarmed by it and it is believed not improbable that the House of Commons will unseat Sir John Pope Hennessy on account of undue clerical influence. A despatch from Rome says that the purpose of the Vatican is to use the leverage of clerical influence in Ireland to compel the British Government to extend a diplomatic recognition to the Holy See, and that the Pope is earnestly desirous of securing such recognition as a further step towards promoting the restoration of the temporal powers. For this reason the Pope is well satisfied with the existing situation in Ireland.

Archbishop Walsh Speaks.

LONDON, Dec. 29.—While passing through Dublin from Kilkenny, the World correspondent called on Archbishop Walsh and asked him to say something to Irish Catholics in America about the attitude of the clergy in this campaign. "I should be glad to do so," said the Archbishop, "but there are vital reasons why I should remain silent until all possibility of any settlement between Parnell and O'Brien is ended. I am led to believe that some settlement is possible. You cannot judge Parnell's action in this matter as you would judge other men placed in similar circumstances. Parnell does not do things as other men do. Take, for instance, the forged letters published in the Times. I had ample knowledge of Parnell's innocence in that case because of communications made to me by Piggot, yet Parnell allowed himself to be thought guilty rather than prosecute the Times for libel. In the end he came out clean, and proved the wisdom of his long silence; so it may be in this case. I cannot believe Parnell would have said what he did in his Dublin speech if there was not another side to that wretched divorce story. Parnell has almost challenged the Queen's proctor to take notice of the case, which I believe he will do. Perhaps Parnell may confide to O'Brien exactly what he has in reserve. He is a curious man with curious methods. I can say positively that our church will support no settlement with Parnell which does not fully maintain our moral position. Under no other circumstances will our bishop's address ever come up for consideration again.'

This expression from a man so prominent in the nationalist cause as Dr. Walsh is important. It suggests that Parnell has some chance of winning back the support of the Catholic church. If so he could sweep the political enemies in his own party from the field. It was nothing but the powerful influence of the clergy that defeated Parnell in Kilkenny. That election was decided without any reference to the main point at issue. The people simply voted as their priests told them to. No one knows better than Parnell the utter hopelessness of carrying on the fight unless he can get the clergy on his side again.

Newsy Briefs.

Stanley lectures in Montreal Jan. 10th. Subject: "How I found Emin."

Spurious Koch lymph is being manufactured in Berlin and sold to foreign physicians.

Arrangements have been made between the two Irish factions by which the League funds can be paid out to evicted tenants.

There is a movement on foot in Montreal to induce Mr. Ouimet, Speaker of the House of Commons, to run for the Mayorality.

A Washington correspondent says the frauds of the Consular agents in Canada are assuming larger dimensions than at first anticipated.

It is stated that the McCarthyites intend to prosecute Mr. Parnell for breaking into the office of United Ireland in Dublin some time since.

Mr. T. V. Powderly, General Master Workman, will lecture in Montreal on January 12, the anniversary of the founding of the Knights of Labor in that city.

The Government organ in Ottawa makes the novel proposal that as a settlement of the Behring Sea trouble, the territory of Alaska can be purchased from the United States.

Capt. O'Shea, having been advised that he cannot hope for success in an action for libel, has published a letter to disprove the truth of Timothy Healey's taunt that he bartered his wife's honor to gain a seat in parliament.

The seven patients who are under the Kock treatment in the Montreal general hospital are progressing satisfactorily, ane two of them who are suffering from lupus are showing decided signs of improvement.

The conviction of a pool-room proprietor in New York city has been quashed on appeal, and the decision is regarded as a victory for the pool-room men, who will again open their long closed establishments.

The movement among the Polish inhabitants of Posen, in the direction of founding Polish colonies in Brazil, is immensely increasing, and thousands are preparing to emigrate to that country. The police have arrested two Dutch emigration agents at Streina. The magistrates in Posen have issued a notice announcing that the North German Lloyds' Company will convey no more German subjects to Brazil.

A man named Simon has been arrested at Leschenitz, Silesia, where he owned a handsome villa and lived in great style, his neighbors supposing him to be a wealthy stock speculator. In Simon's villa evidence was secured which shows he was the head of a large secret society of robbers, having agents in London, Berlin, Altona, and Vienna. Simon's agent in Vienna was recently arrested as he was trying to sell bonds stolen from a passengor on the Paris-Brussels railroad. The arrest led to Simon's arrest, and may result in the capture of the rest of the gang.

K. D. C. What is it?

The Saloon and Politics.

The Hon. William Windom, Secretary of the Treasury, says: "The saloon has bodily entered politics, and it has come to stay until vanquished or victorious."

Briefly stated, the question is: Shall the liquor power, with its dire and deadly influence, rule and ruin, or shall it be stroyed?

The time has come when this issue must be met. Political parties can no longer dodge it, if they would. Private citizens must take sides openly for or against the saloon, with its methods and its results. "Neutrality is henceforth impossible; indifference is henceforth a betrayal of the trust involved in citizenship."

To sanction liquor dealers—the instigators and authors of the worst crimes and outrages upon the community—with official authority is not only bad sense, bad law, but bad morals. This sanction and toleration of a business which, while deadening the faculties, inflames the passions and incites to crime, is the very acme of human depravity. This outrage, of all others, should not fail to meet the indignant condemnation of all conscientious minds; it should also be denounced by all good citizens as a shame and disgrace to our civilization. All aiders and abetters of this nefarious business of liquor selling, either through sympathy or silence, should be made to bear their share of the odium they so richly deserve.

Poisoned Candy Again.

ST. JOHN, Dec. 30.—Another case of wholesale poisoning comes to light under peculiar circumstances. Your correspondent visited Patrick street last night where a number of Scotch gypsies live. In this locality resides Hugh Stewart, his wife and family of nine in a little upstairs flat, the kitchen of which answers almost every requirement. The family, eleven of them, were gathered, strewed about in every direction and basking in a temperature of eighty in the shade. It was a jolly family gathering, however, and the more so because four of them had recently gone through the experience of poisoning and had recovered. On Friday night last a veiled woman gave one of the boys a package of candy. This was taken into the house and immediately opened, the mother, the eldest daughter, a small girl and a smaller boy partaking sparingly of the contents. In a moment the four were taken violently ill and only by the free use of emetics were their systems cleared of the poisonous mixture. The eldest girl's illness, which was dizziness, faintness and nausea, was more serious than that of the others, but she finally recovered. The father was hastily summoned and after the recovery of his family he burned the rest of the candy, and it is not known what poisonous element was mixed with it nor can that be ascertained. The identity of the woman who gave it to the boy is not either, but steps will probably be taken to discover her.

Hunger in Oklahoma.

TOPEKA, Kan., Dec. 29.—When the thousands of settlers were camped along the southern border of Kansas anxiously awaiting the president's proclamation opening Oklahama to settlement, they did not dream of want and suffering which were so soon to overtake them in their promised land. The grand rush in there was inspired by a desire to get into paradise. The opening of the territory was so late that no crops could be be planted that year. In 1889 nothing was raised in the way of food for stock or settlers, and everything consumed had to be shipped in from the surrounding states. During the fall and summer a year ago, thousands of acres were prepared for this year's crops, miles of prairie land being turned over for the first time, and last spring all were hopeful of a fruitful harvest.

Until June 15 prospects were flattering, but soon the hot winds from the barren plains on the south swept over the country, withering and blighting every vestige of green. The pioneers had starvation staring them in the face. The congressional appropriation was soon exhausted, and now that winter is here the people of Oklahama are in a desperate condition.

Suffering is not confined to the rural district, but to thousands who are trying to live in the half dozen cities and towns. Many of these have come in from the country to get employment.

E. P. Greer, editor of the Winfield Courier, says: 'There are hundreds of men begging about the streets of Guthrie for work, willing to do anything to buy food for their hungry children.'

Unless immediate aid is furnished the people of that territory, many of whom are unable to get away, they will starve. Within the bounds of the territory are 40,000 persons, three fourths of whom are in need of proper food and clothing.
