Calls For Big Cut In Taxes Dim Outlook For Budget

By ALAN DONNELLY

OTTAWA (CP) — Chances of a balanced federal budget next fiscal year appear to be fading fast amid heavy pressures for major tax cuts.

The latest appeal for a "substantial reduction" in corporate and personal income taxes was put before Finance Minister Nowlan by the executive council of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce.

It repeated a similar tax-cut call made Wednesday by the Canadian Manufacturers' Association.

The chamber of commerce went even further than the CMA in advocating a budget deficit for the 1963-64 year as being "appropriate for the current economic situation."

The two organizations are the weightiest voices representing Canadian business which Mr. Nowlan will hear during his current spell of receiving public representations on his 1963-64 budget, expected soon.

Drafting of the government's blue book of estimates—its basic spending program for the new fiscal year starting April 1—was completed before Christmas. Informants said Mr. Nowlan was bearing down hard in an attempt to restrict spending increases.

Now he must decide on future tax policy, with the main question being whether or not he'll seek tax revenues high enough to cover outlays.

RECALL THRONE SPEECH

At the start of the present parliamentary session Sept. 27, the government declared in the throne speech:

"The objective of my ministers is a balanced budget."

But the throne speech didn't say when it would be balanced.

Study Of Chemical Tariffs Is Said Nearing Conclusion

By ALAN DONNELLY

OTTAWA (CP)—The end is finally in sight for the biggest, most complex job ever tackled by Canada's tariff board: Its tariff study of the chemicals industry.

Hearings next June will wind up a three-year review of the $1,440,000,000 industry.

The board's subsequent report is expected to provide the basis for a complete overhaul of an archaic tariff structure that was laid down in 1906 and has since been extended in patchwork fashion.

The fast-growing industry has not only outdated many of the chemical products listed in the 1906 tariff. It has also created a good number of new products since the tariff inquiry began in the spring of 1960.

At the start, board chairman Louis Audette estimated the study would take two years or more. When it concludes it will have run through 36 hearings, most of them week-long sessions. Some 120 days have been spent so far, with five more sessions to go.

PRODUCERS SPEAK

Main industry spokesman has been a tariff committee representing a group of the major chemical producers.

Donald F. Gray, a committee member, said in an interview that some manufacturers would "have liked to see the inquiry ended some time ago."

But he indicated that most of them have felt that the tariff board has taken the time necessary to make a thorough study of the complex, many-sided industry.

The tariff board has given no firm indication of its views on the main proposal of the industry committee, for a near-uniform tariff on chemical imports of 15 per cent for imports under the Commonwealth preference and 20 per cent for imports from other sources such as the United States.

SPECIFY EXCEPTIONS

At the outset, the committee specified some exceptions from this blanket rate. During hearings, other variations have been urged by individual companies. The committee plans to combine many of these proposals in a new, final package proposal.

Whatever the board decides about altering tariff rates, it appears virtually certain to propose a thorough reorganization of terminology and classifications of the tariff.

The industry has urged adoption of the so-called Brussels tariff nomenclature—a uniform international system of naming and grouping the thousands of individual chemicals and products for tariff purposes.

At the outset of board hearings, the industry committee estimated Canada's 1958 production of chemicals involved in the review at $805,000,000 with imports of some $275,000,000 and exports of $138,000,000.

It estimated that its proposed tariff rates would enable Canadian production of an additional $100,000,000, displacing that volume of imports.

APPEAL REFUSED

LONDON (AP)—The Appeal Court refused Monday to allow former civil servant Barbara Fell to appeal a two-year prison sentence given her for passing official secrets to her Yugoslav lover. She was convicted Dec. 7 on eight charges of communicating a document covered by the Official Secrets Act to a Yugoslav diplomat with whom she was having an affair.

The bidding:

Opening lead—king of spades.

Sylvia had only the vaguest notion of what constituted a finesse when she started to play at the club. Of course, there were other areas in the game of which she was equally ignorant, to start it mildly, but that did not stop her from playing in the expert game.

It would have been far more sensible for Sylvia to have confined her jousting to the lesser players in the club, but she was instilled from the start with a bulldog determination to master the game by playing with only the best players regardless of the cost.

You can form some idea of how Sylvia (South) played in those days by studying the bidding and play of this hand. The five diamond bid was clearly right in her view, since she had a good hand and saw no reason whatever to bid less than game. The fine dummy that came down she considered no more than her due.

West cashed the A-K of spades and shifted to the ten of hearts. Sylvia took it with the ace and promptly led the queen of clubs. Sylvia dimly remembered that there was such a thing as a finesse, and she reasoned that if West had the king, her queen would win the trick since she intended to play low from dummy.

However, West covered with the king and Sylvia had to win with the ace. Undaunted by this setback, Sylvia proceeded to make the hand anyhow.

She cashed all her trumps, retaining in dummy the K-Q-6 of hearts. On the last trump lead, East, who by this time was reduced to the J-8-7 of hearts and the jack of clubs, had to make a discard.

He could not spare a heart, so he discarded the jack of clubs. Sylvia was not quite sure whether her seven was the high club, but when she led it, the seven held the trick and she made five diamonds. Sylvia had executed one of the rarest and most difficult plays in bridge—the transfer squeeze.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.
