THE DAILY EXAMINER.

JANUARY 11, 1892.

Notes and Comments.

—The priests of Persia continue to interdict the use of tobacco with the view of compelling the abolition of the tobacco monopoly regarding exports as well as interior trade. There is a strong feeling about the matter.

—There will be a good deal of sympathy with the feelings of that Denver juryman in the Graves murder trial, who protested against scripture quotations in the address of the counsel for the defence and requested that he should confine himself to the law and facts of the case. The juryman who judges by the evidence is not moved by the extraneous talk introduced so often by counsel trying to draw attention from a weak defence, and the juryman whose mind is carried away by his sympathies is not fit for his duties.

—Here is the Walt Whitman picture of the polyglot American: "I like well our polyglot construction stamp, and the retention thereof, in the broad, the tolerating, the many-sided, the collective. All nations here—a home for every race on earth. British, German, Scandinavian, Spanish, French, Italian—papers published, plays acted, speeches made, in all languages—on our shores the crowning resultant of those distillations, decantations, compactions of humanity that have been going on, on trial, over the earth so long."

—The Royal Society of England has just been informed by Sir William Thompson that the axis of the earth is altering its direction. Berlin was some time ago discovered to be further north than it had been previously marked on the map. Geographical investigations at Honolulu prove that the Sandwich Islands have moved just about as far south as Berlin has moved north, so the eminent geographers decided that the axis of the earth must be changing its angle to the ecliptic. If the progression is very rapid, North America is likely to become somewhat tropical and the United States would lose its place in the temperate zone. The change is taking place so slowly, however, that nobody need get into any heat over it.

—The Toronto Globe realizes the collapse of the scandal cry, and throws up the sponge with a certain commendable measure of frankness. "The scandals," it says in a late issue, "exposed during the last session of parliament, rather than the trade question, was the main issue of the contest, but judging by North Lanark, these exposures do not seem to have seriously affected public opinion." In other words, says the Empire, the campaign of slander has proved ineffective for the third or fourth time in the history of our politics, and will have to be abandoned for some other. The organ realizes the utter failure of its attempt to blacken the characters of our leading public men, and now passes the word to the rank and file that a new and more captivating device must be discovered for climbing into office.

—The majority of Mr. Rosamond, M. P., in North Lanark is 432, against 301 for Mr. Jamieson last March. This sweeping victory for the Government is opening the eyes of a good many people to the silly vaporings of the Globe, and the tall talk of "totter" and "chaos." The Ottawa Journal (Independent) hits off the situation thus: "North Lanark is a pretty representative constituency in central Canada; that is, the section embracing the westernmost counties of Quebec, and the eastern part of Ontario. It is also significant that the Conservative gain has not been in Almonte, the manufacturing centre, but in the agricultural divisions. Apparently, in central Canada, whatever revulsion of feeling against the Conservative Administration was caused by the scandals of last session has disappeared, either because the voters are satisfied of the Government's good faith, or because they cannot stomach brother Farrer and the Globe."

—It is only a few years ago that what is known as the university extension movement began in England, on the idea that, as a great many people are unable to go to the universities, the universities must imitate Mohammed's mountain policy and go to the people With this end in view popular lectures were given in public halls by university specialists. The system has been steadily growing in America since 1887, the leading university in its introduction being that of Pennsylvania, in Philadelphia. It is now extending into the South, the University of Georgia, at Athens, having just announced that Chancellor Boggs and Professors Campbell, MacPherson, Bocock, Strahan and Morris will deliver at Atlanta courses of lectures on mental science, biology, Roman law and jurisprudence, the Greek drama, building materials and the English language and literature. Georgia has been one of the most progressive of Southern States in material development, and the enterprise of her fine university foundation is a sign that her intellectual development is likewise to be that of leadership.

THE NEW TOILET GEM.—Philoderma owes its immense success to the fact that it is radically different from any preparation in the market. It is a bland and soothing liquid, nicely perfumed, and when applied to the hands and face produces a delicious sense of coolness and comfort, exercising also a direct curative action. It is entirely free from the sticky quality of glycerine and the greasy nature of camphor ice or cold cream. To those who are unable to to use glycerine, from its irritating effect, Philoderma is a necessity. Those who use it have a beautiful complexion. It is harmless as milk. Sold by druggists everywhere. Price 25 cents.

A Vermont farmer picks the apple seeds from his cider presses and sells them for use in the manufacture of prussic acid. He gets about one bushel of seeds from 140 bushels of apples.

Scientific Miscellany.

THE ABORIGINAL AMERICANS.—The Amerrique Indians, who were visited not long ago by Mr. J. Crawford, State Geologist of Nicaragua, occupy a hilly region of the rich gold mining section of La Libertadt, Nicaragua. These Indians are 6 feet 6 inches to 6 feet 8 inches tall, active and apparently strong and healthy. They are dying out rapidly, however, and are now estimated to number not more than 275 or 300 individuals. They live in pathless forests, and their chief occupation is to tap certain trees for rubber, which they carry on their backs to traders 100 miles away. They have cleared some ground for corn, planting this in holes made with pointed sticks. A few lumps of melted gold are found among them, and it is inferred that the Indians of this locality mined and melted this metal before the discovery of Nicaragua by Columbus. They believe in a mighty prophet, who appeared in their territory in very ancient times, and whose form has been seen on a mountain top by some of the older Indians.

A HINT TO THE POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT.—A Jules Verne idea of communicating with other planets through the meteor currents of space is suggested by Miram M Stanley. If an object of human design be enclosed in a ball of iron and projected into some meteor shoal by the aid of modern explosives, it is regarded as not altogether impossible that the ball and its contents might reach some other world and be found by its inhabitants. An initial velocity of 7 miles a second would be required to project a body beyond the earth's attraction, and it is not too much to hope that this will soon be attainable. A projectile sent from the earth would have some astronomical interest even if it should fail to bring tidings from Mars.

A French experimenter has discovered that if a mixture of hydrocarbon vapors and air is led over a specially arranged platinum, the latter becomes heated almost to fusion, and will then remain luminous if suddenly plunged into water.

MILITARY PIGEONS.—Since the success of the carrier pigeon service during the seige of Paris in 1870 71, European governments have given considerable attention to the rearing and training of pigeons. In France, according to Lieut. Col. De Rochas, most of the fortresses now contain dove-cots, and 47 departments have private societies for pigeon-training, the total number of trained pigeons in the country being about 100,000, and Paris alone having 8,000 trained and 10,000 untrained pigeons. In Germany there are about 20 military pigeon stations, and in 1888 there were 78 private societies with 52,240 carrier pigeons. In Italy there are dove-cotes at 23 military stations. Spain has a very complete system of pigeon service, dove-cotes having been established at 18 stations, the greatest distance between any two designed to communicate directly being from Madrid to Malaga, 240 miles. In Portugal there are 14 stations; in Russia, 5 stations, that at Brest-Litowsk having 1,000 pigeons; in Switzerland, 4 stations; in Austria, 2 stations and several projected ones, considerable government encouragement given being also to private trainers Sweden has one station; Denmark, a private society in 12 sections; Belgium, many private trainers, with an estimated total of more than 60,000 pigeons, Holland has a regular pigeon postal service between Java and Sumatra; and England, a number of cotes in garrisoned cities.

FINGER AUTOGRAPHS OF IDIOTS.—Impressions of the finger-tips of idiots have been found by Dr. D'Abundo to show very different markings from those of sane people. In a number of idiots the markings on the tips of all the fingers on each hand were identical, and in one idiot the tips of the thumbs had the same markings as those of the fingers. There was a noticeable smoothness of the finger-tips in all the idiots.

Experiments by M. Homuzeseu have shown that when an electric current is passed continuously through a wire at a certain tension in the open air, the wire is caused to vibrate. The author supposes that the effect is produced by the passage of heat from the wire to the air.

A Trade for Boys.

If I had my way I would insist that every boy should learn a trde, writes Foster Coates in the January Ladies' Home Journal. It was so in the olden times, and it should be so now. The man who has a trade is a thousand times better equipped than the man who has none. Let every boy select the trade that best suits his ability, and promises the highest honors and remuneration. When he has mastered his trade, if he dislikes it, or it is not profitable, he can begin to study a profession, or enter upon a commercial life. If he should fail in both of these, he is still master of a good trade—something that no one can take from him, no matter what exigencies may arise. The man who is master of a good arade is as independent as a millionaire. He need never want; he can find profitable work in any corner of the world. I do not say one word against a professional career. But I do say emphatically that the man who has a trade and a profession as well, need have no fear of the future. The boy who wants to can master a trade between the years of six and wenty, and if he dislikes it, he still has time to study medicine, the law, or any other of the learned professions. But if he waits until he is twenty, or over, he may not have an opportunity or feel inclined to learn either.

FOR OVER FIFTY YEARS Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used by millions of mothers for their children while cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best-known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle. Be sure and ask for "Mrs. Winslow's Soothing syrup," and take no other kind. 1yr
