

Established 1823.

Charlotteville, Prince Edward Island, Saturday, January 4, 1854.

New Series, No. 100.

Hazard's Gazette. GEORGE T. HAZARD, Proprietor and Publisher. Published every Wednesday and Saturday morning.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING. For the first insertion, occupying the space of a line, including head, 2s.—6 lines, 2s.—9 lines, 3s.—12 lines, 4s.—20 lines, 6s.—30 lines, 9s.—40 lines, 12s.—50 lines, 15s.—60 lines, 18s.—70 lines, 21s.—80 lines, 24s.—90 lines, 27s.—100 lines, 30s.—For each additional line, 6d. per copy for each column.

THE MAILS for the neighboring Provinces, &c., will be forwarded on and after the 15th December instant via Cape Traverse and Cape Breton.

They will be made up on that day, and every following Friday, at 11 o'clock morning, and a mail for Halifax will be made up every week at the same time, and forwarded to Halifax.

THOMAS OWEN, Postmaster General. General Post Office, Dec. 5, 1853.

Georgetown Mails. THE MAILS for Georgetown will further Notice, will be made up on and forwarded every Monday and Friday morning at nine o'clock.

THOMAS OWEN, Postmaster General. May 2, 1853.

COMMISSARIAT. D. L. ANNESLEY, Esq., D. A. C. G. Commissariat, P. E. Island, Nov. 23rd, 1853.

THE LIBRARIAN. The Librarian begs leave to inform the Public, generally that he has commenced business as a Commission Merchant, Bookseller, and Stationer.

ARTHUR G. SIMMS. Catalogue advanced upon articles left for Auction.

Just published, and approved by the Board of Education. A NEW EDITION OF THE THIRD BOOK OF ARITHMETIC, revised and corrected to the use of the Schools in Prince Edward Island.

Just Published. The British North American GEOGRAPHICAL PRIMER.

Price with 7 Maps is 4s.; without Maps 1s. THIS PRIMER contains all the matter in Chambers's Geographical Primer, with the addition of the recent census, and of more full descriptions of North America. It contains also 50 maps, so arranged as to be equally useful to the teacher and the scholar.

The Subscriber, anticipating an extensive demand for School Books, is now receiving the Reading Books of the NATIONAL SERIES. Persons desirous of securing a copy, should purchase at GEORGE T. HAZARD'S Book Store.

Twelvevrees Brothers Soap Powder. (an entirely new invention.)

IS the best, most delicate, and most effectual article for all washing purposes, a packet of which will equal in value 100 lbs. of soap.

The saving of Time and Labour is astonishingly great, as a W.E.K.S. W.A.S.H. is to be established in every BREAKFAST-room—no rubbing being required.

This wonderful Article is MORE SWEET-EATED than any Soap, and is adapted for purposes for which Soap cannot be safely or effectually used.

It will not injure the hands, or the most delicate materials; but whilst it is incomparable for permanently whitening Linens, &c., after they have become discoloured by age, or injured by bad Washing, it is also unsurpassable for improving the complexion of the Face, and for softening the WOODS, COLORING PRINTS, MUSLIN and LACED LINENS.

GEORGE T. HAZARD, Queen's Square.

Twelvevrees Brothers' Useful and Economical Preparations.

THEIR British Furniture Cream, at 6d. Their Ineffable Furniture Polish, at 2d. Their Superior Hair Dressing, at 1s. Their Incomparable India Rubber Blacking, 1d. per packet.

Their Elegant Ball-shaped Glass Ink, filled, at 2s. Their Superior Glass Square Lids—Black, Blue, and Red, at 3d. each.

Their Celebrated Scented Hair Oil, and Pomade Regulator.

Their Corroded Garment and Carpet Renovator, at 1s. Sold, Wholesale and Retail, by G. T. HAZARD, Queen's Square.

THE PALMIST. JUST RECEIVED, at GEORGE T. HAZARD'S, the most authentic and complete edition of the British Wives of the Bible in the Baptist Church, Charlotteville.

BOAT PICKED UP on the 21st October 1853, between Big Minnigouss and Hereford. The owner has the same property and saying expenses, by applying to Big Minnigouss, Dec. 26th, 1853. LAW BOOKS. CITY on Pleading, Copy on Contracts, British & Commercial Digest, and Shipmaster's Assistant &c. &c. &c. by RICHARD MINNIS. HAZARD'S Book Store.

GLEASON'S PICTORIAL.

It will commence its 12th volume, and will appear weekly improved in all respects, with a superb new woodcut and colored vignette on every page printed upon the finest paper. As the proprietor of the Pictorial has purchased the entire will of Harass, No. 10, Fitzwilliam Street, and has secured that parcel in the Pictorial, the public will reap the advantage of this concentration of the strength of the two papers upon one, both in the artistic and the literary departments. The same liberal addition is also made to the corps both in talent and amount. The most liberal arrangements have been completed, and such as will enable the Proprietor to produce for the finest illustrated journal yet published, and much superior to the present issue of the Pictorial. The columns of the Pictorial will constantly be beautified by all that can please and instruct in art and nature, and its literary portions will sustain the high reputation it has so long enjoyed.

The pages of Gleason's Pictorial will contain views of every popular city in the known world, of all buildings of note in the eastern or western hemisphere, of all the principal ships and steamers of the navy and merchant service; with fine and accurate portraits of every noted character in the world, both male and female. Sketches of beautiful scenery, taken from life, will also be given, with numerous illustrations from the most celebrated artists of the air, and the fish of the sea, and will present in its mechanical execution an elegant specimen of art. It will contain full descriptions of every square, street, giving a great amount of reading matter and matter of interest—making it a mammoth weekly paper of sixteen octavo pages.

TERMS:—Three shillings per annum. Published every Saturday by GLEASON, Corner of Trenton and Broadfield Streets, Halifax.

Subscriptions received at G. T. Hazard's Book Store.

NEW PERFUMES, &c. U. S. Perfumery, East of the Hospital, at E. L. HEDDYMAN, Detroit's Fashionable Perfumery, Lower's Perfumery, France, and Genuine Kanon Perfumery.

HENDRIE'S MOILINE. For preserving the Beauty and Elasticity of the Hair, an excellent and most beneficial preparation. Its substance, most beneficial for promoting the growth of the hair, and giving it a soft, wavy, and glossy appearance.

EMOLIENT CAMPHOR SOAP. Has been long approved of, as a certain and agreeable remedy for chapped hands, and the injuries to the skin, caused by cold, and is delicate, however rough or red, is rendered soft and supple in a few days. This Cream contains no soap or alkaline ingredients.

ROWLANDS' KALYDO. For improving the complexion, and eradicating all cutaneous eruptions.

PEARL DENTIFRICE. Is the most important and effectual preparation for beautifying the Teeth. By its tonic and astringent properties, it cleanses the teeth, and preserves them in a sound and healthy condition.

ALL THE FAVORITE TOILET SOAPS. Prepared in the useful form of a Toilet without Soap, and in the form of a Toilet with Soap. Toilet, Nail, Hair, and Cold CREAMS in great variety, all with London.

Wm. R. WATSON, Reddin's New Building, Nov. 21st, 1853. Ad. & Is.

Temperance Hall Company. AT A MEETING of the Directors of the above Society, held on the 7th inst., the following Resolution was unanimously adopted:—Resolved, That the Treasurer (Mr. John Morrison) be instructed to take the necessary legal measures for the redemption of the bonds of the Temperance Hall Company.

To be Published by Subscription. IN TEN VOLUMES, printed from a new plan type, on superior paper, and elegantly bound in cloth. A new and splendid Library Edition of the POPULAR POETS AND POETRY OF BRITAIN, Edited, with Biographical and Critical Notices, by the Rev. GEORGE GILBERT, Author of "Gallery of Literary Portraits."

A volume to be published every alternate month, forming six volumes, averaging 320 pages each, to be sold at the rate of one shilling each. Annual Subscription, one Guinea. Will of the Rev. GEORGE T. HAZARD, where specimen numbers may be seen.

Halifax, 12th July, 1853. ARCHIBALD SCOTT, Esq. SIR, I beg to inform you that your PATENT ARTIFICIAL SLATE, The "Colony," is now ready for sale in New Brunswick, Newfoundland, and the various Islands of the Canadian and Nova Scotia. A volume to be published every alternate month, forming six volumes, averaging 320 pages each, to be sold at the rate of one shilling each.

Annual Subscription, one Guinea. Will of the Rev. GEORGE T. HAZARD, where specimen numbers may be seen.

I have the honor to be, Sir, Your obedient servant, W. ROSS, Patent and Manufacturer Halifax 14th July, 1853.

Ship—In answer of your "Artificial Slate Patent" on shingled Roof, as greatly diminishing the risk against Fire—has been especially received the premiums on the Country, upon its application.

I am, Sir, your Obedt. Servant, ARCHIBALD SCOTT, Insurance Agent.

John Ross, Esq. Halifax. A MAP OF P. E. ISLAND, COLOURED as to the different Districts, and for sale at Geo. T. HAZARD'S Book Store.

AFRICAN COLONIZATION.

This great scheme of philanthropy is taking strong hold of the affections of the American people. Three vessels have recently sailed for Africa, and the emigration of emigrants from our shores, two left the South, and one, lately from New York.

You have doubtless read Bishop Scott's Letters, detailing the particulars of his recent episcopal visit to Liberia. They are valuable, full of interest and endorse entirely this plan to civilize Africa, and to extend the blessing of Christianity to her countless heathen tribes.

The Rev. Mr. Gurley, an eminent Colonizationist, has twice visited the American settlements on that coast, at first in the year 1824, and again, some four years ago. He was sent upon this last mission by our Government, to obtain authentic information of the new African Republic. Upon his return he presented to Congress a valuable Report on the subject, which those sufficiently interested may find printed, with the Executive Document to the U. S. Senate, No. 75, 31st Congress, 1st Session. English philanthropists and Christians have manifested an interest in this noble work of benevolence. Two or three years ago I received, through a mutual friend, a request from Lord Lindhurst, to furnish him with full and written information concerning the African Republic, and the various engagements entered into, that other engagements interfered with the request, which would have been otherwise a pleasant task.

The cause numbers of our friends in Great Britain, the Government being foremost. Mr. Gurley, himself an eye-witness, gives valuable testimony. When he reached the African Republic, in the month of August, 1824, he met 100 blacks, assembled in the only Church then existing. This was an humble, thatched tent, and he read the first Bible ever opened in that country. He told them, and these 100 men were all the colored emigrants from the United States, then on the African shores.

At the time of his last visit, he found 1500 inhabitants, living in well-built dwellings, some were elegant, and nearly all well-furnished. Some were employed in agriculture, others in trade and commerce, and all "busy and happy," to use his own expression. The Librarian Republic is now 10,000 strong in emigrants, thousands of whom were emancipated from slavery in the U. S. States, because there was this home prepared for them in their native land.

In this view, the Colonization scheme is the best and safest society in the U. S. States. The slave owners at the South, of their negroes whilst the philanthropists, both North and South, have ever been sending them to the African colony. This is the quiet operation of the Colonization Society. It is daily spreading, the most powerful and noblest, heart and mind purifying, and supporting its purposes. I doubt not that the State and general Government, will, sooner or later, lend their aid. Then that sanguinary and unchristian trade, the African exodus will be national as the Irish or German now is, to our own favored shores.—Why? For one and the same reason, that the emigrants will be in a better condition. Man has ever been migrating under the influence of this great impulse of his nature.

The Methodist Church now has in Liberia 17 Preachers, 9 Circuits, over 1,000 Members, 20 Sunday Schools, 800 Scholars, 300 volumes in their Libraries. Then, other denominations, are accomplishing like blessed results, so that the Word of Life is preached to more than 10,000 natives, and will of their children attend the Colonial schools.

The expedition which has just left New York, carries out an excellent Christian party, for the purpose of teaching the Word of Life in the Gospel, are among their number. They have, also, a steam saw-mill, an article greatly needed in the Colony, and a mill for grinding the water, settle twenty-five miles from the coast, upon the high, healthy, and beautiful lands of the St Paul's river. May our heavenly Father prosper the emigrants to Africa, and bless them in their new homes in the land of their forefathers.

JUNCTION OF THE TWO OCEANS.

The completion of the Pacific railroad on any of the lines that have been proposed will connect the Atlantic with the Pacific communication between the two oceans, to accommodate the heavy trade from eastern Asia and the islands in the Pacific ocean. The project has been long on the tapis, and was first introduced in London for some years, succeeded in enlisting Sir Charles Fox, the eminent and distinguished engineer, in the scheme of cutting through the mountains of Darien. Dr. Black and Sir Charles Fox agreed to have a thorough investigation made of the Isthmus of Darien, and that every precaution should be taken to protect the American nationality to the enterprise. To that end the arrangement was made by which the Isthmus of Darien was to be placed in the hands of Dr. Black—that one half of the directory should consist of American citizens, and that one half of the stock should be open to American subscription.

In order to carry out the idea of giving American nationality to the work, an application has been made to the Secretary of the Navy to authorize a survey of the Isthmus. That application has been, as we learn, favorably considered, and Lieutenant Isaac G. Strain has been selected as the person to command the detachment from the home squadron to make the survey. Its object is, if we are rightly informed to give nationality to enterprise, and authenticity to results. The Isthmus has already been examined by Dr. Black's agents Mr. Lionel Giasourne and Mr. Forde, civil engineers, were sent there, and made a reconnaissance.—They landed at Port Escozias, an old Scotch settlement long since abandoned. Then they crossed the coast of the Cordilleras, where they were taken by the Indians, and conducted down Caledonia river, to Caledonia bay, on the Caribbean sea. After being released, they went to Panama, and thence to the Gulf of San Miguel, where they were detained for the largest vessel for seven miles; having for that distance thirty-six feet of water at low tide.

The point at which the navigation of the Savana ceases is but thirty-three miles from Caledonia bay on the Atlantic coast. The summit range between the two oceans is only thirty feet high, and is crossed by a narrow base, and the eastern coast of the Cordilleras is entirely cut through by the Caledonia river.—With this information, the project of the Isthmus was to open a strait from the Savana river to Caledonia bay, thirty feet deep and one hundred and sixty feet wide, without locks, but that the largest vessel may be passing each way. This is a great undertaking. Nothing but a strait will answer. A canal, with locks, would no more serve the purpose of commerce than a railroad. But we understand that there will be no difficulty as to the requisite means. Indeed, the connection of Sir Charles Fox with the enterprise gives it all needed stability. An agent is now in China to procure labor in such quantity that the whole line of improvement may be proceeded with at the same time; that the project of the provisional organization which has been permanent preparatory to the final and permanent officers.—Washington Sentinel.

THE LAST PRAYER.—Some years ago, in a mountainous district of Wales, there resided a man of a most liberal and liberal, and respectfully educated; but he early manifested a disposition to turn aside from the paths of piety and rectitude. Many temptations were offered him, but he extruded, ere it was too late, to consider the path he was pursuing, and the end to which, if persevered in, it would inevitably lead. He sought for relief, but he sought his eternal happiness was unheeded. He seemed resolved to drink still deeper of the imaginary pleasures of the world, and if at any moment a voice of conscience regained its power (and he listened with rather more attention than was usual to the entreaties of his friends), his answer to them invariably was, "I will be wiser when I die; I am very merciful; a few moments for repentance on a death-bed will make amends for all,—just a few words of prayer then, and I will be wiser when I die." At that moment he was reminded that life was uncertain; at any moment he might be called from time into eternity; his heart was hardened against the voice of conscience, and a short time after he had been thus warned, he went on horseback as usual, in the morning (his horse was young and spirited); but he was not long in being determined in his folly to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side). He proceeded madly urging forward his horse, and in so doing he was determined to attempt the ascent of one of those steep and narrow bridges so frequently met with in the mountains (and from which a person cannot, until the bridge is under his feet, discern anything on the other side