HAPPENINGS

The sodality and alumnae of St. Joseph's Convent are holding a tea this Sunday afternoon. Many guests are expected to attend the annual happy event. This year an added interesting feature is that the new organ is now in use and all who see and hear it are full of admiration for the very fine instrument which the sodality and alumnae have presented to the convent.

Mr. Benjamin Rogers, who has been a patient in the Prince Edward Island Hospital for the past six weeks, returned Wednesday to his home on Goodwill Avenue, where he will be convalescing for some time.

Mr. H.B. Budgen of the Maritime Electric will address the Prince Edward Island branch of the Canadian Association of Consumers at their fall meeting on Monday. Mr. Budgen's topic will be "Electricity in the Home."

Mrs. J.A. Lawson, eastern vice-president, will give a report. There will be a display of suitable toys for children. Mrs. Maylea Manning is the president and Mrs. W.G. Hogg is the secretary.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert MacLeod

Water Street, have returned from a trip to Montreal and Ottawa. While in the latter city they were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Slaght.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis MacMahon returned on Monday by plane after a three months visit to Western Canada, where they visited their sons-in-law and daughters, Mr. and Mrs. C.R. Bomberbach and family; Mr. and Mrs. D.M. Bishop, Saskatoon; Miss Leigh MacMahon in Calgary and Cpl. and Mrs. E.A. Auger and family, R.C.A.F., Camp Borden, Ontario. Mrs. Bomberbach (Nadine) has two children, Kathy and Louis; Mrs. Bishop was the former Stephanie MacMahon; Mrs. Auger (Irene) has two girls, Geraldine and Ruth Anne. Mr. and Mrs. MacMahon were widely entertained by their families and friends during their visit.

Mrs. Russell White (the former Julie Carson) teacher of music at the Hants County Rural High School, Kennebec, is very busy with her Christmas music. Mrs. White is preparing a Christmas broadcast which includes a wide variety of numbers in which all the pupils will participate.

W.I. Members In 25 Yrs. Miss Only Eight Meetings

A very happy evening was spent in the hall at North Wiltshire on Tuesday evening November 18th when the members of the Women's Institute with their husbands and invited guests gathered to celebrate their 25th anniversary.

After the seven charter members were presented with corsages, all sat down to a bounteous supper prepared and served by the Ladies of Darlington W.I.

After supper a short report of all the activities of the Institute since organization was given by

BRAE CWL

The regular meeting of the Immaculate Conception, Brae, sub-division of the CWL was held on November 9th, with a good attendance of members.

The president Joan McKinnon, presided. In the absence of the secretary Mrs. John McKinnon acted as secretary. The treasurer read her report, and reports from each convener was given.

The meeting then dealt with the new business which consisted of canvassing the parish for subscriptions to the Casket.

The spiritual director gave a talk on the necessity of having a Catholic paper in the home.

The meeting closed with the act of consecration and the directors blessing.

The next meeting is to be held at the home of Mrs. Gloria Galant.

MR. AND MRS. W. B. MacDONALD
Couple Pledge Vows At Saint Joachim's Church

A very pretty wedding was solemnized in St. Joachim's Church, Vernon River, when Pauline Mary, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Murphy, Cherry Valley, became the bride of Wilbur Bernard, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leo A. MacDonald, Orwell.

Rev. Fr. Urban Gillis performed the double ring ceremony and celebrated nuptial mass.

Mrs. Leonard Murphy played the wedding music and Mrs. B. MacPherson and Mrs. M. Redmond sang appropriate hymns during the nuptial mass and singing of the register.

The church was beautifully decorated with baskets of mixed flowers. The guests pews were marked with satin bows.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, looked charming in a waltz length gown of pure white nylon net and lace over rayon satin.

The groom had a scalloped neck line, slightly lower to a "V" in the back, and front bodice embroidered with cup sequins.

The bouffant skirt fell from tiny sequin trimmed lace and in front and double net behind. Her fingertip veil was held by a tiny sequin trimmed lace and satin pill-box hat. She carried cascade bouquet of red roses.

Miss Irene Murphy, sister of the bride, was matron of honor.

She wore a street length dress of yellow flowered nylon on a white background. She wore matching accessories and she carried a cascade of yellow and white roses.

Miss Ronald MacDonald, sister of the groom, was similarly attired in blue with matching accessories.

Mr. Russell McQuaid, acted as bestman and ushers were Mr. Everett Murphy, brother of the bride, and Mr. Ronnie MacInnis, cousin of the groom.

Mrs. Murphy, mother of the bride, chose for her daughter's wedding a gown of navy blue taffeta with white accessories and a corsage of white roses.

Mrs. MacDonald, mother of the groom, chose for her son's wedding, a bright blue dress with white accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

Following the wedding a breakfast was held at the home of the bride for sixty guests. That evening a reception was held at the home of the groom for two hundred guests.

Following the reception the newly weds left for a honeymoon trip to the Cabot Trail and Louisburg.

The young couple now reside in Orwell where the groom is engaged in farming. (Photo by Meyer's Studio.)

ELLEN'S DIARY

"The Road Of Bridges" To Be Seen At Alderlea

Today: Sunrise in winsome rose shades, in brittle promise this morning. Then a blue jay's shrill call, and mist scarfing the hillsides. And now exquisite moon light washes the quiet fields.

"This was a perfect morning!" James recalled, looking back to it this evening. "The dawn... and the sunrise, well, I had to stop a minute, just to admire it. Every thing was so calm then and lovely."

"Strange isn't it," he commented, "That deep silence of early day? It's as though one were in church. And then the wind breaks the spell—the day begins, and thoughts turn to the work that calls."

Tidying an old fence row in a distant field that was the farmers' work today. Ploving then that final ridge of the fall to bring that endeavour to a close. Pasture land this was, undisturbed James remembered "for over twenty years," thickly sowed from intensive pasturing and lying close to the road.

"Any passerby?" we inquired of James at dinner.

He shook his head and sighed. "Times are now much like they used to be, Ellen," he said. "Why once it was delaying to work near the road. So many passing would stop for a chat."

For this was always a busy road—teams coming and going, farmers with their grists to the mill, and folks to the doctor's office at the corner.

There's not too much interest to the traffic now. The cars pass, and if one is near them, it is amusing to watch the drivers' eyes ahead, hustling along as though they had to catch a boat!

We chuckled. "Well, at any rate, Ellen, there's a little interruption now to a farmer who works in his fields by the road" he offered.

There were, of course, odd interruptions, of which the farmwives were aware, for had they not the one or the other turned some traffic thither?

The stranger in the yard who "was looking to buy a few heifers"; the farmer who would buy some weanlings of pigs. And another at the door who inquired: "Would you know, Missis, now, someone was telling me that the men had a young herd-sire or so, they would part with?"

"You will have to contact them we replied. "Do you know this road?"

"Then to find them" we explained "you will have to go in the road until at its far side, you will find them tidying up and ploving in a roadside field."

And while gulls winged in over the treetops down the river, not to bring spring with them as we trust them to do over the months ahead, but queer scavengers that they are, in to glean on some red-furrowed field.

So we closed the fieldwork today—wrote the last line with a half-sigh, shut the volume, scented with many a remembered petal, and set it away. All in good time, our fields are into their rest.

Until tomorrow—Diary—Good night.
