EMPLOYMENT

Help Wanted
1963 OPPORTUNITIES
At intervals during 1963 The Guardian and the Evening Patriot plan to employ several young men and women as "reporters-in-training". These are not stop-and-go flash-in-the-pan assignments. They involve the attention only of those who are keenly interested in getting the training and experience which can equip them for successful journalistic careers in newspapering.

Amplitude is the quality most desired in applicants.
It can be expected only in a young man or woman possessing a strong desire and sufficient determination to succeed in the field of news gathering and news presentation.

There is the need, too, for a lively interest in all human affairs that are of public concern; alert powers of observation; a strong sense of responsibility; and at least the promise of ability to put news into writing.

At least a grade 12 education is required and some typing experience is desirable.

There is at least one immediate opening, with others to become available soon.

At the outset, all applications must be in writing, with personal interviews to follow. They should be addressed to:

Executive Editor,
The Guardian - The Patriot Charlottetown.
