

THE DAILY EXAMINER.

SEPTEMBER 3, 1891.

Our Exhibitions.

It is hoped that preparations for the exhibitions are being made by our enterprising and public spirited farmers and manufacturers. We ought to make an exceptionally good show this year; for we have the means of doing so, and it is in the interest of the Province that we should do so.

Visit of British Farmer Delegates.

In their anxiety to open up Western Canada, the Government have not given sufficient attention to the development of Eastern Canada. The result is seen by the census exhibit of 1891.

Notes and Comments.

An exchange remarks: "He who boodles and runs away may live to boodle another day." So Pacaud may come back again!

It is stated on good authority that since the first of January of this year we have exported upwards of nine millions of eggs to the United Kingdom, and that Canadian eggs have taken so firm and strong a hold on the English market, and the demand for them is so great, that the indications are that before the close of the year we will have exported as many eggs to Great Britain as ever sent to the United States.

Montreal Star: "The cities of Canada, with a few exceptions, are increasing in population at a most remarkable rate, while the old settled rural districts are standing still or going backward. The same state of affairs prevails in the eastern states of the American Union, where thousands of farms have been deserted. In the Western States, as in the Canadian Northwest, owing to the cheapness of land and the fertility of the unexhausted soil, the disparity between the growth of rural and urban population is not so great, but even in the west the cities are growing much more rapidly than the farming districts. In fact, throughout the civilized world the people are crowding into the cities and towns.

NOTES FROM OTTAWA.

Opposition Obstruction.

Islanders at Ottawa.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE EXAMINER.]

In supply, upon a vote for the construction of public buildings, Mr. Charlton, Mr. Landerkin, Mr. McMullen and Mr. Casey made a lively row about the appropriation for erecting a post office at Dartmouth, N. S. It was throwing away money, the place was small and unimportant, they scented corruption, etc. And so they talked and scolded and raved for three solid hours. As soon as Charlton sat down, Landerkin got up, and then Mills, then McMullen, then Casey, then Watson, and so on. On this one item Landerkin spoke 15 times, McMullen 13 times, Mills 11 times, and Charlton and Casey 5 times each. Bye and bye, however, Forbes of Liverpool arose and jumped upon his Grit colleagues by bringing to their notice that, last year, Haul-down-the-Flag Jones, of Halifax, had strongly supported the claims of Dartmouth to a post office. This was enough. McMullen & Co. sank back in their seats, and the vote passed immediately. During this debate Mr. David Mills thought he was getting off a smart thing at the expense of the Minister of Marine, when he said that the Government had constructed a large public building in the town of Pictou, and that the inhabitants were seriously considering the propriety of abandoning their own houses and moving into that building to live. Mr. Tupper promptly squelched Mr. Mills by informing him that the Pictou Public Building was constructed by the Mackenzie Government, and that the chief ground on which Mr. Carmichael asked the electors of Pictou to return him as a Reformer and supporter of Mr. Blake in 1882 was because the Mackenzie Government had built the Custom House in that town.

Upon every item that came before them the opposition made a kick. When the appropriation for building a post office at Brandon, Manitoba, came up, they kicked hard, and Mr. McMullen made 9 speeches and Mr. Mulock 7. Then up rose big Bob Watson of Marquette and jumped on Mr. McMullen, and Mulock, and told them to cease their carping and hold their tongues, as Brandon was an important and growing town and deserved a postoffice; and at Watson's bidding McMullen and Mulock were dumb.

When the appropriation for maintaining the grounds around the public buildings in Ottawa was reached, the opposition again kicked. They declared that $7,000 was too much, and indeed it seems so. The grass plots are fairly well kept, but the flowers cannot compare with Arthur Newbery's. There are more of them, certainly, for they are scattered over a larger expanse of ground, but in artistic arrangement they are far behind. The compare with the Queen Square gardens as a very common rag mat, adorned with shrimp-pink dogs and sky-blue cats, does with one of Perkins and Sterns' Persian rugs. Mr. Davies protested that the grounds were not so well kept as they used to be, and he severely criticized the gardener's systems. Casey wanted to know if it was true that the conservatory was maintained to provide flowers for the cabinet ministers' dinner tables. Mr. Foster and Sir Adolphe Caron both disclaimed any participation in the benefits of the conservatory. Admiral Welsh and Mr. Kent had no objections to the ministers getting flowers at the conservatory if they wanted them, as they were under obligations to entertain, to which private members were not subjected.

The discussion over the appropriation for wood fuel for the Public Buildings occupied only seven hours. The opposition kicked. They wanted to know all about the contract, and when they got the information they were not satisfied. They were told that ex-Alderman John Heney was the contractor and had been for many years, even in Mr. MacKenzie's time; that he was supplying wood at a cheaper rate per cord than he had done to the Mackenzie Government; that the wood was of good quality—it was no use, still they kicked but at last, from sheer exhaustion, they gave up the fight.

I have taken the trouble to calculate the number of speeches some of the Grits made in supply last week, as follows: On Monday, McMullen, 18 speeches; Landerkin, 50; Watson, 45; Mills, 24; Casey, 25; Somerville, 19; Barron, 13. On Tuesday, McMullen, 32; Watson, 28. On Wednesday, McMullen, 36; Landerkin, 34; Watson, 48; Mills, 9; Casey, 18; Somerville, 13; Barron, 22; Mulock, 48; Lister 7. On Thursday, McMullen, 30; Mills, 11; Casey, 6; Mulock, 42; Charlton, 52; Landerkin, 8; Barron, 34; Watson, 8.

I am not going to refer to the census figures further than to say that already the papers have numerous complaints from persons who say they were not enumerated, and I have personal knowledge of several such instances. Although there are some grumblers, it is freely acknowledged by both sides that the Experimental Farm here is worth all that it has cost. The other day in the Agriculture and Colonization Committee, that uncompromising Grit, Mr. Bob Watson, of Marquette, stated that the experiments which had been made in grain alone had developed a wheat for the Northwest which would be worth millions of dollars for this year alone. This important testimony was followed up by Mr. Trow, the chief Grit whip, who claimed that it was a thorough knowledge of Russian climatology which enabled Prof. Saunders to select Ladoga wheat for the Northwest. Mr. William Johnston, of Ballykilbeg, member of the Imperial Parliament, and a high dignitary of the Orange order, who has been travelling in Canada for the last few weeks, was given a grand reception in the Opera House last Thursday evening, by his Ottawa brethren. Mr. John Wellington Hughes, of the Department of Railways, who occupied a front seat (he declined an invitation to the platform) at the demonstration, expressed to me his extreme gratification with all that he saw and heard on the occasion. So that I have no doubt they had a good time. We have lots of Islanders in Ottawa just now. Saturday morning I met a detachment of the shootists; viz Ewen Stewart, Mat Allan, Dr. Gillis, Henderson and Hooper. Later in the day I fell in with

Jas. Dover, now of Truro, and Capt. J. A. Longworth. On my way to lunch I saw Messrs George Pope and Allan McNeill on the same errand as myself; then I fell in with friend Hughes. On my road back, the first Islander I came across was the Italian who used to sell the toy balloons in Charlottetown—the self-same man, smoking the self-same cigarette. Then I met Vernon Longworth, and while I was talking to him along came Father Picotte; after parting with them I saw Cam Owen, of the Ottawa Bank (son of Hon. L. C. Owen), and Tom Gorman, editor of the Free Press, getting along like a roller skater, while who passed me by but Greenwood, the organ-builder, who lived in Charlottetown ten years ago, and put up St. Paul's Church organ? Then inside the Parliament buildings we have our four senators and six members, all hard at work in the interests of their constituents. When Senator Montgomery was poorly last spring, after Senator Haythorne's death, I said nothing about it, for I do not like to be the bearer of bad news. Now I am glad to say that the old gentleman—he will pardon me for calling him so—never looked better since I have known him. He is smart and active and up to all that is going on. He dearly loves to meet an Islander and cannot show one too much attention.

It is amusing—though rather cold-blooded—to read the respective claims made by the rival authors of the Life of Sir John Macdonald. One gentleman advertises himself as the nephew of Sir John Macdonald; and of course he is a Scotchman who can count his cousins to the 32d generation. He is not Sir John Macdonald's nephew, and his relationship to the deceased statesman consists in his being the nephew of Sir John's first wife, who died over 30 years ago.

A bet was made the other day as to which side, Conservative or Grit, could produce the 20 heaviest men. The result I give below, showing the average weight to be in favour of the Government. I am bound to say that I think there should be a recount; I doubt very much if some of the gentlemen are as heavy as the figures allege: Government—R. R. McLennan 278 lbs., Earle 256, La Riviere 254, Cleveland 232, Montague 243, Col Tywhitt 230, Ives 227, Desjardins (L'Islet) 225, Putnam 224, Burnham 222, Haggart 220, J. A. Macdonald 213, Cockburn 218, Bergeron 220, McKeen 216, Quimet 215, Fairbairn 214, Hutchins 213, Carpenter 210, Kenny 210. Total, 14,765; average, 298 lbs. Opposition—Fraser 280, Savard 245, Guay 248, Mignault 236, Welsh 225, Allison 225, Landerkin 215, McMullen 211, Gibson 232, Bernier 210, Allan 215, Colter 216, Mulock 212, Bechard 210, Davidson 210, Rinfret 206, Mousseau 206, Watson 205, Mills 203, Armstrong 203. Total, 14,424; average, 221. W. C. D.

Next in order will be the two days' meeting at Newcastle, where $435 will be competed for, to be followed by the Chatham meeting on the 18th, which will embrace one day's trotting for $250 by three-minute horses and a free-for-all. These three meetings ought to afford some interesting sport.

The Farmer reports that Golden, Lady Pilot, Almonte Wilkes and Parkside were taken over to Amherst on Wednesday. The latter is entered for the three-year-old futurity race there, and Almonte Wilkes is being trained for the exhibition races at Charlottetown.

The Queen City Stable, Toronto, to which belongs the greatest steeple chaser in America, the famous Hercules, has decided to send him across the water to compete in the grand national steeple chase which takes place at Aintree meeting at Liverpool next March.

Sporting circles in London are surprised that the offer made by Blundell Maple, for the great stallion Orm-onde, amounting to $135,000, has been refused by his present owner, Don Juan Bocan of Buenos Ayres.

Breadstreets' estimates the shortage of the wheat crop of Europe at 320,000,000 bushels, and places the surplus of North and South America, Australia and other countries, at 28,000,000 bushels, leaving a net deficiency of 32,000,000 bushels. This ought to indicate good prices.
