Morley's Stomach Tonic has helped me so much that I am writing this in hopes that it can help others as much as it has helped me. I suffered for over a year with stomach trouble and indigestion. I had tried everything for it and got no relief until I started taking Morley's Stomach Tonic. After taking one bottle, I began to feel like my old self again. I highly recommend Morley's Stomach Tonic for anyone.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:
A X Y D L B A A X
N L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

KEEP OUT!

—Old Mother Nature.

"Go away," he said fretfully.

Where Gray Fox had met Mrs. Gray no one knew and no one cared as long as bringing her to the neighborhood didn't interfere with any one else. But they were finding it harder not to do this than they had thought it would be. Their cousins, Reddy Fox and Mrs. Reddy, had made it very clear they were not welcome in the Old Pasture and on the Green Meadows. They had been told plainly to keep away. You see Mr. and Mrs. Reddy had been living in the Old Pasture and hunting on the Green Meadows for so long that they seemed to think they belonged to them.

"But we've got to have a home somewhere. We've just got to," declared Mrs. Gray. "We'll have to look around. Some where we'll find a house no one else is using. If worse comes to worst we can dig one when the ground is no longer too hard," declared Gray Fox hopefully.

"I don't want to dig one. It is too much work," whined Mrs. Gray. "Don't you know of any empty houses anywhere around here?"

Gray Fox said he knew of some houses that might be fixed up and made to do if they were not occupied. He suggested that they go look over some of these. The first one they looked at was an old Woodchuck hole not far from the Old Pasture but in another field. Mrs. Gray turned her nose. It wouldn't do at all. It would be a lot of work to make it big enough and fit to live in. It was in too open a place. It was too exposed. The doorway faced the wrong way. Anyway, she wanted to live in the Green Forest.

So over to the Green Forest they went to look at some places Gray Fox knew of there. He led the way straight to a certain big tree between the spreading roots of which was the entrance to an underground home plenty big enough yet not too big.

"This looks more like it," said Mrs. Gray. "I hope it is as good inside as it looks from the outside. I'll go down in and look it over."

She disappeared inside while Gray Fox hopefully waited outside. She wasn't gone more than a minute when she came backing out hastily. Such a growling and grunting and whining came out of that hole! There was some one in there, a very indignant some one. In a moment Prickly Porky poked his head out. "Go away," said he fretfully. "You can't come in here. This is my home. Keep out."

"I'm sorry, my dear. Truly I am. I didn't know he is living there. When I was there last no one was living there," said Gray Fox. He looked so sorry that Mrs. Gray forgave him, and they went to look at another house Gray Fox knew of.

This was the hollow trunk of a big tree. The entrance was ten to twelve feet above the ground. Reddy Fox wouldn't have even looked at it had he been there, but his gray cousins can do one thing very well that Reddy cannot do at all well and seldom tries—they can climb.

"How would that do?" asked Gray Fox.

Just then Bobby Coon poked his head out of the doorway and looked down at them. Perhaps he guessed what they had been planning to do "Keep out," he growled.

They did.

Contract Bridge

NO ESCAPE

In today's deal a defender was in the uncomfortable position of being "fixed," whatever he did!

North dealer. Both sides vulnerable.

The bidding:
North East South West
1 Pass 1 Pass
3 Pass 4 Pass
Pass Pass

It is evident that South's holding was well below average, but he was nevertheless correct in going on to game under his partner's strong urging.

West, on lead, had a difficult guess between the unbid suits and, unluckily for himself, selected a low club. Declarer won with the jack and led a heart to dummy's queen. East won, and now he was in difficulty. If he shifted to diamonds or returned a club, declarer could easily cash all the high cards in dummy, ruff a heart, discard dummy's diamond on his own club king, and cross-ruff losers to take 10 tricks. Actually, however, East sensed this danger and shifted to trumps, leading three rounds.

South, after winning the third trump lead, now had alternative lines of play. He could take another heart finesse, against the jack, and would be sure of success if it succeeded, since he could discard dummy's losing diamond on his own club king and ruff dummy's last heart. After thinking things over carefully, however, South decided against this plan. Why had East taken out trumps? He could not have even hoped to defeat the contract in that way unless he had what appeared to be another heart stopper.

Acting on this sound analysis, South led directly to the heart ace, then let the heart ten ride through East, discarding a club. When the ten held, the contract was safe.
