ADVERTISING RATES

For small advertisements which are ordered for only one or two weeks the charge is 50 cents per inch for the first insertion, and 20 cents for each continuation. Rate cards are furnished on application at the office. Special contract prices at a reduced rate are quoted for advertisements four inches in size or larger, which are to run for three months or longer.

No special notices inserted unless paid for at the rate of 10 cents per line, and under no circumstances will such paid notices appear in the local column.

Special discounts made on all advertisements connected with Church Fairs, Bazaars, Picnics, etc. No notices will be inserted with the same unless the regular rate of 10 cents per line is paid.

That THE EXAMINER is considered by our Merchants and Manufacturers to be the leading newspaper in P. E. Island, and consequently the most valuable advertising medium through which to make their announcements public, is abundantly proved by the fact that in order to accommodate our advertisers we have been compelled to enlarge the paper to its present size.

THE DAILY EXAMINER is for sale by the following agents :—

THE AMERICAN
$8.00 Typewriter.

This is a well-made, practical machine, writing capitals, small letters, figures, and punctuation marks (71 in all) on full width paper, just like a $100 instrument. It is the first of its kind ever offered at a popular price for which the above claim can be truthfully made. It is not a toy, but a typewriter built for and capable of REAL WORK. While not as rapid as the large machines sometimes become in expert hands, it is still at least as rapid as the pen, and has the advantage of such simplicity that it can be understood and mastered almost at a glance. We cordially commend it to helpful parents and teachers everywhere.

Writes capitals, small letters, figures and marks—71 in all.
Writes just like a $100 machine.
No Shift Keys. No Ribbon. Prints from the type direct.
Prints on flat surface.
Writing always in sight.
Corrections and insertions easily made.
Takes any width of paper or envelope up to 8½ inches.
Easy to understand—learned in 5 minutes.
Weighs only four pounds—most portable.
Compact, takes up but little room.
Built solid and simple; can't get out of order.
Capital and lower case keyboard alike—easily mastered.
More "margin play" for the small letters which do most of the work.
Takes good letter-press copies.

Packed securely in handsome case and expressed to any address on receipt of price, $8.00, in registered letter, money order or certified check. We guarantee every machine, and are glad to answer all inquiries for further information as to this machine and also the "Yost."

THE TALE OF POVERTY.

YOU MAY NOT BELIEVE IT, BUT THE POOR ARE GENEROUS.

They Are Not as Unyielding as Mountains, Nor as Cruel as the Sea, When They Listen to a Tale of Woe Like or Worse Than Their Own.

Go often enough into any humble quarter of any city in the republic and you will see acts that will stir your admiration for the masses who are so completely unknown. You might suppose that in their narrow dingy abodes, ill-fed and ill-clad, ever fighting the hard fierce battle of life, they would be as savages. Why or how should they have minds to think of, souls to feel for, the woes of the unfortunates about them? They could not be blamed if they were unyielding as the mountains, as cruel as the sea. Are they? Let us look!

In this tenement, consisting of three little rooms, is a family of six—four small children. The parents are ill, caused by bad air and insufficient food, and may die. The neighbors have given of their slender store to buy a few comforts. Two women across the dirty hall have left their washing, and are taking care of the little folk. When that is done they will prepare the simple meal, will administer the medicine prescribed, will put the tenement to rights so far as it may be righted. In these plain offices they will occupy four or five hours, most precious to them in earning their daily stipend, and never think how good they are. Other women will then come in and watch by turns with the sick couple. So these invaluable kindnesses will continue until death or recovery makes their service for the time superfluous.

In a dark basement, through whose rattling windows the noonday light scarcely struggles, a baby has just been born. It lies wailing on a soiled, ragged quilt, as if to protest against entering so grim a corner of a relentless world. The mother, young and not uncomely, appears happy, even in that dismal cellar, smiling faintly at a wrinkled female, who, having volunteered for the occasion, has hobbled down from the top story to render unsolicited and unrecompensed, such assistance as she may. Other elderly females, hearing of the new birth, are brought thither by sympathy with the event, and are eager to proffer their assistance. The father, ordained like his order to repeated paternity, was called away at sunrise to his task—cleaning the streets—and knows not yet what his fellow scavengers, unconscious of sarcasm, term his good luck. He will be only less happy than his wife when he is told of what has occurred in his absence.

Happy? Can he be happy, born to influence, ceaseless labor, and ever-frowning destiny? The majority of the prosperous would be in the depths of despair, would hardly care to live, were their lot his or hers. Surely happiness is relative. The very poor, invariably wretched as they must appear to the rich, have their compensations, after all. One of these is the will, without pondering or self-felicitation, to do good where good is most needed and fortune most malignant.

The poor, in order to be resigned to the world, must be optimists. May it not be that they who have least cause for contentment possess the largest share. May not the poor be too engrossed in austere bread-winning to reflect on what constitutes contentment? Is not there formless faith generated by lack of leisure, by grinding, consuming toil? Can this be another disguised compensation?—Harper's Weekly.

Removing the Hat in Public Places.

While there is altogether too much laxity in the social code, and too little attention is given to enforcing the rules that govern good society, common sense and regard for health should, to a certain extent, regulate all of our doings.

While it is a very pleasing and courteous thing for a man to raise his hat when meeting a lady on the street, or in public buildings and elevators, there are many times and places when this is a decided imprudence as far as health goes.

Coming out of a warm room or, when heated with rapid walking, the forehead and hair may become damp with perspiration, a moment's raising of the hat, or removing it altogether while going up in an elevator, exposes the head to a strong current of air, and, in persons of susceptible temperatures, it may be productive of violent attacks of neuralgia.

Any form of politeness that is based on a disregard for the health and life of others is scarcely to be commended in any particular, and, therefore, society should adopt some salute or mark of courtesy expressly for out-of door meetings. Whatever this may be, if should be strictly observed and not made a matter of convenience or mood, as is sometimes the case.

"American's Abroad."

"Americans Abroad" is a comedy of excellent dramatic construction, its worst defects being due to M. Sardou's evident lack of knowledge of American characteristics. His Americans may be Parisian Americans, but they are not genuine, as they are supposed to be. There are errors of detail which are counterbalanced by a neatly told story, of which love is the theme and in which human interest is artistically blended. Its only real "villain" happily does not appear on the stage at all and its most despicable characters are a fortune-hunting Frenchman and a baroness who is unpleasantly persistent in her efforts to force an American heiress into a marriage with a bankrupt Parisian social parasite, nolens volens. There is enough of characteristic Sardou comedy—never a caricature and never boisterous—injected into the lines to make them breezy out of the commonplace, and the play is never dull.

No Object In Life.

A person who has no object in life is apt to run a vagrant and useless career. A man who aims at nothing, cannot reasonably expect to hit anything. In military operations, there is always what is called the objective point. The objective point is the point to be made, the thing to be done. All the forces of the army are concentrated on the making of that point: and when that point is made, success follows.

In one sense, life is a warfare; it is a succession of campaigns. And every one should have his objective point—a clearly defined purpose—and work up to it with undeviating persistency. This is the only way he can succeed.

Even-Handed Justice.

Dr. Francis Parkman, the late historian, had a strict idea of justice. A friend met him one day walking along the street leading a street boy with either hand. "What in the world are you doing, Parkman?" asked the friend. "I found that Johnnie here had eaten all of the apple instead of dividing with his little brother. I am going to buy another for the younger boy, and make Johnnie watch him while he eats it."

Deafness Caused by Cattarrh.

Capt. S. F. Belyea, of Greenwich, King's Co., N. B., suffered from an aggravated form of catarrh which had in his case induced serious deafness, closed the nasal passages so that he could scarcely breath and caused him great pain and trouble. He tried many remedies, but all failed until he got Hawker's Cattarrh Cure, three 25 cent packages of which effected a cure. "I can honestly say" says capt. Belyea "that I am practically well, and I take great pleasure in recommending Hawker's Catarrh Cure to those who may be suffering from this very troublesome disease."

ORIGIN OF LYNCH LAW.

Just, Inexpensive, and Lacking Wholly the Brutality of the Present Method.

Lynch law had its origin in Virginia, according to the conclusions of a gentleman who has been investigating the early history of that State. It was not mob law, as it is now understood. It was orderly, methodical, and fair in its processes, and was strongly opposed to violence or mob rule. Its distinctive feature was simply that its decrees and findings were executed sternly and swiftly upon the spot of their delivery.

Charles Lynch, whose name is associated with the summary proceedings now known as acts of "lynch law," was a Revolutionary soldier, and after the war ended took up his residence in Pittsylvania county. The region in which he lived became at one period of the Revolution infested by bands of Tories and outlaws, whose depredations upon the defenceless people extended from the lower parts of North Carolina and Virginia to the passes of the Blue Ridge and the headwaters of the James and other mountain streams. Deserters from both armies added strength and a semblance of organization to their operations. Wherever they appeared the terror-stricken inhabitants were plundered, harassed and subjected to every variety of insult and outrage. A remedy was needed for this insufferable state of things, a remedy that should at once strike such terror to these miscreants as would relieve a community already suffering from the effects of hostile invasion. Col. Lynch was the man to take the lead in such an emergency. He succeeded in organizing a body of patriotic citizens, men of known character and standing.

Having laid his plans before them, and securing their approval, he at once proceeded to put them into execution. At the head of his followers he promptly got upon the track of the unsuspecting enemy, captured many and caused the others to flee from the country. When any of these outlaws fell into his hands they were not taken at once to a tree and hanged or tied to a stake and shot, as is now done under the perverted system of the present day. This was not according to the code of Col. Lynch and his followers.

So far from such a lawless procedure, a jury was selected from Lynch's men, over which he presided as Judge; the captives were tried separately, the accused allowed to make his own defence and to show cause, if he could, why he should not be punished. If found guilty the punishment was inflicted on the spot. The general impression has been that in all cases of Lynch law the penalty was death. This is a mistake. A writer who knew Col. Lynch well was assured by him that he never willingly condemned a criminal to capital punishment, that prisoners were frequently let off with a severe flogging and then liberated on condition that they would leave the country.—Cincinnati Commercial Gazette.

Oiling the Voice.

The voices of singers need an occasional "oiling," and some peculiar remedies have been in vogue among the singers which it is interesting to know. When Gallmeyer, the famous soubrette, visited England she confessed that she treated her throat before each performance to a good rubbing with rum and glycerine. This statement led to further investigations in this line with the following results: Labatt, the great Swedish tenor, ate two salt pickles before going on to sing. Wachtel used the yolk of an egg with sugar.

Other noted vocal stars drink beer, champagne, soda water or punch. Walter, the tenor, drinks cold coffee without cream, and Gerstinger relies on a glass of grog. Zelia Trebelli, the famous contralto who died not long ago, always drank lemonade before she went on the stage. Kinderman chewed dried prunes during the intervals and Southeim swore by a pinch of snuff before each aria. Some singers who are passionate smokers refrain from smoking on the days on which they are to sing, while a number of cantatrices believe that their voices are vastly improved by the smoking of a cigarette just before the curtain rises.—Million.

One of Tyndall's Heroic Experiments.

In 1864 Tyndall performed the experiment of separating light from heat. In the course of the investigations which enabled him to do this he made one of the most daring experiments that ever a scientific man ventured on.

Knowing a layer of iodine placed before the eye intercepted the light, he determined to place his own eye in the focus of strong invisible rays. He knew that if in doing so the dark rays were absorbed in a high degree by the humors of the eye the albumen of the humors might coagulate; and, on the other hand, if there was no high absorption the rays might strike upon the retina with a force sufficient to destroy it. When he first brought his eye undefended near the dark focus the heat on the parts surrounding the pupil was too intense to be endured. He, therefore, made an aperture in the plate of the metal, and, placing his eye behind this aperture, he gradually approached the point of convergence of the invisible rays. First the pupil and next the retina were placed in the focus without any sensible damage. Immediately afterward a sheet of platinum foil placed in the position which the retina had occupied became red hot.

An Extreme Case.

A German professor was remarkably absent-minded. Whenever he was very busily engaged in his studio solving some abstruse problem, the wife was in the habit of bringing him his dinner. His favorite dish was pancakes and molasses. One day his wife brought him a large pancake and jug of molasses, and went down to the kitchen. Pretty soon she heard the professor ring the bell. "Why is it, Gretchen, that you bring me nothing to eat except molasses? Why have you brought me no pancake?" asked the absent-minded professor. "Ach, Himmel!" exclaimed his wife, "you have tucked the pancake around your neck, thinking that it was a napkin."

Where They Were.

Two gentlemen who were playing cards at a New York club house were very much annoyed by other members who stood behind their chairs and interested themselves in the game. Finally one of the players asked one of the spectators to play a hand for him until he returned. The spectator took the cards, whereupon the first player left the room. Pretty soon the second player followed the example of the first. The two substitutes played for some time, when one of them asked the waiter where the two original players were. "They are playing cards in the next room," was the waiter's reply.
