Cleveland's Tariff Platform

THE result of the wordy contest now raging in all parts of the United States, will be told a month from to-day. We need not now speculate about it. But it is, in the meantime, interesting to note that the Democrats have begun to protest, with all their might, that they are not free traders, and that the Republicans are vigorously using facts and inventions to the end that the electors may be convinced that they are free traders. Evidently, the end of Protection in the States is not yet. There is, however, a great deal of discontent in the country, and Mr. Cleveland will make the most of it. He declares in his letter that the tariff must be reformed, but he says "we wage no exterminating war against any American interests. We believe a readjustment can be accomplished, in accordance with the principles we profess without disaster or demolition. We believe that the advantages of freer raw material should be accorded to our manufacturers, and we contemplate a fair and careful distribution of necessary tariff burdens, rather than the precipitation of free trade."

Covering Up Their Tracks.

CERTAIN kinds of animals and certain kinds of men are, on certain occasions, at great pains to "cover up their tracks." An illustration of the methods sometimes resorted to may be found in the elaborate report of the "the supervisors' convention" published by the Patriot. It has been shrewdly guessed that these supervisors were called together by the Government as a ready means of obtaining information from the various sections and districts as to "whether or not it would be prudent for the Government to go to the country this fall." So we have the Patriot's elaborate report—to the end that the guileless elector may see that they were brought to town on other and different business. The report covers a large part of three long columns. It is full and particular—if not true. The supervisors and the Government evidently think that the public is greatly in need of instruction about methods of road-making. One wise and learned supervisor is reported as having oracularly informed the convention that "the most important thing about road-making is to drain the roads well." This most important secret was evidently discovered by the application of the Baconian principle of induction. Our supervisor judged of causes from effects, and reasoned from facts to theory. So we have the grand conclusion set forth in the Patriot. Another philosopher has informed the world—by means of the Patriot—that "sods made the best roads," because "they are porous and [illegible] water through." Shade of McAdam—what next! One of the wise has "been placing dumps on the hills the past two years," and another has declared that "hills were bad enough without dumps." So that there is variety of opinion among the supervisors while there is unity in respect to the main purpose of having more public money pass through their clean hands! Yes. The artifice of the Patriot's report was good: The people are now convinced that the supervisors were not brought together for the purpose of reporting as to the grit prospects for an election,—and the Government are now convinced that they "had better not!"

Notes and Comments.

Senator Prowse, of Murray Harbor, arrived in the city this forenoon. He is at the Hotel Davies.

—It is pleasing to hear that the Philharmonic Society has decided to resume practice. We hope that it will be well sustained this season.

—At a meeting of the School Board held last night, present the Chairman, Messrs. T. Handrahan, A. Kennedy, J. Ings, T. Foley and Dr. Johnson, the consideration of the proposed arrangement of the bounaries of the City Schools was postponed for the present.

—New Zealand is the first of the British colonies to permit women to vote at elections for members of the legislative assembly. A female suffrage bill has been passed by the legislature of New Zealand with a proviso that female voters may be registered without their personal attendance at the polls.

—The Birmingham Daily Gazette, of September 7, says that about 60,000,000 pairs of boots are purchased each year in the United Kingdom. It then argues that if half of that number is imported from abroad, the native production is diminished by one-half, and supposing the labor on each pair to be worth 2s there is a direct loss of £3,000,000 in wages to the native shoemakers, besides the national loss of £6,000,000 which goes out of the country to pay for the other half. Such statements and arguments in the Free Trade press of Great Britain show that the shoe is pinching the British bread winner.

—Enquiry has been made why October 12 is observed in some of the Columbus celebrations and October 21 in others. One writer on the subject says that "when the change was made from the old to the present calendar ten days were omitted, so that the year 1582 contained but 355 days. Because of the irregular keeping of the calendar, October 12, in the year as it is now observed, makes a point nine days earlier in the autumn season than it did in the century when Columbus made his discovery." A mathematician in the Scientific American pointed out two years ago that 146,097 days intervene between October 12, 1492, and October 21, 1892. Four hundred of our modern calendar years contain this number of days, and "four hundred tropical years are but three hours short of the same interval." This is held to make "21st October the proper quadricentennial day. Then the sun will return again for the four hundredth time to the same position in the heavens, and to pursue nearly the same course that it did on the new world's natal day." It was these and like reasons which moved the Congress of the United States to fix the 21st October as the day, and in conformity with that idea it is to be observed as a public holiday by the sixty-five millions of people across the line. Whatever celebration we have of a civic or public kind may properly be held on that day.

Supreme Court.

The Supreme Court met at Summerside this morning, His Lordship Chief Justice Sullivan presiding. There was little or no business to transact, and by one o'clock all—except some Scott Act appeals, which cannot come on until to-morrow—was over. One bill of indictment was found by the Grand Jury, viz, against a young man named Callbeck for shop stealing. When the Sheriff went to the jail for the prisoner, to bring him up for trial, it was found that the bird had flown. It seems that when the jailer or turnkey left the cell this morning he did not pull the door close enough and the lock failed to connect. The quick-witted prisoner did not fail to notice that the cage door was ajar and was soon abroad. Upon the facts being reported to the court, a bench warrant was issued which is now in the hands of the officers. The Chief Justice commented strongly on the fact that prisoners often escape from Prince County jail while in Queen's and King's Counties escapes are of very rare occurrences.

At the coming reunion of Catholic Archbishops in this country, at Archbishop Corrigan's house, New York, next month, Cardinal Gibbons will preside, not, however, because of his high office, but because [illegible] of Baltimore, created in 1858, made the Archbishop of Baltimore, whoever he might be, take precedence over all others in assemblies of this kind, regardless of the length of time that any of those present had been consecrated.

The announcement that Prince George will marry Princess Marie of Teck, the late Duke of Clarence's fiance, appears to have been premature. When approached by his grandmother, the Queen, on the subject he said: "You would not have me marry a lady I do not love. I will select a wife for myself." The Prince has been paying marked attention to Princess Alix, daughter of Ludwig IV, Grand Duke of Hesse. She is beautiful, of the highest attainments, and twenty-one years of age. Her only drawback is that the Prince and Princess are first cousins, but this will make no difference. The Prince and Princess of Wales have given their consent.

CARGO OF OIL.—The schr. Klaevala arrived this forenoon from New York with a cargo of kerosene oil (about 900 barrels) for N., B. & M. Rattenbury.

ODDFELLOWSHIP.—At the recent session of Sovereign Grand Lodge, Mr. Benj. Bremner, as one of the committee on finance, obtained the remission to the Grand Encampment of the Maritime Provinces of the capitation tax on receipts paid the present year.

The Grand Sire, Cl T. Campbell, was banquetted at several points in British Columbia and also at Stratford, Ont., on his return. Canadian Oddfellows may well feel proud of their distinguished brother. A prosperous future for Oddfellowship in the Dominion is assured.

KING'S COUNTY EXHIBITION.—The annual Exhibition and trotting races at Georgetown take place to-morrow. The Exhibition promises to be the most successful yet held in King's County. The prize list amounts to $1100. Special exhibits will be shown, and amusements and games of various kinds will be provided. There will be two races—a three-minute class and a 2 40 class. The entries were published yesterday. There will be special fares along the line of railway. A special passenger train will leave Charlottetown at nine o'clock, local time, tomorrow morning.

FIRE.—Telephonic advices from Mount Albion state that a destructive fire occurred on the premises of Mr. Ingles Wood, Hazelbrook, Lot 48, last evening about sunset. The fire started in some unknown way in a barrack of grain behind the barn. From the burning barrack the flames spread to the barn, and from the barn to two other outbuildings and another barrack and three stacks of grain, all of which were destroyed. The dwelling house was saved with the greatest difficulty. In the barn was stored a lot of threshed grain in chaff, and a large quantity of hay. The farming utensils were saved. Mr. Woods' loss is about $1500. We understand that he had no insurance. Mr. Wood has the sympathy of all in his misfortune.

We have nearly 1 000 overcoats and reefers that we will sell cheap for cash. If you want an overcoat or reefer, be sure and call and see our big stock. – J B Macdonald, Queen Street. oct4 6i

Police Court.

BEFORE R. R. FITZGERALD, S. M.

This morning Andrew McQuillan appeared before His Honor to answer three separate charges—two of malicious injuries to the property of Margaret Rush and Ann Began, respectively, and the other for being drunk, disorderly and acting in an indecent manner. All three offences were committed on Saturday.

In the first case mentioned, the evidence showed that McQuillan, with the aid of a plank, broke six panes of glass and the sash in the window of Mrs. Rush's house. For this offence he was ordered to pay a fine of $20 and $1 50 compensation or go to jail for two months.

The second charge was brought by Ann Began. She testified that McQuillan broke in the door of her residence and also broke a lamp, clock and teapot and eight panes of glass in the window. For this little transaction Andrew was fined $10 and $1 compensation or one month's imprisonment.

The other charge of being drunk and disorderly and acting in an indecent manner stands over for judgment.

One drunk was fined $6 or 20 days.

Daily Mail From Clifton.

The attention of the Post Office authorities is directed to this route and the inconvenience the travelling public are put to on account of the location of the Springfield Post office. While we have nothing to say from a local standpoint against the Springfield office, we may remark that when the daily mail was started, the office was moved to the corner in close proximity to the road. For years before this the office was at Mrs. Palmer's, and the district was well satisfied. No mail carrier could be more accommodating than the present contractor, Mr. Reid. But the detention at Springfield is too much. The office should be moved again to the old place at the corner, or the Post office authorities should pay the local postmaster a small subsidy to meet the carrier with the mails, going and coming. This would remove the grievance complained of. Another way out of the difficulty would be to place a box at the corner under lock and key, to deposit the mail where the local postmaster could find it regularly. The authorities would do well to look into this matter and endeavour to remedy a grievance complained of for years. We believe Postmaster General Caron will be only too glad, on proper representations being made to him in respect to it, to have the matter attended to without delay.

Sights in California.

SIR,—After visiting for a few days with my mother and brother in Los Angeles, Cal., and returning again to my stenographic work in Newall, I feel like writing to THE EXAMINER and giving a short synopsis of the unsurpassed sights to be seen in California within so short a time.

Beginning with the Raymond Hotel, in South Pasadena, one of the most magnificent as well as one of the largest structures to be seen in Southern California, together with standing on the summit of the hill on which the hotel is located, and looking eastward toward the beautiful city of Pasadena nestling in the valley, affords one of the grandest scenes ever stretched before the human eye.

After moving from this beautiful scene, and riding for several miles between hills and over bridges, we soon entered the city of Los Angeles, the great metropolis of South California, wherein move a busy throng, all working and striving to capture the same prize, viz. riches.

Again taking the Southern Pacific train and going westward a distance of about 18 miles, your attention is called to the roaring waves of the Pacific, soon after which, you arrive at the well known watering place, Santa Monica, where may be seen at certain times in the week, ten thousand people either basking in the golden sunshine, or bathing in the briny waters of the old Pacific. After bathing in the above with a few familiar friends, I returned to the thriving little city of Newhall, thoroughly satisfied with my few days outing.

News Notes.

All the greater naval powers and many of the smaller ones to whom invitations were sent by the United States State Department to participate in the naval display at New York next April have accepted the invitation and have signified their intention to send some of their latest constructed vessels to take part.

A vote of want of confidence was taken in the parliament of Hawaii at Honolulu recently, when 24 votes were cast for the motion and 21 against, the ministers not voting. The president decided that 24 votes were necessary to oust the government and this decision was sustained by the Supreme Court, so the ministers retain their seats.

A Mexican journal states that a new deposit of onyx has just been discovered about 50 kilometres south of El Paso. The onyx is of superior quality, with fine grain and richly shaded with delicate and varied tints. The cost of extraction will be very small, and it is believed that large blocks of onyx can be delivered at El Paso for about the same price as building stone.

One of the prominent features of the meetings of the Pan-Presbyterian Council was a paper upon the general history of missions during the past century by Rev. Dr. McKichan, vice-chancellor of Bombay University. He places the total number of Protestant missionaries of all denominations now in the field at 6,557, or 4,405 men and 2,062 women; 3 374 native missionaries, and 4,270 native helpers, with a total contribution of $11,250,000. Of these missionaries, the Presbyterian church contributed 1,687, with $2,500,000 in money. Professor Reutoul, of Melbourne, Australia, mentioned some very interesting facts about the Island Continent. In Victoria, out of 300,000 Anglicans only 50 000 attended church; and out of 132,000 Presbyterians, only 69,000 were regular church attendants. There were 638 ministers and 450,000 Presbyterians in Australasia, and represented in the Alliance now meeting. He stated that in Victoria the school books were entirely secular, but that a number of determined men had fought the matter for fifteen years, until, at a recent election, the majority in Parliament was pledged to the "reintroduction of God's word in the school books."
