Oswald's Books Probed By FBI

NEW YORK (AP)—The New York Times says that Lee Harvey Oswald, accused as the assassin of President Kennedy, had borrowed from a library, a book on Kennedy, one on the assassination of Huey Long and several books critical of communism.

In a dispatch from New Orleans, the newspaper said the books were borrowed last summer from the Napoleon branch of the New Orleans Public Library.

It said agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation are checking cards in the library concerning Oswald's reading habits.

The dispatch, by Fred Powledge, said the book on Kennedy was Portrait of a President, written by W. R. Manchester. The book opens with broodingly words by Carl Sandburg about Abraham Lincoln's assassination.

Oswald, who was working in a New Orleans coffee warehouse at the time, took out the book on June 15.

On the same day, Oswald took out The Huey Long Murder Case, by Hermann B. Deutsch. The book deals with the assassination of the senator in the Louisiana State Capitol building in 1935.

Other books that Oswald borrowed between then and July 24 included The Berlin Wall, by Deane and David Heller; What We Must Know About Communism, by Harry and Bonaro Overstreet; Russia Under Khrushchev, by Aelxander Werth and Portrait of a Revolutionary, by P. S. R. Payne.

Oswald, himself slain soon after Kennedy's assassination, had described himself as a Marxist and a supporter of Cuban Premier Fidel Castro.

Among other books Oswald borrowed were some by thriller-writer Ian Fleming, who generally was regarded as one of Kennedy's favorite authors.

Independent Lottery Action May Be Considered By Que.

OTTAWA (CP) — The Quebec government has indicated it may consider independent action if federal law is not amended to permit provincial lotteries.

A federal official said this suggestion was presented to the federal - provincial conference Friday when it considered a report on the subject by Justice Minister Lionel Chevrier.

What action might be taken could not be learned.

Premier Jean Lesge's opening brief to the conference asked that the Criminal Code be changed to permit Quebec to conduct provincial lotteries as a source of revenue.

Mr. Chevrier reported on a meeting Thursday with attorneys-general and other provincial representatives. He indicated, the official said, that some provinces fear a lottery in one would create enforcement problems in others.

Only Quebec has expressed interest in a provincial lottery although some provinces have called for a code amendment to legalize bingo.

While referring to the Quebec stand as "a strong and impressive case," the justice minister is reported to have told the conference it is unlikely there will be a change in the code to permit provincial lotteries.

Ontario MP Fails To Find Whether RCMP Compile List

OTTAWA (CP) — An unsuccessful attempt has been made in the Commons to find out whether the RCMP provides lists of Communist or subversive organizations and publications in Canadian to anti-Communist agencies.

Douglas Fisher (NDP—Port Arthur) said he strongly suspects that the RCMP provided the Alert Service, a voluntary information agency in Toronto dedicated to anti - Communist activities, with a list of known and suspected Communist-front organizations, unions and publications in Canada.

His motion for information was talked out without reaching a vote.

Mr. Fisher said the RCMP and the government have refused to make such a list available to Parliament.

The MP, quoting a statement by former justice minister Fulton, said the RCMP has co-operated with the Alert Service and considers it a reputable "news media."

He said a recent news letter of the Alert Service gave a list of a number of Communist-front organizations and publications.

To find out whether the list originated in the RCMP security branch, Mr. Fisher moved to obtain all correspondence between the RCMP and the Alert Service.

Donald S. Macdonald, secretary to Justice Minister Chevrier, argued that the RCMP should not be required to make such information public.

He contended it would inhibit the work of the federal police force and might cause sources of information to dry up.

Raul Leoni Leads Race In Venezuela

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP)—Raul Leoni, unspectacular political running on the government's strong anti-Castro platform, sailed along on a comfortable lead in the race for the presidency Monday. A surge of Leoni votes indicated heavy popular approval of Venezuela's demand for stiff action against Cuba.

With unofficial tabulations approaching the half-way mark, Leoni's margin over his closest rival fluctuated between 75,000 and 90,000 votes.

The 58-year-old former labor lawyer ran with the full support of outgoing President Romulo Betancourt, chief enemy of Cuban Premier Fidel Castro in Latin America.

The outpouring for Leoni appeared to hand the pro-Castro Armed Forces for National Liberation (FALN) its second major setback since voters began lining up in record numbers after dawn Sunday in defiance of death threats from the underground terrorist organization. Officials said between 90 and 96 per cent of eligible voters turned out.

Glass Bottles Banned Near Vessel Holds

OTTAWA (CP)—Orders have been given at all train-export ports to stop using glass bottles near vessel holds, Transport Minister McIlraith told the House of Commons Monday.

Meanwhile, investigations continued into how broken glass got into some wheat shipments to Russia. He said it appears the glass entered the wheat after it left the elevators at dockside in Montreal.

He said that the cargoes damaged constitute a small proportion of the $500,000,000 order to be shipped to Russia by next July 31.

Mr. McIlraith was answering queries from Opposition Leader Diefenbaker, Warner Jorgenson (PC—Provencher) and Douglas Harkness (PC—Calgary North).

The minister said only isolated complaints are received about foreign matter in Canadian grain shipped abroad and this is a matter of some pride.

KILLED BY SEAT BELT

VICEROY, Sask. (CP)—LAC Gordon Angus Stevenson, 20, of the Moose Jaw RCAF station was strangled by a seat belt after his car left the highway near this community, a doctor said Friday. Dr. R. C. Bridges of Assiniboia said an autopsy showed Stevenson died of strangulation when his car overturned Wednesday and his unconscious body was suspended upside down by a seat belt for two hours before the accident was discovered.

Opening lead—Jack of hearts.

It would certainly not be difficult to make six spades if you could see the opponents' cards. All you'd have to do is ruff a heart in dummy, take a spade finesse, and you would then have twelve cold tricks.

But in real life the hand is not that simple. You don't see the East-West cards, and, consequently, you might lose a trump trick and go down one.

Problems of this sort occur all the time. In general, when you are missing four to the queen of a given suit, the best play, mathematically, is to cash the ace and king rather than take a finesse against the queen. This will work out best in the long run, barring special circumstances.

In the present hand, South is in six spades and is faced with the possible loss of a club and a spade. The question is how he should play the hand so as to give himself the best chance to make the contract.

He sees that there is no particular reason for him to play the trumps abnormally and that he will therefore lose a spade trick if it turns out that either opponent was dealt three to the queen. He concentrates his thoughts, therefore, on the problem of avoiding a club loser.

By timing his play correctly he can accomplish his aim. He sets as his goal the establishment of an extra diamond trick in dummy. He wins the heart lead with the ace, plays a diamond to the ace, and ruffs a diamond.

Then he cashes the king and ace of spades, learning in the process that East has a trump trick coming. Next he cashes the king of diamonds, discarding a club, and then he ruffs another diamond, thus establishing the nine as a trick.

Now he trumps a heart with the jack and leads the nine of diamonds, discarding a club. It does not matter whether East ruffs the diamond — the only trick taken by the defense is the queen of spades.
