Mr. Layard.

REV. C. HAMLIN, D. D., writes for the St. John "Telegraph":—

"The English statesmen who have so ably and boldly inaugurated this era, without bloodshed, are worthy of all the honor they receive. The British Minister at Constantinople, Austen H. Layard, has held a most difficult and dangerous post, requiring the high qualities of coolness, sagacity and courage in no ordinary degree. His great service has not yet attracted the attention it deserves, but history will not forget him. He spent his early life in Turkey as an attaché of the Embassy, as a traveller, a discoverer, a savant; and now he returns to give to the same land and to his own Government his ripest years. It is a most happy rounding off of a noble life."

Montreal Elections.

At a joint meeting of the Conservative Association, the Junior Conservative Club and the Club Cartier, held last evening, for the selection of candidates for the West and Centre Divisions of Montreal, Mr. M. H. Gault was nominated for the former, and Mr. M. P. Ryan for the latter division. The meeting was a large and thoroughly representative one, and the selection of both gentlemen was made unanimous amid great enthusiasm. A good commencement has thus been made, and, with earnest work, there is no doubt that both gentlemen will be elected by large majorities. Montreal has suffered too severely during recent years from the policy of the McKeenize Government, not to express an unmistakable verdict of condemnation of that policy at the polls.—Montreal Gazette.

The Boston "Traveller" on the Marquis of Lorne.

Lord Lorne is unfortunate in having, as his immediate predecessor, so able and successful and administrator as Lord Dufferin, as few men could hope to equal him in the measure in which he has gained the good will and esteem of the country. His youth and want of experience will make it difficult for him to avoid errors, but under the circumstances the Canadian people will be willing to overlook a few mistakes, which they might have resented in others. His appointment is in the line of Beaconsfield's imperial policy, strengthening the ties which unite the widely scattered sections of Britain's empire. It will be regarded as an additional guarantee, were any needed, that the Manchester school doctrine of letting the colonies go as useless incumbrances is utterly repudiated by the party now in power.

Gambetta's Opinion.

M. Gambetta, in an interview had with the London Times' correspondent, desired it to be understood that he is not "an absolute adversary of the Treaty of Berlin." He welcomes the Treaty, because it indicates that Great Britain has abandoned her insular policy, and appears determined to again interest herself in Continental concerns, and because it has, as he conceives, put an end to the alliance between the three Emperors. He thinks that the giving of Bosnia and Herzegovina to Austria makes her the enemy of Russia, which seems singular, in view of the fact that this was one of the inducements that Russia held out some time ago to the Hapsburgs, provided they would not interfere. As for the feeling of France in regard to Britain's change of policy, Gambetta thus reasons:—"France cannot but hail this change with gladness. Things have returned to their logical and natural course. The interests of France and England are so closely connected that the return of England to a less narrow policy rescues the two States at the same time from the temporary isolation into which they chanced to fall. It is a policy of reason, a policy of defense, and good results for every one, without danger to any, will come from this new state of things."

Our Washington Letter.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 31, 1878.

Political interest has vanished from our midst, except that in connection with the Congressional campaign. Headquarters for the different parties have been chosen, clerks engaged, and campaign literature is being sent out to all quarters. The Democrats are taking it easy, feeling so sure of a Democratic House next Congress as to see no necessity for much action in the matter. On the other hand, the Republicans are uncommonly active. They have secured commodious headquarters, centrally located, and there their clerks sit, early and late. Although that party cannot hope at all for the control of the next House, yet they do hope, by means of hard work and a vigorous campaign, to keep down the Democratic majority to where it will be of little value except for the securing of the organization of the next House and the prize of the national party is not despairing. Regular meetings are held in the city and Dennis Kearney's trip East is giving the laborers' movement fresh impetus. This Kearney, by the way, is a singular man to be a leader of any powerful movement such as this bids fair to be. He is no doubt a man of great nerve and magnetic attraction, but he is utterly unlearned and rough. His mother is a well preserved old Irish woman, living comfortably in Brighton (where Dennis is now visiting her), having come over from Ireland a few years since, Of his four brothers, Michael is a tailor, Patrick a blacksmith, Jerry a sailor and Daniel a drayman. The President intends visiting Cape May the coming month. Long Branch was Gen. Grant's favorite watering place, but the present incumbent of the White House intends making his own foot prints rather than following in those of his predecessor's, even in so small a particular as the selection of a summer resting place.

The silver dollars, so longed for and fought for, are already getting to be an elephant on the hands of the Treasury people. There are eight millions now in the vaults, and the mints are still turning them out by daily thousands. Sec. Sherman has offered to exchange them for greenbacks, and twenty responding banks have received him of three or four hundred thousand of his dollar pieces, but that is only a drop from the bucketful lying in the way. There is serious talk of sending gold and silver through the mails, as so much other stuff is sent in these days, and Mr. Sherman lately said he believes it will soon be feasible and safe to send $1,000 by mail. Should this come to pass, new systems of clerks' passes must needs be arranged; but it is scarcely probable, since such a method will fill mail cars to overflowing with four pound packages of gold and silver. That such a thing should be proposed at all, however, augurs well for long-wished for reductions in expensiveness.

The gold coin is accumulating on the Pacific coast fast (the Government now holds $7,000,000 there) that a speedy decision relative to its transportation to the East is imperative, and the Post Office department is now completing arrangements for the accomplishment of that end. The Treasury Department has a number of iron boxes, each of which will hold $50,000, and these boxes are to be forwarded to San Francisco for the transportation of the gold. The sums paid to Express Companies by the Treasury for the transportation of Government funds amounts to $300,000 a year, and should the decision be made to use the mails for the purpose, it would not be without determined opposition from Express Companies and also from the Railroads. The Railroad Companies are already protesting against carrying specie as third-class matter, on the ground that it imposes upon them additional risk and responsibility.

The Neehing Hotel transaction was one of Mr. McKeenize's most adroit pieces of jobbery. Here is a succinct history of the matter:—

Good lumber charged for (ft.) . . . . .	65,725

But, as we have remarked, Vive "Reform!"

A CORRESPONDENT writes us from Liverpool on the 15th inst., that an election between Sir John McDonald and Mr. McKeenize took place on board the Allan steamer Moravian among those passengers who had votes in Canada, on the voyage of that vessel from Quebec to Liverpool. Dr. Andrew Smith, V. S., of Toronto, worked for the Government, and Mr. Gordon, of Fergus, for Sir John McDonald. Mr. T. D. Watson was returning officer. The poll was opened at two o'clock and closed at four o'clock on Saturday, the 13th, with this result:—

Sir John McDonald . . . . .	74
Mr. McKeenize . . . . .	55
Opposition majority . . . . .	19

Our correspondent adds: "After the returning officer had declared the result, rousing cheers were given for Sir John, and many were the expressions of hope that a like result would follow the Dominion elections."—Mail.

JUNIUS wrote:—"The ruin or prosperity of a State depends so much upon the administration of its Government that to be acquainted with the merit of a Ministry we need only observe the condition of the people. * * * If we see a universal spirit of distrust and dissatisfaction, a rapid decay of trade * * * we may pronounce without hesitation that the Government of that country is weak, distracted and corrupt."

ROSS AGAIN TO MEET HANLON.—Wallace Ross, believing that he can outrow Hanlan, and that he would have defeated him on Wednesday had it not been for the accident, will measure oars with the Toronto champion at the regatta at Barrie, Ont., on the 12th inst. Eph Morris of Pittsburg and Frenchy Johnston will also take part in the regatta. The result will be anxiously looked for.
