A Country Garden
 is wonderful what can be done with potted plants and whenever company is expected and I struggle around with kegs of Nasturtium or large Geraniums, it reminds me of what Beverly Nicholls writes in his garden book "Down the Garden Path". Certainly some extra potted plants with colorful blooms can help when some corner of the garden needs them to make it more attractive.

In September when the garden is beginning to look old and worn, like humans it is possible to trim them up with mowing, and trying to be especially neat around the edges; all withered stems must be cut off immediately. In a large garden this is a busy task at this season of the year. But it is a pleasant task on a sunny morning after a cool night when the flowers are so fresh and lovely. The mornings now are sunny and warm then if at all possible. It is wise to enjoy every moment now in the garden as too soon it will be necessary to be indoors. So many tasks can be done. Pot up anything that will be fragrant and lovely for winter blooming if you will have room for it. Fragrant Stocks that were very late with me this year have been potted up and will stay out until as late as possible then brought indoors gradually. I like them very much they are so fragrant. Small Geraniums and Puschias have also been gathered together as they were rooted in sand under some shrubs.

Bulbs should be ordered right away and send for the list to the Memorial Nursery. If some of your last year's bulbs were heeled in, in an out of the way corner, try to find them and gather them in paper bags for replanting.

This is the season for the exchanging of fruits and vegetables. You may give away some apples and others will bring you fresh corn on the cob, or perhaps a large bouquet of fragrant Sweet Peas. It is a good habit for country folk to encourage.

There are many flowers in the garden that are now blooming out of season. The Foxglove blooms were cut down immediately after flowering and now are covered with lovely cream and rose colored flowers. Many perennials reward us in this way.

The wallflowers that were sown in early spring have been blooming for weeks, so fragrant and lovely! scent transports one instantly into the gorgeous sunlight of an old fashioned garden, and one sees not only the wallflowers but the lilacs in full bloom, the peonies and lady's love, the flowering currants comprise the elements of many scents in their petals, even rose and violet scents, and possibly this accounts to some extent for the sensation they give that one is enjoying a garden full of flowers. But there is something in the scent of wallflowers beyond anything for which science can account.

In very early days they were introduced into our gardens from the south of Europe, where they are native. In the sixteenth century they were used in medicine and were valued for that quality as well as their beauty and fragrance and comfort to those in sickness.

So in this September month there is much beauty and fragrance.

West Still Awaiting Dry Warm Weather

WINNIPEG, Man., Sept. 11 — The West is still urgently waiting for good dry warm weather, as it has for the past month, to mature all crops still standing or to permit of combining or threshing crops already in swath or in stock. The latter are much in the minority in Saskatchewan, Alberta and Northern Manitoba. Only two or three bright days occurred during the week and rains were quite general, holding up operations everywhere and making fields generally too soft to carry machinery, according to the weekly crop report of the Department of Agriculture of the Canadian National railways.

In the Peace River, considerable barley and rye have been swathed north and west of High Prairie. East of that point wet cool weather prevailed. Harvesting should be general in a week to ten days. No frost damage has occurred to date.

The Okanagan Valley had occasional light showers. Mixed crops of fruit and vegetables are moving in quite heavy volume. The bulk of the fruit being plums, Bartlett pears and crabapples. Peaches and prunes are also moving in volume. The peach movement will continue for about two more weeks.

TOKYO (AP)—A typhoon with a 600-mile front sent powerful advance winds and rain onto southern Japan today, raising fears it may cause the greatest damage in years if it fails to curve off into the sea.

Cancer Second As Cause Of Deaths

During the month of September the Canadian Cancer Society invites us to get into the cancer fight with our dollars. Since 1938 the Society, which is sponsored by the Canadian Medical Association, has been conducting a vigorous cancer control campaign featuring two main points: (1) Public education concerning the nature of cancer and the importance of early diagnosis and treatment. (2) Research to discover the cause and a possible cure for cancer.

The Society's research program is conducted to a large extent through the affiliated professional organization, the National Cancer Institute of Canada. The Institute is made up of professional men and women representing all organizations in Canada interested in the cancer control problem, including the National Research Council. As a result of its work cancer research in Canada has developed over the past seven years into an energetic program including over 75 separate projects in universities and hospitals across the country.

Recent public opinion polls have indicated that a large majority of Canadian consider cancer control to be our most urgent medical problem and the one most deserving of public support.

The cancer campaign is of interest to us all. Cancer ranks second as a cause of all deaths in Canada and first with women between the ages of thirty and sixty. The cancer fight is everybody's fight.
