A SERIOUS LOSS.—The Halifax Presbyterian College board had 30 shares in the Union Bank at St. John's, Nfld., which at par were worth $3,000. Owing to the failure of the Union Bank, the college board loses not only that amount of $3,000, but may be called upon for $3,000 more under the double liability of shareholders. ASSAULT AND ROBBERY.—Last night, about half-past ten o'clock, a countryman named Patrick Doyle, belonging to Millvale, was enticed into a yard on Eaton Street by another man, who said liquor could be obtained there. When the two got in the yard Doyle opened his purse to give his companion money to pay for the liquor, and the latter snatched the notes in the purse—some $27 in all—and tried to escape with them. The countryman chased him around the yard and captured him as he was in the act of scaling the fence. Then a struggle took place between the two, during which the would-be robber struck the countryman about the head with a knife or similar instrument, inflicting wounds which necessitated medical attendance. Before the countryman's assailant escaped, which he finally did, he dropped the notes he had taken from the countryman near the fence, where they were subsequently picked up.

PENNY READINGS.—The thanks of the Penny Reading Committee are due the ladies and gentlemen who so readily and so charmingly took part in Thursday's concert. Those who were present are listed in their praises of the entertainment. When it is remembered that in addition to the packed meeting in the Methodist Church, the Kirk social and several other social attractions that charmed on that evening, there was also a full house at the Lyceum lecture—the house the programme drew is strong testimony to the popularity of the performers. On the occasion Mr. C. P. Fletcher placed one of his excellent pianos at the disposal of the committee, who take this opportunity of thanking that gentleman for courtesies extended.

EVANGELISTIC MEETINGS, FRIDAY EVENING.

An immense congregation assembled last night to hear the popular evangelists in the First Methodist Church. Extra seats had to be placed in the aisles and some were standing during the service. Mr. Crossley sang the Scotch song "The Land of the Leal or the Land of Blessing" with great effect.

Despite the fact that Mr. Hunter complained of hoarseness and affected throat, he was able to strike out in a bold manner against the sins of everyday life. He was not often affected in the throat, but like other people sometimes in the head and the heart. His address on Math. xix. 16 and following verses dealt with the young ruler and brought out many practical lessons for young and old. "My, if our lives were squared by the ten commandments what a very different world we would have." That shall do no murder. Spell the word backwards and you will read the cause of many murders—"red rum." Thou shalt not steal. You may not have stolen money from a man's pocket, but he who steals from a man's still lives and prays for him. "Nothing is too good for her. I don't want her to die, but I want her to have a heaven here."

Some fathers are foolish enough to sign away their property to the children, and then the boy will marry a wine-powdered, high-flyer, and then they have no room for the old folks. Your parents took care of you when you were nothing but a crows, a crawling, disagreeable baby; take care of the old folk. "Love thy neighbor as thyself." This is the hardest thing to do. There are some people you cannot help loving; there are others you can not love. God does not expect that I can love that my neighbor? The one who is kind to me. I cannot love the man who deals out distilled damnation to my boy, and ruins him, body and soul, and breaks my heart. God does not expect that I can love that man. "Go and sell all thou hast and give to the poor." Now, are you ready for this test? I do not believe Jesus wanted this young man to give up his wealth entirely, but it was a testing time with him, and as he loved his wealth more than his soul, Jesus tested him and commanded the giving up of the world. This test may come to us some day.

1. This was a young man. It is good thing to be young, but it is a testing time of youth—smoking, drinking, profanity. 2. He was a rich man. It is a dangerous thing to be rich, a great misfortune to have wealth. 3. He was a reverent young man. Don't insult God Almighty by your irreverence. 4. He was moral, inquiring, lovable. But he went away from Christ, from happiness, to his riches, his former life, to the care. Only by hearing can you fully appreciate Mr. Hunter's powerful addresses. A diat by Mr. Crossley and Miss Collings on "The glad message," was much enjoyed. After reading a large number of requests for prayer, Mr. Crossley addressed the young men and women. He took two texts, "Speak to that young man," and "We sat down and talked with the women." He would lay down a few maxims for the young, and they would not be out of the way for the old also. (1) Be a consistent Christian, and in order to be this you must take Christ as your personal Saviour. (2) Confess Christ. Rom. x says: "With the mouth confession is made unto Salvation." Confess Him everywhere, in private, in public, live His life. (3) Be exemplary. James speaks of being "unspeotted by the world." Now, to think of what it means to be spotted by the world, you can form an idea what it means to be unspeotted from the world. (4) Pray to those by whom you are surrounded that a Christian life is the happiest life of all. "The oil of joy" means the concentrated essence of joy. One day of Christian joy is worth three years of earthly pleasure. (5) Have a high moral standard. Don't have one standard for men and another for women. His remarks on this point were very excellent. He showed how a man of bad moral character, because he had gold chains and rings, and a little cash to jingle in his pocket, was welcomed into homes and could ask the hand of the purest daughter of the family, when a bad woman would be driven from the country. You would ask the prayers of the church if a lewd woman was here, but lewd men are here every night and you take no notice of the fact. He showed how a man could do many wrong things, which if a woman does she would be scorned and despised. Have only one standard of morals and make it as hard for a man to go down as a won an as easy for a woman to rise as a man. Live for eternity, only two things are required to become a Christian, common sense and five minutes reflection. Come to Jesus and give Him your love, and He will keep you all through life. The after-meeting was largely attended and a great number decided for a better life. The Rev. Mr. George spoke of the great work done by the evangelists at Belleville, Ont., when he was there; he asked the people to give their sympathy and aid to this work.

GOLDEN LINKS IN THE CHAIN OF DISCOURSE.

Some people you cannot help loving and some are so shriveled up you would think a good strong wind would blow them away.

If you steal my purse from my pocket you don't get much, but if you steal my character you steal my all.

"Go and sell all." How many are ready to say, "Here, Lord, is all I have, my money and everything; take it and make me thine?"

A young man has as much right to smoke and chew and expectorate, or drink liquor as the young man, and we excuse the man and condemn the woman.

We have got the woman a chance to recover her character and be saved. I have seen the fallen woman struggling through the waters, and reaching the rock crying "help me," when a hard heel had crushed her back again—she was but a woman.

LECTURE ON TEMPERANCE.

The Rev. J. H. Hector comes to this city accredited as a first-class temperance lecturer. Mr. Hector is a minister of the Methodist Episcopal Church of the United States and a self-made man.

It is said that as a public speaker Mr. Hector is very amusing as well as effective. In truth there is a good deal of drollery in his countenance. We have no doubt that he will attract a large crowd of the boys to the Opera House this evening, and we sincerely hope that his lecture will cause many a young man to put his foot down when tempted to partake of the intoxicating cup in which there is so much danger.

HE FEELS LIKE A NEW MAN TO-DAY.

Mr. John Robar, of Isaac's Harbor, N. S., gladly states for the benefit of others: "Prussian Oil has cured me of rheumatism in my back, from which I have suffered terribly for years, and have not been able to stand up straight for months at a time. It has also cured me of a dizziness in my head, which had troubled me for a long time, by giving it freely internally, and I feel like a new man to-day. I really believe there is no medicine equal to it in this country for both inward and outward application—it cures so quickly and surely."
