

could have checked the row. I did not see any firing. I noticed no revolvers pointed out of the window. I heard the reports. I had not time to look at any body particularly. While in the Lodge I heard no threats. I knew nobody I saw in the Lodge with the exception of Stewart the baker, and Archibald Ramsay. I saw Thomas McCloskey throwing stones. I saw Owen McCloskey there. He had hold of his brother trying to make him go home. He was doing all in his power to try and make them behave themselves. He assisted me in trying to take away the ladder. I saw Patrick Brennan. He tried to keep the crowd back from me. He appeared to be excited. He was not acting as one of the rioters at that time. The flag, when lowered, came too handy the platform and the crowd rushed at it. The magistrate and I rushed in and the magistrate said "don't touch that flag, don't you attempt to touch it," or words to that effect. Saw him have hold of the rope trying to take it from the crowd. I went in to help. Somebody said, "take the flag," and his Honor said "if you take that flag you will take it over my body," or some words to that effect. Got the flag away from the crowd and it was handed up into the Lodge-room window. It was a few minutes after that I saw Mr. Brennan in the crowd, with his head bleeding. I did not see Wm. McDonald in the crowd. I only saw Thomas McCloskey throw one stone. His brother took him out of the crowd. That was immediately after he fired the first stone. I did not speak to Angus McDonald in the crowd.

POLICEMAN ALEXANDER CAMPBELL SWORN—To Mr. Hazzard—Went to the door of the Lodge after the procession had gone up. I am an Orangeman. The first I saw was a kind of a muss on the street. I saw McKenzie going from the hall into the crowd. He seemed to be peaceably disposed when he came out. He went into the crowd quite cool. He was met by the crowd. I saw him getting struck. His mouth was bleeding. I cannot tell who struck him. Then there was a shot fired. There were no stones thrown until the first shot was fired. I cannot tell where the first shot came from. Next there were some stones fired. There were five or six stones then fired at the hall. I heard the windows break. Then there were several shots fired. They were fired from the Lodge. Then the word was "down with the flag". There were more stones fired. They were talking about getting down the flag. The crowd rushed into the yard and got the ladder. I caught hold of the ladder, and with help of others, threw it over a fence. There was another ladder lying in Quick's yard, and Michael Sweeney said "let us take this ladder and put it away in case they come back and take it." I got struck in the yard on the back of the head with a stone. Then the Magistrate came. There were four or five volleys of stoned fired altogether. I identify Thomas McCloskey, Thomas Smith, Owen McCloskey, John Thornton and Francis McGuigan as being the only parties I saw throwing stones. I also saw Nicholas Collins, Gerald Sweeney, Patk. McKenna, Martin Carroll, James Carroll, Francis McAdam, Alexander McCabe, Michael Dooley, Thomas Butler, Patrick Brennan and Angus McDonald in the crowd, but not throwing stones. They all seemed to be pretty wild—pretty excited. I tried my best to quiet them. I got hit with a stone. It did not knock me down, I then went away. I cannot swear to any of the parties that caught hold of the flag at dark. To Mr. Bayfield—I was standing close to the Orange Hall when the first shot was fired. I neither saw the flag nor smoke. I got struck with a stone. It caused a cut nose, black eye and swelled cheek. I saw there John McKenzie, Daniel Stewart, William, McLean, Thomas Wheatley and Richard Keating. They were in the procession. I heard shots fired. To the best of my knowledge this came from the Orange Lodge. I saw Patrick McGuigan firing stones. I made a mistake when I said Francis McGuigan. I saw James Carroll there. I did not see him doing anything improper. Saw Alex. McCabe. He was pretty wild. He was shouting. I did not hear what McCabe said. I heard him calling to take down the flag. I did not see Michael Dooling do anything. I heard Dooling say: "Why the hell don't they take down the flag and be done with it?" Thomas Butler was there. He was shouting to take down the flag. Patk. Brennan was not doing anything more. He was shouting: "Take down the flag." I did not see Angus McDonald doing much. He was walking round the crowd pretty smart. I saw Thornton there. He was firing stones. I saw him firing five or six stones. I only saw Tom Smith firing two stones. I saw Owen McCloskey firing one.

Mr. Hazzard here announced that he closed for the prosecution.

Mr. Bayfield understood His Honor to say that he would not try any case of assault arising out of this prosecution. He believed the matter actually for investigation was: "Whether this disturbance constituted a riot or not." His Honor would be pleased to express his opinion that there was sufficient evidence to send the case to the Supreme Court, by fixing and taking the usual securities, he could only say that, in such event, on behalf of his clients, he would not call any witnesses for the defence, but would leave that until the next sitting of the Supreme Court, in January, as His Honor had already expressed his intention to send the prisoners there for trial, provided a prima facie case was made on behalf of the Crown?

The Court stated that—anticipating this view of the matter—he went, last night carefully over the evidence. He went pretty fully into an exposition of the law bearing on the subject; his own powers a Magistrate; the impropriety and even the impossibility of his trying and sitting in judgment on cases in connection with which he was an actual witness. He would carefully view the further evidence and consider all more fully. But he felt that, as far as those were concerned who would probably be proven to have been engaged in an unseemly disturbance, it would be much better and more satisfactory, not only to the accused themselves, but to their friends and to the public, that the whole matter should be thoroughly sifted and ventilated before a jury of their countrymen, who would be fully divested of any prejudices or personal feelings in the matter; and with the further advantage that, as so long a period will elapse before the January term of the Supreme Court, the state of personal, as well as public feeling—now somewhat excited—and perhaps unreasonably biased—would be much allayed and cooled down, thereby affording a better opportunity for the calmest consideration of the entire proceedings.

Mr. Bayfield then intimated to the Court that it was not his intention, after consideration of the matter, to call more than a few of the witnesses for the defence, and only for the reason that the Judges of the Supreme Court might hereafter be better informed as to the amount of the bail to be accepted.

ELIZA MCKINNON SWORN—To Mr. Bayfield: I have a son called Malcolm. He came home to tea at 6 o'clock on Thursday evening. Thought he was "taking something." I said to him, "You'd better go lie down." He went and laid down on the grass opposite the door. I told Hannah Jane Williams to go and take him in to her house, one door from where I lived. He went in with her and lay down upon a stretcher. I did not lose sight of him till he went asleep. At that time it was about 8 o'clock. He stayed in that place till 5 o'clock in the morning. To Mr. Hazzard: The evening I speak of was the 12th of July. My reason for being afraid was that my son was "taking a drop or two," and I thought he would get into trouble. He is very seldom out at night. He went into the kitchen. He went in about half-past six or a quarter to seven. It was about a quarter of an hour after this. I remained in Mrs. Williams' house till it was about eight o'clock. When I left there I went into my own house and washed the dishes. I suppose I was a quarter of an hour washing the dishes. While I was washing the dishes—after I washed the tea cups—I went into the house where the rest were. I then came into my own house. Then I went up the street a while. I might be a half an hour out. When I came home I put the children to bed and went into Mrs. Williams and saw my son there. I swear that my son was not at the row that night.

HANNAH JANE WILLIAMS, SWORN—I saw Malcolm McKinnon on Thursday evening between 6 and 7 o'clock, lying on the grass opposite his own house. At the request of his mother I took him into where I live and made him a bed on a chest. He did not leave the box on which I laid him to sleep until I went to bed, at 11 o'clock. I was down two or three times through the night and he was still sleeping. He did not leave the house till between 4 and 5 o'clock in the evening. To Mr. Hazzard—I saw nothing about the row that evening. My mother lives in the house with me. I did not leave the house that evening. I did not go out of the house after I took him in. He was not very drunk. I swear he never went out of the house till between 4 and 5 in the morning.

MRS. WILLIAMS, SWORN—I remember seeing young McKinnon on Thursday. I saw him a little after six. He was a little "on the beer." My daughter took him in about half-past 6. He laid down on a seat. He was lying on a seat when I came in at about twenty minutes to 7. The prisoner McKinnon did not leave the room from that time till five in the morning. He was fast asleep. Went down stairs three times during the night and he was there. He left my house between 4 and 5 in the morning. He could not get out as the keys were on a table in my bed-room. To Mr. Hazzard—My daughter was not in the room the whole time. She was in at McKinnon's mother's for about five minutes one time. Did not miss her out till she was in again. I swear McKinnon did not leave my house till between 4 and 5 o'clock next morning. I heard him say: "Why don't you pull down that flag and be done with it?" Thos. Butler was also calling to take down the flag." All I saw Angus McDonald do was going about the crowd excitedly. Saw Thornton throw five or six stones. Smith threw one or two. Saw Owen McCloskey only throw one.

QUEBEC.

To the Editor of the Daily Examiner.

Sir,—Can you inform me the reason Orangemen observe the 12th of July, seeing that the Battle of the Boyne was fought July 1st, 1690? Yours, etc.,

Ch'town, July 18, 1877.

To the Editor of the Daily Examiner:

DEAR SIR,—A paragraph in your paper of this morning, copied from the Argus, relating to a communicated article in the last number of the Herald, headed "Heard of Union Bank," contains an omission and a mis-statement which any one who has read the article in question can easily see. In the Herald the duties of both Cashier and Directors were defined, and not the duties of the latter only, as was implied by the paragraph in the Argus. The writer of the communicated article did not eulogize the conduct of the Bank generally, but merely stated that "the Union Bank under its present management, could compare favorably with any Bank in the Dominion," etc., leaving the public to judge whether either the Cashier or Directors fulfilled their respective duties in the past. Hoping that you will find space for this in your valuable paper, I remain,

Yours, etc.,

St. JOHN RELIEF FUND—Yesterday, Mr. Williams, the Railway Accountant, transmitted to Mayor Earle, St. John, a draft for $62 45—the balance of the railway employees' contributions for the relief of the sufferers by the fire. With the $700 previously remitted, this makes quite a handsome subscription from our small railway.

ELLIOTT RECOVERING.

A MONUMENT TO HACKETT

Enthusiastic Reception to Orangemen.

Mysterious Death—Flour.

[Special Dispatch to Daily Examiner.]

MONTEAL, July 18.

There is great excitement over the man who shot Elliott at the Bridge. His name has been discovered and the detectives are now on his track.

Elliott is recovering. He is not dangerously wounded.

The Coroner's Jury has acquitted Fitzpatrick, the soldier, who fatally stabbed McKeown.

A monument is to be erected over Hackett's grave.

An effort is now being made to legislate for the prohibition of all processions. The Irish swear revenge next year.

The Orangemen, on returning from Montreal, were enthusiastically received at Kingston and Ottawa.

A corpse was found in the bed of an Ottawa hotel. There is yet no clue to the cause of death.

WAR DESPACHES.

The Crossing of the Balkans

A "Holy War" Demanded.

[Special Dispatch to Daily Examiner.]

LONDON, July 18.

A Russian official account of the crossing of the Balkans is published. It says the Turks were weak in force and were taken by surprise.

The Standard's Vienna special reports that at Constantinople the Sofias have demanded the standard of the Prophet to be raised for a holy war, but the Porte has postponed this extreme step until the Russians are nearer Constantinople.

Telegraphic News.

THE WAR.

LONDON, July 16.

A dispatch from Constantinople confirms the report that the Russians, who number fifteen, not eighteen, battalions, have crossed the mountains through Tivardicka Pass. This passage is supposed to be a feint to withdraw the Turks from Schipka Pass.

An Adrianople telegram, while denying that the Russians have occupied Eski, Saghra, or Kasinik, says they are waiting reinforcements before advancing further. Some skirmishes occurred.

A St. Petersburg despatch says a large contingent of the Russian army is marching on Balkans. The news of crossing the Balkans has evidently caused great excitement in Constantinople. A telegram from that city says the Turkish newspapers urge the inhabitants to form volunteer corps, as the enemy is at their gates. The work on the fortifications is being carried out with great activity. In the Turkish quarter there is a general impression that foreign powers will interfere.

Two Turkish monitors destroyed the bridge at Sistova, one monitor was afterwards sunk by torpedoes.

Russian garrison of Bayazid, when relieved, were reduced to last extremities. Five hundred of the garrison of fifteen hundred killed and wounded, lived on horse-flesh for a long time. Turks are receiving large reinforcements. Russians evacuated Ploed, but were followed by the former, who defeated them with a loss to the Russians of 200 men. This is confirmatory of former despatches. In European Turkey another despatch says: Great battle fought at Febditch, and Russians met with a decided check, being driven back into the Balkans pass, twelve miles from Jendi Saghra.
