MARY HAWORTH
Critic of Gift Giver
Herself Lacks Delicacy

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Please let us know if it is correct for a girl to give a steady boy friend a V-neck pullover sweater as a birthday or Christmas present.

My daughter has been made to feel very brazen by her girl friend's mother for giving such a gift to her beau, to whom she expects to be married this December. They've been going together for four years.

The gift was part of a "him-and-her" ski sweater set. My daughter kept the "her" sweater and gave him the other. Her critic Mrs. X. said that any book of etiquette would tell her that the gift was "entirely to personal." What do you think E. G.

DEAR E. G.: According to straitlaced upperclass social tradition, more or less honored by past generations, it was considered inappropriate for a lady or gentleman to give one another maintenance-type gifts, such as money or clothing, aside from such small accessories as gloves, purses, scarves, handkerchiefs or the like.

For the rank and file of humankind, however, custom usage at a given time and place in history is also considered a reputable guide to "acceptable" social behavior.

Thus your daughter's critic

ELLEN'S DIARY

The Beauty Of Autumn Is Beyond Description

The color show smartly now the autumn hues catch and spread! If we were an artist... but no matter how gifted in that direction, still frustrated, all in all, we think we should be. So many different shadings there are, so varied the face of the countryside, as the sun moves across the sky and the autumn's cloud-banks roll. And how can we describe it? What words can do justice to the beauty of the bright old maple in the barnyard, or the sheer grace, and golden loveliness of a wide-spread white birch, set against billowing white cloud, or the azure of sky? How then can we describe the extent of trees and shrubs in the woodland across the road? Or the fencerows and groves decorating the rises of valley, Or the acres that in upland places reach far away? They are beautiful indeed, we say, and know that this is but "faint praise." We have the charm of season, we farm-folks. From windows, in yards and all about. Mornings in the breath of dawn and the sun's first smile. Noons when the day is brightest. And at evening in the benediction time, when its peace commences with the twilight to envelop our world.

A stem breaks and we see a leaf drift away. And invariably we are a little sad. "Let us be done with the stale convention of autumnal sorrow" a writer suggests. "Life among the leaves goes down with all its flags flying, its fites playing, and all its drums beating." Another says, "Walk the open fields now, and yesterday is all around you, last spring's growth, last summer's maturity, and last month's ripeness. But tomorrow is there too - the sprout, the leaf, the blossom, waiting only for another spring. . . We think of this as the evening of the year; but after dusk comes starlight, a dawn, and another day."

This evening brought the last of the season's reapings in fields of the name, in a patch, as it happened, on this farm. We saw and heard it, the sound of the combine, mingled with others, falling gently into our valley, when we climbed to an upland fencerow where scarlet-skinned crab-apples grow. And a last load of grain, the little truck brought in to a granary. But not yet does this write "The End" to our harvesting. There remains yet, the baling and saving of straw. . .

Lamb chops, we dined on at noon. And a choice of vegetables, now that there are so many. And a spiced relish. And for dessert, apple dumplings, sugared and creamed.

"It's a long time, Ellen, since we ate apple dumplings. Did my mother make them like this?" James queried.

"She should!" "I thought so," he smiled. "She was a good cook. Now, I'd like to beat, in her day. Her shortbread. . . and pastry, and

Wedding Vows Are Exchanged In Bedeque

The Rev. R. M. Cameron, Bedeque, officiated at the double ring ceremony in Princetown United Church when Marilyn Carruthers, Hamilton, P. E. I., was united in marriage with Percy Affleck, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thorne Affleck, Lower Bedeque. The Church was decorated with baskets of pink and white phlox and baby's breath.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a long white peau de soie gown with Empire waist, lily point sleeves of lace, and a full overskirt of nylon sheer. Her shoulder length veil fell from a crown of pearls. She carried a bouquet of pink and yellow roses.

The bride's sister, Linda Carruthers was maid of honour, and the bridesmaids were Florence Cousins and Jayne Moriarty. All three attendants wore street length gowns of peau de soie in blue, green and yellow. The flower girl Jane Rogerson wore a rose gown trimmed with white lace. Their headdresses were white wedding rings with short white veils, and they carried nosegays of carnations tinted to match their gowns.

Melvin Affleck was his brother's best man and Carl Wright, and James Carruthers, brother of the bride, ushered.

A reception was held in the Memorial Room of the Church, at which Mr. Cameron asked the blessing and proposed the toast to the bride. Melvin Affleck was master of ceremonies. Diane Rayner circulated the guest book.

For a honeymoon trip to the Cabot Trail and Newfoundland, the bride wore a coral wool suit with brown hat and accessories and a corsage of coral and white carnations.

Mr. and Mrs. Affleck are residing in Lower Bedeque where Mr. Affleck is engaged in farming.

Housework Made Simpler By Many-Use Plastics

NEW YORK (UPI)—"V" is for victory in the battle against household drudgery. It is the first letter of some space age plastics that are revolutionizing North American home life.

One of the most widely used is vinyl, which is best known as a flooring. No need to wax its tile, says the nation's leading manufacturer. (You don't have to wax it either). Result—easy maintenance.

No need to wax, sand, putty or paint either, the new vinyl wall surfacing materials. As with the floors, wash them lightly with soap and water.

Tired of the old color? Rip off the wall covering and replace with new, bright colors. Almost as easy as painting, often as easy on the pocket-book.

Vinyl also serves on countertops—no joints or grout lines to crack, flake or smudge—smooth, textured or sculptured surfaces that don't pit, peel or stain from common household acids. You can put it right on over many old materials, save major remodeling expenses.

Decorative vinyls also serve as the surface of electrical ceiling heating panels that eliminate unsightly furnaces, registers and ducts. A grid of electric heating wires is embedded in the vinyl sandwich, forming the ceiling panel. The panels can be used in conjunction with, or in place of other ceiling materials. With them, you have no smoke, no soot, in your home.

Vinyl serves in many other ways, such as a moisture vapor barrier on building insulation, furniture slip covers, dinette upholstery, shower and window curtains, air mattresses for camping, children's toys and even as thin, plastic films to wrap meats and vegetables.

The vinyl business is basically a story of the period after the Second World War. In the early years following the war, plastics in their developmental stages were met with considerable skepticism.

Now, however, they follow North American life from the cradle to the grave—from baby pants to cemetery ground coverings and canopies. They go with astronauts into space, and with scientists to the depths of the sea.

MONTAGUE

John B. Clarye and daughter Marie of Borden, Mass., recently attended the funeral of his father, John Clarye Sr., of Montague.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Anderson of Attleboro, Mass., are visiting at Lower Montague, guests of Mrs. Anderson's sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. John T. Landrigan.

Mrs. Irving Slauwhite, Halifax, N. S., spent a few days at Lower Montague, recently, a guest of her sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Graham.

Mr. and Mrs. John Deane, Lexington, Mass., and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wilson, Woburn, Mass., attended the Nicholson-MacDonald wedding last week at Spring Park Church, Charlottetown.

Morell CWL Discusses Regional Meet

The St. Teresa Parish Council of CWL held their September meeting in the vestry with a large number of members present.

In the absence of the president Mrs. Jack MacDonald, the vice president, Mrs. Cecil McCarthy chaired the meeting. Spiritual director Rev. T. B. Butler opened the meeting with prayer. Following routine business, it was announced the annual regional conference of CWL (King's Co) would be held in Morell, Oct. 23. A committee was named to take care of all arrangements for the conference. The treasurer reported the sum of $570 in the bank. It was decided on motion to donate $500 to the parish building fund. Rev. T. B. Butler, gave an informative talk on a teaching of catechism and announced changes to be made for the coming year in that Grades 111 to VIII would have classes each Sunday at 2 p. m. He asked for the co-operation of all parents in securing teachers for these classes. The meeting closed with prayer.

An executive meeting was held Wednesday Sept. 14th at the home of Mrs. Alphonsus Kelly at which time all current business received attention.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Turn cakes upside down and frost the bottom. It is smoother and ices better.

Line the roasting pan with heavy duty aluminum foil and you won't have a scouring job to do when it's time to clean it.

If a little vinegar or lemon juice is added to the water in which you poach fish, the fish will be sweeter, flakier and will hold its shape better.

To keep a hard crust from forming on bread or rolls, brush with melted butter as soon as removed from oven.

District Nurse Addresses Darlington WI

The members of the Darlington institute were guests of the North Wiltshire Women's Institute at the September meeting, when the guest speaker was Mrs. Norman MacRae, Glasgow Road district nurse.

The president, welcomed the guests and Mrs. MacRae, and the meeting opened with singing "Silver Threads Among The Gold". Roll call was answered by 13 members and nine guests and the usual business was carried on, with the reports of various committees being given.

The afternoon tea held Sept. 3 very successful, the sum of $128.00 being realized. Much credit is due the committee in charge and those who assisted. It was decided to purchase three copies of F. H. MacArthur's book "Legends of P. E. I."—one copy for each school room and one for the institute.

Mrs. MacRae then distributed literature and gave an interesting and instructive talk on Home Care which was much appreciated by all present. The president on the behalf of the members expressed their appreciation to the speaker and Mrs. Lloyd MacPherson presented her with a gift.

The meeting closed with singing "The More We Get Together". The October meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Frank Mitchell. Roll call will be answered with a penny for each letter of the birthplace of each member.

The refreshment committee will be Mrs. Bruce Deacon and Mrs. Lowell Balderston.
