

Quebec PC Party Head Is Angered By Agenda

By CLAUDE HENAUULT
QUEBEC (CP)—Paul Trepanier, president of the Quebec Progressive Conservative Association, said during the week-end that Quebec Conservatives are angry and insulted at the agenda prepared for the party's annual meeting in Ottawa.

They will move that the agenda be scrapped and replaced by one allowing more time for general discussions, Mr. Trepanier told a news conference after a meeting of the association executive.

The Quebec Conservative leader also complained that the agenda was sent to the party's Quebec officials in English only.

Mr. Trepanier said the Quebec executive was unanimous in rejecting the proposed agenda. Reasons for this was that too much time was taken up by separate committee meetings as an attempt to restrict free speech.

ACCUSES EXECUTIVE
 "They (the national executive) want to prevent delegates from expressing themselves and I accuse those who drew up the agenda of this."

He also complained that he had received the agenda for the meeting, scheduled for Nov. 18-19, only Saturday.

Theme of the meeting is "A Practical Policy for Canada."

He said he was writing to those who had prepared the agenda "to protest in the name of the Conservative party of Quebec against the agenda and in addition I will tell them that the members of our delegation will present a resolution at the meeting to reject the agenda and will propose another."

He said the agenda allowed for only one hour of real discussion in general meeting on the last day.

WANT VIEWS IN OPEN
 What Quebec wanted was a general assembly the first day at which all views could be expressed. Specific points then could be thrashed out in committees and the conclusions brought to the general assembly on the last day.

Aims of the Quebec delegation were to press for a re-writing of the British North America Act and "to explain, especially to English-speaking Canadians, the need for re-organizing the party to give French-Canadians the same representation as others."

"French-Canadian action in political parties is the last chance for the Canadian Confederation. If you can't be equal in political parties, how can you be equal across Canada?"

Mr. Trepanier was elected president of the Quebec wing a month ago, on a platform of party organization.

He is sending official invitations to the 36 Union Nationale members of the provincial legislature, asking them to attend the Conservative convention as voting delegates.

This gesture, permitted by the Conservative constitution, is in line with Mr. Trepanier's policy of trying to seek closer ties with the provincial Union Nationale.
