"Why Some Succeed"
The shrewd advertiser is the one who knows how, when and where to advertise.
The merchants who advertise in
THE EXAMINER
are not the men
to make mistakes,
as you can see for yourself.
But you may get the benefit of their experience by watching
how, when and where they advertise.
Some papers pay advertisers, some do not,
and they can be picked out by the large amount of advertising they do.

ABSOLUTELY PURE

KLINGLING'S AUSTRALIAN POLICY.

James F. Lyon tells the Chicago Times-Herald as follows:—
"We had in our company a young German named Schultz. His horse was his pride. Sometimes Schultz went to sleep without rationing, but his horse never. No matter how scarce or how hard it was to get forage, his horse always had an evening feed, a thorough rubbing down, a loving pat, and a 'good night.' Frank! Many a time have I seen Schultz skirmish for a lunch for his horse when we halted to make coffee, instead of preparing his lunch. While the rest of us stayed in our tents and read or played cards, Schultz would keep Frank's company for hours, sometimes talking German to him, and sometimes English. Some of our horses showed lack of care; Frank's never, and seemed so fond of his master as his master of him. When the Atlanta campaign opened in May, 1864, there was not a prouder soldier or a prouder horse than Schultz and Frank in the 1st.
"Our first fight of note in that campaign was at Varnell's Station, May 9.
Somebody never mind who made a mess of it. Our little brigade, the 2d of the 1st cavalry division, was thrown against Gen. Wheeler's entire command, and we fought it all day. We started to charge, but were halted by a piece of wire and were ordered to fight on foot. We were already under fire and in considerable confusion, and only a portion of the command heard the order, so it happened that some of us fought cavalry and some as infantry. Schultz remained mounted and did heroic service. Early in the fight his pet was shot.
As the animal made but little fuss over it and steadied down quickly his rider thought it was only a slight wound and remained in the battle all day, the wonderful animal seeming to enter into the spirit of the work as completely as his master. That night at 9 o'clock the brigade camped.
"The moment Frank was unseated he lay down. Schultz thought it was because the horse, like himself was tired, and after patting him and telling him in both languages what a splendid fellow he had been that day, and thanking him for carrying him safely through one of the hottest battles, he tucked himself with supper getting. In the forage bag were several extra ears of corn. After his own repast of black coffee, crackers and smoked white pork, such a banquet as many a soldier has been more thankful for than he was for the feast of last Thanksgiving. Schultz shelled the corn and took it to Frank. The horse did not welcome him as usual, did not rest his head on the master's shoulder, and look if he did not speak, though for such a next day he said: 'My poor Frank couldn't tell me he was badly hurt. He carried me all day as if he thought it was his duty, and when the battle was over and I was getting supper he lay down and died.'
"That horse was a better soldier than I am—that any man in the regiment.
Not one of us would have fought all day with such a hurt as that. No one would have expected it of us, yet Frank did not fall me. With this outbreak the poor fellow broke down again, and none of his comrades made light of his sorrow."
"Scott's Sarsaparilla acts like magic in restoring shattered nerves because it rebuilds the nerve centres. Nervous headache, nervous dyspepsia and all nerve derangements wear on the system.
Scott's Sarsaparilla makes new blood and muscles and strong nerves. Of all druggists, $1 per bottle. Dose: from half to one teaspoonful.
