TAMARAC

Alderman R. E. Elbeck, Kingston, Ont., says: "Tamarac Elixir" is the best medicine on earth for Coughs and Colds. In my own case it produced rapid and gratifying results. I caught a severe cold which it seemed impossible to break up, but continually became more thoroughly seated. Finally a hacking cough set in which troubled me day and night, causing soreness of the Lungs. Hearing your "Tamarac" highly recommended, I procured a bottle. The first dose eased the cough, and one bottle completely cured me. It is a splendid preparation, pleasant to the taste, and should be kept in every house.

THE PIRATE.

By Sir Walter Scott.

CHAPTER XIII.

"Flog horses, and pickle beef," said Magnus; "why, you have not the vanity to think, that, with all your quarterdeck airs, you will make her poor old neighbor Haagen ashamed that he was not killed some scores of years since? You have looked on death yourself, my doughty young friend, but it was with eyes of a young man who wishes to be thought of; but we are a peaceful people—peaceful, that is, as long as any one should be peaceful, and that is till some one has the impudence to wrong us, or our neighbors; and then, perhaps, they may not find our northern blood much cooler in our veins than was that of the old Scandinavians that gave us our names and language—let ye along, get ye along to the sword dance, that the strangers that are amongst us may see that our hands and our weapons are not altogether unacquainted even yet."

A dozen cutlasses, selected hastily from an old arm-chest, and whose rusted hue bespoke how seldom they left the sheath, armed the same number of young Zetlanders, with whom mingled six maidens, led by Minna Froil; and the maistris instantly commenced a time appropriate to the ancient Norwegian war-dance, the evolutions of which are perhaps still practised in these remote islands. The first movement was graceful and majestic, the youths holding their swords erect, and without much gesture; but the tune, and the corresponding motion of the dancers, became gradually more and more rapid,—they clashed their swords together in measured time, with a spirit which gave the exercise a dangerous appearance in the eye of the spectator, though the firmness, justice and accuracy, with which the dancers kept time with the stroke of their weapons, did, in truth, ensure its safety. The most singular part of the exhibition, was the courage exhibited by the female performers, who now, surrounded by the swordsmen, seemed like the Sabine maidens in the hands of their Roman lovers; now, moving under the arch of steel which the young men had formed, by crossing their weapons over the heads of their fair partners, resembled the band of Amazons when they first joined in the Pyrrhic dance with the followers of Theseus. But by far the most striking and appropriate figure was that of Minna Froil, whom Halero had long since entitled the Queen of Swords, and who, indeed, moved amidst the swordsmen with an air which seemed to hold all the drawn blades as the proper accompaniments of her person and the implements of her pleasure. And when the mazes of the dance became more intricate, when the close and continuous clash of the weapons made some of her companions shrink and show signs of fear, her cheek, her lip and her eye seemed rather to announce that, at the moment when the weapons flashed fastest and rung sharpest around her, she was most completely self-possessed and in her own element. Last of all, when the music had ceased, and she remained for an instant upon the floor by herself, as the rule of the dance required, the swordsmen and maidens who departed from around her seemed the guards and the train of some princess, who, dismissed by her signal, were leaving her for a time to solitude. Her own look and attitude, wrapped, as she probably was, in some vision of the imagination, corresponded admirably with the ideal dignity which the spectators ascribed to her; but, almost immediately recollecting herself, she blushed, as if conscious she had been, though but for an instant, the object of undivided attention, and gave her hand gracefully to Cleveland, who, though he had not joined in the dance, assumed the duty of conducting her to her seat.

As they passed, Mordant Merton might observe that Cleveland whispered into Minna's ear, and that her brief reply was accompanied with even more discomposure of countenance than she had manifested when encountering the gaze of the whole assembly. Mordant's suspicions were strongly awakened by what he observed, for he knew Minna's character well, and with what equanimity and indifference she was in the custom of receiving the usual compliments and gallantries with which her beauty and her situation rendered her sufficiently familiar. "Can it be possible she really loves this stranger?" was the unpleasant thought that instantly shot across Mordant's mind. "And if she does, what is my interest in the matter?" was the second; and which was quickly followed by the reflection, that though he claimed no interest at any time but as a friend, and though that interest was now withdrawn, he was still, in consideration of their former intimacy, entitled both to be sorry and angry at her for throwing away her affections on one he judged unworthy of her. In this process of reasoning, it is probable mortified vanity, or some indescribable shade of selfish regret might be endeavoring to assume the disguise of disinterested generosity; but there is so much of base alloy in our very best (unassisted) thoughts, that it is melancholy work to criticise too closely the motives of our most worthy actions; at least we would recommend to every one to let those of his neighbors pass current, however narrowly he may examine the purity of his own.

The sword-dance was succeeded by various other specimens of the same exercise, and by songs, to which the singers lent their whole soul, while the audience were sure, as occasion offered, to unite in some favorite chorus. It is upon such occasions that music, thought of in a simple and even rustic character, finds its natural empire over the generous bosom, and produces the strong excitement which cannot be attained by the most learned compositions of the first masters, which are caviare to the common ear, although, doubtless, they afford a delight, exquisite in its kind, to those whose natural capacity and education have enabled them to comprehend and relish those difficult and complicated combinations of harmony.

It was about midnight when a knocking at the door of the mansion, with the sound of the Gue and the Larghetto, announced, by their tinkling chime, the arrival of fresh revellers, to whom, according to the hospitable custom of the country, the apartments were instantly thrown open.

Boston Markets.

BOSTON, Nov. 3.
POTATOES.—Receipts for past six days, 100,000 bushels; previous six days, 88,000 bushels; for six days ending Nov. 3 last year, 92,000 bushels. Receipts continue very heavy, and the general condition of the market remains as reported a week ago. The stocks on hand consist of about 95 cars and 7 vessels, and although good stock is selling freely, the supply is so largely in excess of the demand that buyers have all the advantage and most sales are at easy prices. Only very choice lots bring full quotations. Shipments by rail, from this time on, should be made in heater or lined cars with stoves, as freezing weather may set in before the stocks already at the roads and in transit can be disposed of. We quote:—P. E. Island and Rose, per bbl., $2 to $2.25; P. E. I., N. S. and N. B., per bushel: Hebrons, 70c.; Rose, 68c.; White stock, 75c.; Chenangoes, 60c.

FISH.—Demand continues generally light and only slight changes are reported in prices. Codfish are in full supply and selling fairly. Box herring have been coming in more freely and are ruling a little lower. Pickled herring are in steady, fair demand. Receipts of mackerel are falling off, only a few coming from the shore fleet, and none of consequence from P. E. Island. N. S. 3's would bring $12, weights guaranteed. Blotlers are a little firmer, some sales at 55c. We quote: P. E. Island unculled $14; extras, $16 to $17; 1's $15; large 2's, $14; 2's $12. Canned mackerel, 1 lb. tins, labelled, per doz. $1.40. Canned lobsters, 1 lb. tins, labelled, per doz. $1.40 to $1.45.

EGGS.—Receipts for the week, 226 boxes, 146 bbls., 8,092 cases; last week, 165 boxes, 12 bbls., 7,363 cases. Demand continues very good for choice fresh stock, with prices gradually improving. Eastern extras are very scarce, and bring extreme prices. P. E. Island, N. S. and N. B. choice marks sell readily at 25c. Most of the Canadian have to be sold at 21c. P. E. Island firsts sell at from 22 to 13 cents.

Shipping Notes.

Messrs. Beer & Sprague, of Montague Bridge, have loaded five vessels already, principally for the American market, with a total of about 11,000 bushels of potatoes, 3,500 bushels of oats, and 1,000 bushels of turnips. One schooner, the Jubilee, loaded by this firm, arrived in Boston in four days, and is again loading for another trip. A number of other vessels will be loaded by this firm before the season is over.

Messrs. McDonald Bros. & Co., of Montague have shipped several large cargoes of oats, potatoes and other produce, and are still very busy.

Mr. D. G. Cameron, of Commercial Cross, has loaded at Montague Cross several vessels with potatoes, oats, &c., consigned to the American, Halifax and Newfoundland markets. A great many schooners are still being loaded at this port. The above lot of shipping is being done by other firms.

At Cardigan Bridge about 10,000 bushels of potatoes have been shipped by Mr. G. H. Holbrook, and a large amount of shipping is being done by H. L. McDonald, Esq. Several vessels are still at this place to be loaded.

At Vernon River Bridge Mr. George Forbes has sent away five or six vessels loaded with potatoes and oats for the American markets, and D. & W. McDonald have also shipped several cargoes. A number of schooners are still being loaded by the above firms.

LUCKY PEOPLE.—Mrs. Moore, of Fredericton Junction, is believed to be the heiress of an estate in the old country worth at least £150,000. William Murray, living near the York Mills, York Co., has fallen heir to a snug little fortune by the death of a rich aunt in Bincardshire, Scotland.

John Christie, another solid Scotchman of some 70 summers, in the same neighborhood, is in daily expectation of a snug fortune. He, it appears, had a son, who was in the American war and got killed. Mr. C. has presented his claim to the pension office at Washington, and it has been recognized by the authorities there.

THE TURP.—C. J. Hillson drove the mares Belle Hamlin and Justina as a team, to beat 2:20 on the Buffalo, N. Y., park on Thursday afternoon. The pair trotted without a skip in 2:18. Hamlin weighs 185, and the wagon weighed 155. The time beats the world's record for team trotting. At West Side park, Nashville, Tenn., on Wednesday the event of the afternoon was the easy victory of the three-year-old colt Paragon in the mile and three-sixteenth dash. He carried 104 pounds and ran the distance in 2:02, but could have lowered the record if he had been forced.

I HAVE BEEN SICK—with pleurisy and pneumonia. It left me with a very hard hacking cough. All the physicians and medicine did me no good. A friend advised me to try Adamson's Cough Balsam, one bottle of which did me more good than all the doctors and medicines I have tried; and I shall recommend it far and near. Mary A. Brockwell, Springfield, Mass. Trial bottles 10 cents.

ARE THEY INNOCENT?—On Friday last, a carpenter, named Thomas Owens, fell from the roof of a building and was killed. At the inquest a fellow workman swore that Owens told him he threw the bomb which killed the policeman in the Chicago riot, and that the condemned anarchists were innocent.

ACCIDENTALLY KILLED.—William James Crawford, aged 32 years, of Seaford, East Halifax, was discovered on Saturday on the roadside dead. The wheel of a heavy wagon loaded with wood rested on his neck. It is supposed he was pushing the wagon, which took a sudden start and jerked him under the wheel.

SOMETHING TO THINK OVER.—If people would stop suddenly some evening telling what they think about other people and tell what they know about themselves, what a stir-up there would be in modern society!
