Secretary Blaine is Not a Candidate.

WASHINGTON, Feb 7—The following letter explains itself:

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6, 1892.

Hon. J. S. Clarkson, Chairman of the Republican National Committee.

MY DEAR SIR,—I am not a candidate for the presidency, and my name will not go before the National Republican convention for the nomination. I make this announcement in due season to those who have tendered me their confidence. They will, I am sure, make earnest effort in the approaching contest, which is rendered especially important by reason of the industrial and financial policies of the Government being at stake. The popular decision of these issues is of great moment and will be of far reaching consequences

Very sincerely yours,

JAS. G. BLAINE.

Influenza Specifics.

Has medicine, then, nothing of a practical kind to say to those who are suffering from influenza, and to those who are dreading its attack? We are in this condition of things, says The Hospital, with regard to influenza, that though we have no specific for it which "acts like a charm," yet we know how to manage it from beginning to end just as well as we know how to manage typhoid fever, diphtheria, bronchitis or any other disease with which we are constantly familiar.

A correspondent writes to The Times: "In the offices of the Royal Insurance Company, Lombard Street, only a young messenger is away through the influenza, and this comparative immunity from a disease at present so general is thought to be due, in a great measure, to blotting-paper with a few drops of eucalyptus oil on it being daily placed about the various departments. This idea of the efficacy of the precaution is strengthened by the fact that, when the epidemic was raging two years ago, while in one department, where it was found the oil had not been used, four or five out of about twenty-five clerks were attacked by the influenza, in the other departments, where there were three or four times the number, hardly a single clerk was away after the precaution was adopted. No doubt this precaution is now not novel; still, it may be well for those who do not know of it to try its efficiency."

A medical man at Maryport, says the Manchester Guardian, is said to have discovered a cure for influenza. It consists of the administration of large and repeated doses of bicarbonate of potassium. It has been tried with great success in Maryport and elsewhere, three doses spread over a period of nine hours being generally enough to destroy the disease. No bad consequences appear to follow. Local and other doctors are adopting the cure

'The main thing is bed, and then the doctor,' says a medical man who discusses influenza symptoms and their treatment in the Pall Mall Gazette. 'If you feel queer,' he says, 'heavy-headed, shivery, and languid, with or without symptoms of a cold, go to bed, and have a fire in your room. As to further proceedings, take a mild aperient, and confine your food to slops. If you feel very hot, a teaspoonful of sweet spirits of nitre, or of mindererus spirit, will be useful. Uncomplicated influenza, which is a simple fever, needs no other treatment. But if there is any difficulty of breathing, or pain in the chest, indicating the existence of complications, send for the doctor, and meantime put on a large linseed poultice all round the chest—back and front. Stay in the house,' the doctor advises, 'till you have recovered your strength, and when you go out wrap up carefully, and avoid fatigue. Eat and drink what you please so long as it is good and wholesome. As to avoiding the disease, crowded places,' he says, 'are dangerous, and should be avoided if possible. For the rest, take care of yourself, live wholesomely, avoid fatigue, cold and wet.—Exch.

LETTERS TO EDITOR.

Mr. Bluett.

To the Editor of the Guardian:

I notice a communication in your paper in reference to Rev. Mr. Bluett, and he is there pictured as a Baptist Minister and also as having labored on this Island.

He has never been recognized as an ordained minister in our denomination and has never been pastor of a Baptist church in these provinces, nor in any way employed by our denomination. He visited the Island some years ago and lectured and preached. But he did so on his own responsibility.

I mention these facts to show we are in no way shielding in our body a man who has proved himself to be a fraud.

F. D. DAVISON.

That Social.

SIR:—I see by a local in the Patriot on Friday that Mr. McElroy denies that the parties arrested on Thursday morning were at his social on Wednesday night. I can inform Mr. McElroy that they were there, and also invited. And I can also inform him that they also received plenty of liquor at this social, which was the cause of them being arrested afterwards.

I suppose those sprees where whiskey is dealt out are an easy way for Mr. McElroy to earn a lazy living on the fool penny. This is an easy way of shunning the devil, but it is apparently an easy matter to get young men and women into whiskey socials by invitations sent out to decoy them there, and then the house is kept open till morning for dancing and drinking.

I am bound to respect my neighbor, but it is hard to respect such persons as Mr. McElroy who will keep their house open all night for young men and women to act as they please. No doubt McElroy tried to cover up his work by stating the those parties were not at his social because they were unlucky enough to get drunk and be arrested, but he will find this dodge will not work.

DETECTIVE.

Blood Oozes from His Skin.

WABASH, Ind., Jan. 28—Alexander Freeman, one of the best known farmers in Wabash county, is afflicted with a peculiar malady. For over a week blood has been slowly oozing from all parts of his body. The blood accumulates under the skin until the skin is as purple as a plum and then it oozes out like sweat from a harvest hand. This has kept up constantly until Mr. Freeman is now completely prostrated. A number of physicians have been called, but they are powerless to stop the flow of blood, and in all probability the man will die.

NEW STAR DISCOVERED.

Wrapped in a whirlwind of flames.

BOSTON, Feb. 6.—A new star has appeared in the firmament. About two degrees south of the medium bright star "Chi-Aurigæ" it may be seen with a good opera glass. It is of the fifth magnitude.

The stranger first came within the range of the astronomers' notice about Dec. 10. Dr. Copeland, the Scottish astronomer, saw it on Feb. 1.—He was not, however, the discoverer, for in a cable despatch to Prof. Pickering, of Harvard, he ascribes the honor to an anonymous observer.

But until this anonymous Scot abandons his reserve the new comer will be known as "Copeland's Nova," in honor of the man who first examined it and discovered that it contained bright lines. Prof. Copeland's despatch was received at Cambridge on a cloudy afternoon, but during a brief bit of clear sky at the twilight, Prof. Pickering, with an opera glass caught a glimpse of the stranger. Thursday night was fortunately clear and a long series of observations were taken. Measurements of photo-mercric plates show that the star was at its maximum brightness on Jan. 20, and has since been slowly decreasing.

The photographic works will continue and numerous prints of both the stars and the spectrum will be taken. There has been a great desire to obtain the spectrum of the temporary star and now we have one and it is unique. No other star gives such a spectrum.

Its essential features seem to be that the hydrogen lines are dark, with bright edges toward the red. The visitor is not within our view of its own volition. It is wrapped in a whirlwind of flames, due either to an explosion or to a collision with some giant orb.
