through arts and crafts classes, exhibitions, radio programs, and other activities, the Guild has as well been receiving much publicity and recognition beyond the Province. It is associated with the Maritime Art Association, the Canadian Museums Association, the American Association of Museums, the International Council of Museums, and the Canadian Handicrafts Guild. The Guild's director, Miss Frances E. Johnston has had the honor of addressing the first three associations as well as serving on the executive of two. She is the only Canadian to have been present at the first and only two international seminars ever held on the role of museums in education.
