ELLEN'S DIARY

Summer Visitors Are Expressing Their Views

Summer leads now along her lovely trails. Up sunshine-checked woods' roads and by flower-bordered lanes. . . and down, she thought comes to use shore-beds that are, where waves wash gently, and warm sands are golden, and the shingly bars invite one out through crystal shallows in search of childhood footprints again. . . . Now machines bearing strange markings pass on the highway, the sign declaring that the van of the holidaying influx is here; ladies, oh so charming, come home to prove once more its delights and its worth; visitors, guests of former years return again to enjoy that kind hospitality they have received before; or it may be some for the first time, as those chaotically much interested, and it would seem also a little lost and maybe a little lonely in the midst of, to them, unfamiliar scenes. For the benefit of our tourist industry, if not from pure kindness of heart, these are they who need the helpful explanations, the kind word and attention, to stamp the name "Island" forever in their minds — to have them return to us another summer with happiest anticipations and to spread on our behalf the story of our attractions and charm so to bring others as well.

It is heart-warming mostly, though odd times dismaying to us to hear the impressions these summer visitors express. Little about food or shelter, little about roads. But in regard to our people. A vacationist to Alderlea today said: "I've travelled 'all over' I've seen nice scenery, and met nice people. But I've never met else where so much kindness as I have experienced since I came to your Island. The folks are 'the salt of the earth' — couldn't use me, a stranger, better!" But against it, one said not long ago: "You have seen a beautiful Province an ideal vacation-land. Your beaches are very fine, the climate a pleasant relief from the heat we have been having at home. But Islanders show little interest in us — they've apparently either no time or no inclination to chat or bother with us at all, excepting of course those who make it a business to entertain summer guests. And that is good as far as it goes but we'd like to feel everywhere 'a home away from home'." And against it again, a first-time visitor to our shores, whose fancy had sent to our door yesterday to talk farming with James, was so pleased (Cuddie and all) when James invited him to "come in and have a bit of dinner with me and the wife" even though having ing dined on the boat, he declined the invitation. "I knew you would ask me," she smiled. "Farmers continue the old customs, good in a changed world of living." But do we? Thereby spreading the word of Island kindness and benefiting on our own part by entertaining even briefly angels unaware.

Over peaceful shallows the skiff of our farming glides these days, with much of the stock on pasture and the choring reduced appreciably. Not that the farmers are free of it, for there still is an interesting company of calves to be fed, the "house-cow" must be milked, and the piggeries maintain their customary strength of weanlings and fattening shoats.

And the day was beautiful and lanned by a breeze that had gathered fragrance of meadow and woodland in its wanderings. Now there is starlight above the old hills, the fields below resting in quiet peacefulness. "Well, here's a day that slipped away easily!" James says coming in now from a "kaley" at the house across the lane. "And" he nods "not too much to show for it either!"

Until tomorrow — — — Diary — — — Goodnight. . . .

Beloved Pastor, His Wife & Family Honored At York

York Community Hall was filled to capacity on the evening of June 19, when the people of York pastoral charge assembled in honour of their minister, Rev. J. M. Sproule, his wife and family.

Mr. Sproule has been pastor of this area for the past five years but due to poor health, he has accepted a call from a smaller charge.

With Mr. and Mrs. Sproule were their two youngest sons, Hubert and Donnie, Paul, on leave from the R.C.A.F. base in Port Arthur, Ontario, was also present.

Representatives from the four churches were also on stage to extend formal farewells on behalf of their communities. Mrs. Willard Prowse, Brackley, Mrs. Roy Keizer, Pleasant Grove, Mr. Alex Scott, Marshfield (Central) and Mr. W. Crockett, York.

Mr. Leith Brown was a most capable chairman. After the reading of the address by Mrs. Willard Murray, Mrs. Roy Keizer presented Mr. and Mrs. Sproule with a wellfilled purse on behalf of the pastoral charge.

Mr. Mark Johnson, Suffolk, president of Central Y.P.U., also read an address of appreciation from the young people of that church and on their behalf, Mr. Wilfred Stewart, Dunstafnag, presented Mr. Sproule with a beautiful desk set suitably inscribed.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Sproule spoke briefly to those assembled, thanking them for their kindness and giving a word of blessing for future happiness.

Several people from the crowd spoke personal words of appreciation in tribute to the Sproules. Mr. Ira Lewis expressed most simply the thought of all when he remarked about Mr. Sproule: "Mr. Sproule has preached many fine sermons but his best sermon is 'the life he lives'."

Miss Betty Foster, Marshfield led the people in hearty singing of old favorite songs and hymns. Mr. Adrian Van Ekris sang two solos in his native tongue which were greatly enjoyed by all. Mr. Arthur Vesey served as accompanist.

A delicious lunch was served by the ladies bringing a most pleasant evening of fellowship to a close. Previous to this evening Mrs. Sproule was presented with several lovely gifts by the different ladies' organizations of which she had been a faithful and influential member.

Mr. and Mrs. Sproule have four sons other than the three already mentioned. They are Bernard who is with the Dept. of Transport, Liverpool, N.S., George, R.C.M.P. stationed in Red Deer, Alta., Robert, with the R.C.A.F. in Baden, Germany, and Eric, who is working with radar, stationed at Beaver Bank with the R.C.A.F.

Mr. and Mrs. Sproule, Hubert and Donnie leave shortly for their new home in Alberta.

Following is the address by the Y.P.U. of Central: "Dear Mr. Sproule — At this time it is my privilege on behalf of Central Y.P.U. to try to express just a part of the feelings that we have for you.

You have always been ready and willing to assist us with our meetings, even at considerable inconvenience to yourself.

And now, in a small token of the esteem in which you are held by us, we would ask you to accept this gift. We hope that when you use it, you will be reminded of the days you spent as leader of Central Y.P.U. The address by the York Pastoral Charge: To Mr. and Mrs. Sproule and family. — To write an address of this type is very difficult. It does indeed, give us pleasure to gather together tonight to pay tribute to such a fine family but it is with much regret that we have on this occasion to say "Farewell" to one who has been our minister, confident and friend for the past five years.

Mr. Sproule's acceptance of another charge will indeed create a gap in all our lives which will be most difficult to fill. I am afraid he and Mrs. Sproule have rather spoiled us and, therefore, we will be expecting a great deal more than we should of our future pastors.

Certainly there could be no criticism of a minister and his wife who have been so devoted to their charge. They have never been reared lacking, even far beyond the call of duty.

There can not be one person here this evening who cannot recall some kindness which Mr. and Mrs. Sproule have extended to himself and his family.

They have been with us in time of trouble, visited us when we were sick at home or in hospital, they have been ever kind and sympathetic when one of our loved ones passed on to their reward and they have rejoiced with us during the happy occasions of weddings, social parties and other joyful events.

Mr. Sproule has ever set an example for us in Christian living and has often inspired us to try to be better people in the eyes of our Heavenly Father. A mute testimony of that fact is the great number of communicants at our communion services. And our new church members are not only the teenagers but people of middle age who under Mr. Sproule's leadership have felt the need of greater spiritual guidance.

Need say no more. Each of us knows personally, how highly we regard our minister and his wife as we remember them in our prayers.

To Mr. Sproule. May God grant you health to continue your good works for many years to come. As an inspiration may you regard a certain trophy. I believe even our Heavenly Father could not have held back a smile, when in the spring of 1956 a certain minister, who was considered a good sport but a poor shot, walked off with the York Rifle Club prize trophy under the open mouthed astonishment of some of the island's best marksmen.

To Mrs. Sproule. May you find the happiness and contentment which you so richly deserve. As your inspiration when you lament the lack of a girl in the family — remember there will someday be seven brides for seven brothers and the joy of numerous grand-daughters.

To Hubert and Donnie, whom we know better than the other Sproule sons, we extend all good wishes for happiness and many new friends in their new home. Their inspiration is their youth and the example set by their older brothers.

Please remember in the busy days ahead that you have many friends who love you dearly and our homes will always be open to you. We hope that you will always remember us as kindly as we shall surely remember you. May God bless you all.

Critics who had reserved special words of praise for Irish actress Siobhan McKenna—whose first name is pronounced show-on with the accent on the last syllable—discovered by the finale that they had to distribute the accolades evenly.

Regina's Frances Hyland, a pure and credible Ophelia in Monday's Hamlet, was an evenly-cast counterpart to Miss McKenna Tuesday night as Olivia, too preoccupied with her fixation for Cesario to control her own household.

And that left Douglas Campbell, as Sir Toby Belch, and Montreal's Christopher Plummer, as Sir Andrew Aguecheek, incredible scope for comic relief that threatened at times to take over the play and throughout kept the audience in stitches.

The evening was a riot. And Gutrie, by a stroke of genius, ensured that the audience knew who
