

Ask your doctor how many preparations of cod-liver oil there are.

He will answer, "Hundreds of them." Ask him which is the best. He will reply, "Scott's Emulsion."

Then see that this is the one you obtain. It contains the purest cod-liver oil, free from unpleasant odor and taste. You also get the hypophosphites and glycerine. All three are blended into one grand healing and nourishing remedy.

For The Children

Won by Kindness.

If there was one person of whom shy little Bobby was more frightened than another, it was of that gentleman who parades the street in a suit of blue and commonly known as a policeman. Bobby had been foolishly trained by his mother to regard this friend of all innocent beings as a terror and sort of ogre, ready and willing to pounce down on all little boys, and carry them off to some horrible unknown place. But little, if at all, less afraid of a police constable was his sister Annie, a winsome little dame full of love and tenderness.

One day Bob and Annie had set off for a walk, Bob taking his old tailless wooden horse for exercise, leading the pretty animal by a string. Led away by a man with a tame bear, the little ones wandered on until they began to feel extremely tired and hungry; and very soon realizing that they were lost, they began to cry.

"Now, my little man," said a voice close at hand, "What is the matter?" And to Bobby's terror he found a policeman's hand laid on his shoulder. This was the signal for a renewed outburst of tears, and Annie clung screaming to her brother.

"I see, I see," said the constable; "you are lost. Well never mind, youngsters: cheer up, and come along with me."

And taking a hand of each he led the trembling mites to a police station close at hand.

"Two more kiddies lost, Bill," he said to one of his mates as they entered. The frightened children crouched away from the men; and wondered painfully what would happen next.

"And where do you come from, my little man? can you tell me?"

For answer poor Bobby only sobbed more loudly than ever; and the constable said, "It seems to me, Bill, that the youngsters are hungry as well as lost. Mind 'em a bit will you?" And leaving the room he went across to a baker's shop, coming back in a couple of minutes with some buns.

Holding up one of the buns he beckoned little Annie, whose terror seemed to vanish beneath the claims of her appetite; and very soon Bobby was won over to take one of the proffered buns also.

Very kindly did the men talk to the little ones, and by degrees elicited their address, and comforted them by telling them that they should be taken home shortly, if no one came for them.

One act of kindness had won over the little hearts, and the constable who took them home in the evening was a bit puzzled when Annie pulled his face down and gave him a loud sounding kiss on his cheek, while Bob squeezed his hand, and said, "I shan't be afraid of you any more, 'cos you've been so good to Annie and me."

Sewing Aches.

Jessie sat down by her mother to sew. She was making a pillowcase for her own little pillow.

"All this?" she asked in a discontented tone, holding the seam out.

"That is not too much for a little girl who has a work-basket, of her own," said her mother.

"Yes," thought Jessie, mother has given me a work-basket and I ought to be willing to sew," and with that she took a few stitches quite diligently.

"I have a dreadful pain in my side," said Jessie, in a few minutes. "My thumb is very sore," she complained. "Oh, my hand is so tired!" was the next. Then there was something the matter with her foot, and then with her eyes, and so she was full of trouble.

At length the sewing was done. Jessie brought it to her mother.

"Should I not first send for a doctor?" asked her mother.

"The doctor for me, mother?" cried the little girl, as surprised as she could be.

"Certainly; a little girl so full of pains and aches must be ill, and the sooner we have the doctor the better."

"Oh mother," said Jessie, laughing, "they were sewing aches I am better now."

RAILROAD....

KIDNEY

A Disease Peculiar to Railroad Men, which is readily Cured by Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

Did it ever occur to you that most railroad men die of kidney disease?

Such is the fact, however, and the disease is known among railroaders as "railroad kidney."

The first and most marked symptoms are weak, lame and aching back. You may think at first that you are only tired; but as this trouble increases day by day, kidney disease, with all its terrors, is fast claiming you as a victim.

Mr. Geo. Cummings, for over 20 years engineer on the Grand Trunk running between Toronto and Allandale, says: "The constant duty with my work gave me excessive pains in my back, making my kidneys. I tried several remedies until I was recommended by my friend, Mr. Dave Conley, to try Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. Two boxes have completely cured me and I feel to-day a better man than ever. I recommend them to all my friends."

BY THE ST. LAWRENCE.

Mr. W. H. Odell, of Brockville, Strong Believer in Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Brockville, Oct. 2.—Nowhere in Ontario are Dodd's Kidney Pills more appreciated than among the St. Lawrence River, and the Great Lakes. Where there is water there is damp and danger from rheumatism and colds. The kidneys are the organs most susceptible to colds and the getting out of order therefrom causes rheumatism, backache, etc., Mr. W. H. Odell, of Brockville, writes to an enquirer as follows:—

Brockville, Aug 23th.

Dear Sir,—I received your letter and intended to answer it before, but I am ashamed to say neglected to do so. Dodd's Kidney Pills have done me the world of good. They are a splendid cure for the kidneys and I am always ready to say so. I remain, Yours truly, W. H. ODELL.

Weary of Experimenting

With salves, suppositories and ointments and treading a surgical operation, scores and hundreds have turned to Dr. A. W. Chase's ointment and found it an absolute cure for piles. The first application brings relief from the terrible itching, and it is very seldom that more than one box is required to effect a permanent cure.
