ABSENTMINDED MAN.

He Moved, but When He Tried to Find His House He Failed.

An absentminded man moved to this city from a neighboring town last week. He and his wife staid at a hotel while they were finding a house, but his business prevented the man from doing his share of the house hunting, and the task fell, as it often does, upon the wife. She at last found a place which suited her and she took her husband to see it. It was satisfactory, and they came down town, he to go back to his business and she to attend to the moving of their goods from the railway car to the house. Her task was soon accomplished, and in a short time she had put away most of the things, settled a bedroom and got the kitchen and dining room in order. By 5:30 in the afternoon she and the new girl had the first dinner in the new flat all ready for the head of the house.

In the meantime the absentminded husband was plodding through the work at his office. About the time that the plates were being put on the table at his home he began to feel the need of food, and he locked up his office and started for the street car. When he reached the street, he suddenly remembered that he had not noticed the address of his new residence. He stood on the corner a long while and tried to think what the name of the street was. He consulted the directory, but none of the street names was familiar—in fact, he had not been in the city long enough to know any of the streets by name except that on which his office was situated and the location of the hotel where he had staid temporarily. He looked aimlessly at the crowded street cars and envied the men and women who knew where their homes were. The pangs of hunger were increasing momentarily, but no suggestion of the locality of his home came to him.

His mind on that point was a perfect blank. He had even forgotten to notice in what style of building the flat was situated. Cursing his stupidity, he made his way to the hotel, ate his dinner in disgusted solitude and went to bed. In the meantime his wife was nearly frantic at his absence. Night having fallen, she was afraid to venture out, and she, too, went to bed alone and spent a sleepless night. In the morning she made her way down town, found the office and threw herself weeping into her husband's arms. That afternoon the man bought a map of the city and marked accurately upon it his place of residence, and then he had a hundred cards printed containing his house address.—Chicago Chronicle.

NO MAN'S LAND.

A Western Australian Desert and Its Leading Characteristics.

Hon. David W. Carnegie, son of the Earl of Southesk, returned to England after a 13 months' journey across the Great Victoria and Great Sandy deserts of western Australia. Speaking of the natives in the interior, Mr. Carnegie said: "The people are very dark, and add to their blackness by smearing themselves with grease and ashes, a fact which makes their presence known at a considerable distance. They are very ugly—more like monkeys than anything else, with their flat foreheads and protruding lips. As a rule they are very thin and of small stature—on two occasions only I saw men upward of 6 feet in height. Men, women and children are all stark naked. They have no houses, and have no villages. They simply scoop out a hole in the sand and squat in it. When they first saw our camels and caravan, they were greatly excited, never having seen a white man before. We never suffered any hurt from them, but when any of them got us alone, they tried to be hasty, and no doubt would have proved troublesome if they had been given much opportunity. They are only one degree removed from animals.

"It was only from the smoke caused by their hunting fires that we were able to track them, and so find water."

Of the results of his journey the explorer said: "We have proved the whole of the interior of Western Australia between Coolgardie and the Kimberley goldfields to be quite useless for man or beast. We saw no auriferous country between Lake Darlot district and Kimberley."—Montreal Star.

She Drew the Line.

"When I was first married," says the Rev. Dr. Lorimer, pastor of Tremont temple, Boston, "I had my strict ideas about Sunday observance. Mrs. Lorimer had a colored 'aunt' for cook, and on the first Saturday after she came I went into the kitchen and told her I did not want any Sunday work, so she could prepare all meals for that day beforehand. She didn't say one word while I was talking, then she looked up, and, pointing to the door, exclaimed, 'Now, look hyar, Marse George, you jest go in dar and tend to your Christianity and leave me tend to mah kitchen.' I went, and as near as I can remember she had hot dinners Sundays as long as she staid with us."

Carefully Selected.

One of the most remarkable features of life in New South Wales is the transformation of criminals into hard working citizens. Of the 30,000 settlers there in 1821, 20,000 were or had been convicts.

It is said that on board an American liner a boastful Australian asserted loudly and over and over again that "the men who settled Australia were a remarkably sensible lot."

"Yes," said an American quietly, "I have always understood that they were sent out by the very best judges."—Youth's Companion.

Quite Likely.

"I'll tell you the story in a nutshell," said Fosdick.
 "Chestnut shell?" asked Keedick.—Detroit Free Press.

WATCHES

The watch trade has been rather fluctuating of late, first the price went up, after a long period of low prices, now the prices have dropped again, whether because of war or greater variety of production we cannot say, but the fact remains that you can buy from us a reliable timekeeper cheaper than ever before, in fact that there is no need to buy shoddy goods at all.

If you want a good and also the cheapest watch for the money, we recommend a good movement in a nickel case instead of a poor one in a fine looking colored case that will only wear a very short time.

Soliciting a share of you patronage, we remain, Yours respectfully,
