DANGERS OF CHICKEN-RAISING.

Narrow Escape of a Guileless Youth About to Embark in the Enterprise.

An elderly man and a young man were sitting on the veranda conversing.

"Yes," said the young man, "I am going into chicken-farming. I am convinced that there is no business in the world in which there is more money to be made. I have figured on it, and I think I know what I can do. Why, look at the way they increase. In four or five years I"——

"My friend," said the old man, "I have had experience in the business. Be warned; do not embark in it. You know not what you do."

"What!" said the young man, "have you tried it and failed?"

"I mean to tell you that I tried it and gave it up," answered the other. "I got ten hens, intending to get rich, as you propose doing. I installed them in a coop and awaited returns. But before they had laid an egg I happened to pick up a pencil and a bit of paper and do some calculating. At a low estimate I saw that each of my hens could raise three broods the first summer.

"Allowing for one bad egg in each sitting, there would be twelve chicks to each brood. Calling half of them pullets, this would give six to each brood, or eighteen to each hen for the season, or 180 for the entire flock. Adding my original ten, I would have 190 hens at the end of the first summer. Figuring at the same ratio, I saw that I would have 3,610 at the end of the second summer.

"I was encouraged and went on to find that I would have 68,599 when the third summer closed. I sharpened my pencil, and bent over my paper with feverish interest. The fourth summer, I discovered, would leave me with 1,303,210 likely hens.

"When the autumn leaves of the fifth dying summer whould swirl about me I would have 24,760,990 cacklers. Another year of joys and sorrows—my sixth—would find me surrounded by 470,458,810 live and enterprising hens. Once again, when the seventh summer should fade into glorious autumn, I found that a matter of 8,938,717,390 distinct hens and a rooster or two would be with me in the gallinaceous flesh. The inspiring figures for the eighth year I have forgotten, as, likewise, I have those of the ninth.

"I only know I found that at the end of ten years I would have more prime hens than there was space for on the surface of the globe, counting the Arctic regions and supposing roosts across all rivers and twenty fowls in each tree. I was dumfounded.

"But I did not hesitate. I saw what I owed to the human race. I seized an axe and hurried to the coop. My boy, I loved those hens, but I loved humanity more; and I led them to the block like a Spartan, and chopped off their heads. I breathed more freely when it was all over, and the horrible vision was gone of the whole earth four feet deep in hens, and every blessed one of them cackling. Young man, do not go into the chicken business; it leads to awful things."

The young man started up. "Great Caesar!" he exclaimed. "I won't. I did not realize what I was doing.—Harper's Magazine.

A Crow That Dreams.

Wes Hearn has a crow, and he is the gawkiest, oddest, ugliest, but withal, the smartest bird one ever saw. He has learned the accomplishments of men so well that he now dreams—actually has nightmares.

The crow, during his odd hours of willing and luxurious captivity, has dug a hole in the wall, in which he deposits dainty morsels for the future when his appetite is not satiated.

Yesterday, in his hole in the wall he carefully placed two pieces of cheese and three bits of meat, all the while casting a furtive eye to windward to see that no one learned the secret of his hiding place.

This done, he ruffled his feathers, drew his neck down into them and, standing on one foot, went fast asleep. Perhaps the immense quantity of cheese which he had gorged himself with half an hour before gave him indigestion, for he had a nightmare right on the spot.

Suddenly he woke up and the air was rent with "Squawk! squawk! squawk!" in quick succession. He danced over in a flurry of excitement to his hole in the wall and jammed his bill in it three times. Everything was there. Nothing had been stolen. He sidled over to his perch, scratched his bill with his foot in a meditative way, as much as to say: "Well, I'll be——," and, ruffling his feathers into a muff, drew himself into them, supported the whole on one leg and was soon again in the land of nod.—Florida Times-Union.

Transparent Bricks for Hothouses.

Experiments with glass building bricks were begun in 1891, by M. Falconier, an architect of Lyons. These bricks are hollow, being blown like bottles, and are given forms—such as cubes, hexagons, etc.—that permit of ready laying. A bituminous cement, with a base of asphalt, is used with them. The bricks serve as double windows, giving protection against both cold and heat; they are good insulators of humidity and noise, and they lend themselves readily to the decoration of buildings, either by their form or color. Many applications are foreseen. The bricks are neater than marble in meat markets, and especially adapted for bath halls, hothouses, hospitals, refrigerating establishments, and buildings in which absence of windows would be an advantage. A hothouse of glass bricks is of about ordinary cost, saves fuel and resists hail.—Ashton (England) Reporter.

Suez Canal Trade.

Three thousand three hundred and forty-one ships, of 7,659,000 tons, passed through the Suez canal in 1893, yielding $68,000,000 in dues. Three thousand and eighty-two of the ships, or 92½ per cent, passed through by night. As to the nationality of the vessels, the English were 2,405; German, 272; French, 190; Dutch, 178; Austro-Hungarian, 71; Italian, 67; Norwegian, 50; Ottoman, 34; Spanish, 29; Russian, 24; Portuguese, 10; Egyptian, 5; American, 3; Belgian, 1; Brazilian, 1; Japanese, 1.

OCTOBER.

[John Frazer, in October Dunkhoe's.]

The leaf is dying on the tree,
But not with sad solemnity,
But clothed in all the various dyes
That ever gladdened human eyes,
From crimson deep to palest green,
And sombre fir arranged between.
Tho' Nature breathes her parting breath,
She's trebly beautiful in death.

October's pencil paints the leaf,
In hues how beautiful, tho brief!
Man's grand achievements brighter grow
When seen thro' Life's October glow,
And Life's fair conquests seem sublime
When looming through the haze of Time.
Ah! live so that thy life, my friend,
May glorious as October end.

GENERAL TELEGRAPHIC NEWS.

AMSTERDAM, Oct. 8.—Throughout Holland last week there were 16 new cases of cholera and eight deaths from the disease.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Oct. 8.—North Dakota and portions of South Dakota and the Northern border of Minnesota are buried under a heavy fall of snow. The storm, which in some localities, has developed into a blizzard, began yesterday morning, and every indication points to a repetition of the blizzard of fourteen years ago.

BERLIN, Oct. 5.—The St. Petersburg correspondent of the Koeinsachs Zeitung says that Russia has sent a strong force to her Asiatic frontier to prevent further inroads of Chinese mauraders. The force consists of five battalions of Siberian riflemen, two squadrons of cossacks and three batteries.

IRONWOOD, Mich., Oct. 8.—John Ravell, a miner, this evening put half a box of dynamite in the kitchen stove to thaw it out for use in the morning. The family, consisting of seven persons, were gathered round the stove conversing with a neighbor. In a few minutes there was a terrific explosion and five of those in the house were killed and three injured. The house was blown to atoms.

BRESLIN, Oct. 8.—The Schellische-Zeitung's correspondent in St. Petersburg says the condition of the Czar has suddenly changed for the worse, and the higher officials and court dignitaries have started hurriedly for Lividia.

DUBLIN, Oct. 8.—A largely-attended Parnellite meeting was held in the Rotunda here to-day. John Redmond, member of the House of Commons for Waterford City, presided. He said that the Home Rule cause was dying from apathy. The Irish parliamentary party—the Parnellites—would do their utmost to force a dissolution of parliament at the next session. He predicted that a new united party would be created with Parnellite principles, powerful enough to force Home Rule to the front.

NEWS NOTES.

The British ministers have again gone holidaying.

It is stated the Czar has sustained a stroke of apoplexy.

It is stated that a rebellion has broken out in the province of Mongolia, China.

We hear from Montreal that the Bell Telephone Company of Canada has purchased the lot at the south-east corner of Notre Dame and St. John Streets for between $55,000 and $60,000. It will tear down the present buildings thereon and erect in their place a new structure for the offices of the company.

Patrick Egan, speaking on behalf of the Republican Roman Catholics of America, has protested against that party taking up the A. P. A. movement or recognizing it in any way. He says "it is a society, attempting by stealth, by secret delegations and by fallacious representation regarding its numerical strength and influence, to intimidate and capture week-kneed politicians of all parties and commit them to pledges to support the un-Christian and un-American objects of the order.
