FAVORABLE COMMENTS Many favorable comments concerning the building were heard from the many visitors who saw the building for the first time last evening.

Commander Finch-Noyes said in his opinion the building was "very excellent."

Commander Kenny remarked "... at long last we have the proper location and facilities to carry on naval reserve training in Charlottetown. As has been said before this is the 35th anniversary of the start of training in Charlottetown, and this is the first time we ever had a building specifically designed for the purpose."

FOURTH VISIT This is the fourth visit for Commodore Finch-Noyes to Prince Edward Island. He first visited the province in 1931 when he was on board HMCS Champlain. He again visited here in the winter of 1931 and at that time his ship nearly became ice-locked.

His third visit was in 1953 during a UNTD training cruise. This morning Commodore Finch-Noyes and Commander Lee will make official calls on the Premier, Mayor, Right Reverend J. A. Sullivan, rector of St. Dunstan's University and Dr. Frank MacKinnon, principal of Prince of Wales College.

This evening, approximately 700 people are expected to attend a dance in the building. The receiving line will consist of Commander Lee, Commander Kenny and Mrs. Kenny, Lieutenant N. W. Black and Mrs. Black and Commodore Finch-Noyes.

Broad Picture Of History Is Needed, Society Told

Island children know less local history than do the children of any other Province, Dr. Frank MacKinnon, principal of Prince of Wales College stated in an address delivered in Charlottetown last night.

Speaking to a group of citizens at a public meeting sponsored by the P. E. I. Historical Society, Dr. MacKinnon said that no community can be healthy unless it has a broad picture of its past history.

"The human race has a habit of repeating its mistakes, and if we are to understand the causes of these and avoid them, we must know history," he declared.

"Tradition is the thing that lasts — not wealth, military power, or other such things."

OUTSTANDING EXAMPLE Stressing that history develops a community spirit the speaker pointed to Stratford, Ontario, as an outstanding example of his.

The development of the Fort Amherst site, forecast in a motion adopted later in the meeting, would give summer tourists something to see, Dr. MacKinnon remarked. Tourist interest was shown by the fact that last summer 28,000 people visited Nova Scotia's Fort Anne, he said.

The PWC principally termed the Fort Amherst site "one of the most beautiful spots in the Maritimes." Its dominant location commanding a view of the harbor, the three rivers and the City of Charlottetown.

A knowledge of its history, its culture and its arts was necessary if one were to be truly proud of one's Province or nation, Dr. MacKinnon asserted.

"We may know little concerning the municipality of Venice, but may still appreciate Italian opera," he said.

He recalled that the Opera House was one of the first of the public buildings to be rebuilt in the city of Rotterdam destroyed by German bombing during World War Two.

COMMITTEE FORMED During the meeting a committee was set up to draft a resolution relative to the re-creation of Fort Amherst, Port La Jole, and the Indian encampment that was located nearby. Approval and support of City service organizations will be sought.

Officials of the society pointed out that a series of similar public meetings will be held throughout the winter months. Each will be addressed by a special speaker.

Colored slides taken during last summer's celebration of the 200th anniversary of the founding of Fort Amherst, and at spots of historic interest in Nova Scotia, were shown.

Earl Taylor, president of the P.E.I. Historical Society, presided.

University Women Will Again Give Scholarship To Student

The January meeting of the Charlottetown University Women's Club was held at the home of Mrs. P.A. Creelman last evening, with the president, Miss Helen Yeo, presiding.

During the business meeting, Mrs. J. A. Lawson reported on the Book Fair which was held in December. The club members were delighted to learn that the venture had been a success financially, thus making it possible for the club to present a $100 scholarship to a Prince of Wales student again this year.

The club was also pleased that the Book Fair had made it possible for the school libraries and the public libraries to select and purchase a large number of books at wholesale prices.

The members felt that, by making books of good literary value available, the club was fulfilling one of its aims, the encouragement of interest in culture and education. Mrs. T. Lohian, and Mrs. J. A. Lawson, as co-convenors of the Book Fair, were largely responsible for its success.

Mrs. Robert Acorn, the federation representative, reported on the work of the relief committee of the International Federation of University Women, and on the thirteenth conference of the International Federation of University Women, which is to be held in Helsinki, Finland, in August, 1959.

Mrs. W. G. Hogg, provincial director, mentioned the possibility that the national president of the C.F.U.W. Mrs. A. S. Morton of the University of Saskatchewan, might visit the Maritime clubs in February or March.

Mrs. D.J. Gill presented a short summary of current events which

Weekend Briefs

THE SOCIAL HANGOVER has made its infamous debut, at a time when society seems to be suffering from a sense of insecurity, and a host's prestige is measured by the jigger. "The Saturday night party has become a form of anesthesia," claims Howard Whitman, an authority on social problems who puts the plunger into the punch bowl to emerge with some of the hazards of social drinking. This is the first of two articles concerning our drinking habits in The Evening Patriot's Weekend Magazine, out tomorrow.

WESTERNERS GO EASTERN, in philosophy anyway, when a vegetarian family in British Columbia derives ascetic exercise from the practice of yoga. Standing on your head may sound like a peculiar breakfast hors d'oeuvre—but if it boosts your marks on exams (to say nothing of circulation), why not? Several of the intriguing 84 positions of yoga are portrayed, and their merit discussed, in this Weekend photo-feature.

IF HEIGHT GETS YOU DOWN, you'll be uplifted by an article by Doyle Klyg, Weekend Women's Editor who interviews six sumptuous feet of female for some encouraging tips to the tall.
