Golf On Saigon Course Has Unusual Features

By EDDIE ADAMS
SAIGON (AP) — They don't need to adhere strictly to the 14-club rule when they play golf to the tune of mortar fire and buzzing planes in Saigon. "Nothing like carrying an extra iron," a U.S. soldier said the other day as he revealed a pistol in the pocket of his golf bag. Another checked in with an M-16 automatic rifle tucked away with his brassie, spoon and No. 5 iron. Despite the war, a blazing sun and oppressive heat, American soldiers are getting some relaxation by playing golf over the 18-hole Saigon Golf Club course. They roam the spacious links, looking over their shoulders for snipers; dine in the open-air restaurant and loll on the large patio. Some feel a touch of guilt about enjoying the luxuries of the country club splendor. "It just doesn't seem right playing golf over here," said Steve Wright of Lagrange, Ga., an army specialist.

Borden Student Delivers Speech

OTTAWA — A Borden student, Clifford McIver, spoke for Prince Edward Island Thursday at the closing luncheon of the annual Rotary Club's adventure in citizenship. Before more than 300 students and adults in the Chateau Laurier Hotel ballroom, Mr. McIver told of the visit of the students from across Canada to the public Archives. He admitted that at one time he had found Canadian history somewhat dull, but a visit to the archives had made Canadian history come alive, he recognized now that there were many lively and colorful figures in Canadian history. "It was also glad to note that the uniform worn by General Brock when he was killed at Queenston actually does have a bullet hole in it," he said to laughter. He expressed the hope that all Canadians are coming to appreciate something of the nation's heritage and were prepared to carry on the rich traditions of Canada in the future. Also in attendance at the annual Rotary club four-day gathering of students from across Canada was Catherine MacKay of Charlottetown.

ENTERPRISING STUDENTS RUN UNDERGROUND CLUB

TIVERTON, England (AP) — Six enterprising students at an exclusive British boarding school have been caught operating a private night club in a room they tunneled out beneath a dormitory. The story came to light with the disclosure that two students have been stripped of privileges at Blundells school, where the fees run from $1,120 a year. The other four each got six whacks of the cane. The headmaster, Rev. John Stanton, and a search party, acting on a tip, found a trapdoor beneath the carpet in the study occupied by 19-year-old Simon Duffield. Down a short flight of steps the masters found a gaily-decorated room, 10 feet long and six feet high, containing a bar stocked with beer and liquor. The room had a mattress and cushions. Lights, an electric heater, a record player, an electric kettle, a toaster and other conveniences had been hooked into the school's electrical system. This, they learned, was the secret rendezvous of the Sixth Form Cellar Club — known only to the six conspirators who carved it out of earth and rubble, and a few others sworn to secrecy. LEADER OF PLOT Duffield, son of William Duffield, head of a carpeting firm, admitted he was the leader of the plot. "It started as a bit of a joke," he said. "We were all a bit annoyed by the school ruling against smoking and drinking. So I decided to cut a hole in my study floorboards to make a place to hide bottles. "Later we got the idea of expanding the hole. I reckon it took us about two years. We got rid of the earth and rubbish in boxes and bags that we smuggled out at night and distributed around the school gardens. "When the hole was big enough we got some cement and put down a concrete base. I got some carpet underlay and we lined the walls. "We fixed up some colored lights by tapping the main electricity supply. We also needed good ventilation, because of all the cigarette smoke. So we fixed up an electric fan and an outlet pipe." The boys are 16 to 18 years old.

Save Says Legislation Has No Expropriation Question

OTTAWA (CP) — Forestry Minister Sauve assured the Commons Thursday that no farmer will be forced to sell his land under the government's new legislation providing $50,000,000 to fight rural poverty. "There is no question of expropriation," Mr. Sauve said as the measure was given second reading. The bill later was given clause-by-clause study and third reading. It now goes to the Senate which meets again May 24. Pressed for details on the projects planned, Mr. Sauve said they haven't been worked out. But it was expected that $30,000,000 would be spent in northern New Brunswick, though the exact amount of federal money to be spent there hasn't been decided upon. Several speakers expressed doubts about plans by the government to purchase unproductive farms to turn them into model units run by government agencies. "Mr. Sauve said purchases by the government would be welcomed by many farmers, who would like to get off the land in rundown areas. Mr. Sauve mentioned northern New Brunswick, Quebec east of Rivieres-du-Loup, including Gaspé and the Magdalen Islands, and the Interlake region of Manitoba as areas which should be helped. COULD MENTION MORE "There are a great many more areas," he added. But they will not include the Yukon and the Northwest Territories. Erik Nielsen (PC — Yukon) asked Mr. Sauve for assurance the program would include the northern territories which comprised 40 per cent of Canada. Mr. Sauve said he could not give that assurance since the government had signed agreements only with the provinces and not the Yukon or N.W.T. David Orlikow (NDP — Winnipeg North) said he doubts the

Brezhnev Ends Romanian Visit

BUCHAREST (Reuters) — Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev's security-blanketed visit to Romania, was reported Thursday night to have ended, amid growing speculation that it was prompted by an outspoken Romanian challenge to Soviet authority. Usually reliable sources said the Soviet Communist party chief flew home in a special plane after three days of what diplomatic observers said were sensitive discussions with his Romanian counterpart, Nicolae Ceausescu. These observers said they felt a bitter weekend speech by Ceausescu, referring with almost unprecedented frankness to relations between the Soviet and Romanian parties and reasserting Romania's right to run its own affairs, lay behind Brezhnev's sudden descent. It spurred him to fly personally to Bucharest, they said, to try to heal the breach before the impending arrival of China's Premier Chou En-lai.

Pollack Uses Hard Line To Get Juniors In Line

TORONTO (CP) — A big stick can be just as effective as the soft-sell, says Lloyd Pollack, unflappable vice-president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association. Pollack, 56, of Windsor, Ont. has been using generous doses of both to keep the peace during the current battle for the Memorial Cup between Edmonton Oil Kings and Oshawa Generals. The teams are tied 2-2 in the best-of-seven series for the national junior title with the fifth game set for Saturday at 8 p.m. EDT. Edmonton squared the series with a 5-3 victory Wednesday night, in a game devoid of the chippy play that had characterized the series. "They've finally settled down to play hockey," said Pollack Thursday. "For a while I thought we'd have to settle for petty arguments instead of hockey." REJECTED PROTESTS — Pollack has dealt firmly in rejecting protests by Wren Blair of Oshawa and Bill Hunter of Edmonton, respective managers of the two teams. Blair lodged a protest before the first game claiming Edmonton had picked up three ineligible players. "Wren's a fine fellow but he doesn't know the regulations," Pollack ruled. Blair followed up by announcing he would take his protests to the CAHA annual meeting later this month. When the fiery Hunter announced after his team's 7-1 loss to Oshawa in the second game that he would use standy goalie Don Caley, Pollack was unimpressed. "Caley can't play. He's not eligible. Hunter doesn't know the rules." It was only then that Oil Kings learned they had brought Caley, a pickup from Estevan, here for nothing. "It was one heck of a blow," said Hunter. Pollack stood behind his referee Frank Daigneault when Hunter twice demanded he be replaced for being too lenient. To help take pressure off Daigneault, Pollack assigned two new linesmen for the third game. Both Memorial Cup teams spent Thursday in Oshawa for a civic reception and a tour of an automobile plant, the town's major industry.

FISH

Mercury '66—most fishing features of any outboards
A new 9.8 fishing Merc silently pushes you toward your favorite fishing spot. For '66, new quietness begins with a new cowl, mounted to an aluminum frame to cut sound and vibration. New rubber seals and quieter exhaust relief muffler, too. And what's left of the sound is blown out the Jet-Prop exhaust, deep under water—where it is dispersed in the propeller slipstream. When it's time to slow down, just twist the throttle grip on the tiller handle to give less gas. And you don't have to worry much about hidden obstructions. The curved Glide-Angle design slides your Mercury right over them (over fishing lines, too). When you want to slip into a tight spot—where the fish always seem to hide—use the gearshift (forward, neutral, reverse) for easy maneuvering. See the fishing outboards with the big outboard features—3.9, 6, 9.8, 20, (Merco also come in 35, 50, 65, 95 and 110-hp models) at your Mercury dealer.
