Que. Treaty-Right Claim Expected To Be Big Issue

By KEN KELLY

OTTAWA (CP)—The claim to treaty - making powers expressed by Quebec Education Minister Paul Gerin-Lajoie is sure to be a big issue in the continuing constitutional debate inside and outside Parliament.

His claim was challenged in official circles here this week soon after it was made in an address to a group of foreign consular officials.

Prime Minister Pearson then entered the fray, suggesting diplomatically that if a province wants to initiate an international agreement with a foreign country he assumes the province will work through the federal government's external affairs machinery.

The same day, Mr. Gerin-Lajoie returned to the question in another public speech. He asserted Quebec's right to initiate international agreements with foreign countries not only in matters under provincial jurisdiction but also in matters of joint federal-provincial jurisdiction.

His remarks were backed up Friday by Premier Jean Lesage but apparently only with respect to treaties involving matters within provincial jurisdiction.

MARTIN JOINED IN

Then External Affairs Minister Martin joined the debate. In a statement issued from his office Friday evening, Mr. Martin noted that where matters on which an agreement is sought fall under provincial jurisdiction, "the provinces can discuss detailed arrangements directly with the competent authorities of the country concerned."

But when a formal international agreement is to be concluded, he added, federal powers related to "the conduct of over-all foreign policy must necessarily come into operation."

These public statements may be a prelude to demands for a new definition of treaty-making powers at the federal-provincial conference scheduled for May 31.

But before the conference opens the whole question will get an airing in the Commons.

Questions were raised on the subject in the Commons last month at the end of the last parliamentary session. Since then Mr. Gerin-Lajoie has made his two speeches on the subject while Parliament was having an Easter recess.

BNA ACT CLEAR

The British North America Act, the basic constitutional document, has this to say about treaties:

"The Parliament and government of Canada shall have all powers necessary and proper for performing the obligations of Canada or of any province thereof . . . toward foreign countries, arising under treaties . . ."

This section appears to be the basis for the official view of the external affairs department:

"If a province should try to negotiate and enter into treaties in its own right, this would be inconsistent with the constitutional position in Canada, according to which the federal government alone can make treaties."

When the matter was raised in the Commons March 1, Mr. Martin took the stand that the federal government represents all of Canada.

"One, if not the most important, attribute of this international personality accruing exclusively to the Canadian government is the power to negotiate and conclude agreements or treaties of a binding character in international law on behalf of the whole country or of any part thereof with foreign countries."

Rusk Claims Policy Critics Are Only Talking Nonsense

WASHINGTON (AP) — State Secretary Dean Rusk said here critics of U.S. policy in the Vietnamese war are talking "nonsense about the nature of the struggle." He said the security of the United States itself is ultimately at stake in defeating Communist aggression.

Rusk said "I sometimes wonder at the gullibility of educated men in the stubborn disregard of plain facts by men who are supposed to be helping our young to learn—especially to learn how to think."

In a speech prepared for a meeting of the American Society of International Law, Rusk did not designate any critics by name. But among the proposals he rejected were those for a pause in bombing North Viet Nam without requiring that the other side stop attacks in the south.

Such proposals have come from some members of the Senleaders, including Prime Minister Shastri of India, Prime Minister Pearson of Canada and Senator J. W. Fulbright, chairman of the Senate's foreign relations committee.

The main contention in Rusk's attack on his critics, however, was that the Communist drive for conquest of South Viet Nam is an aggression supplied and directed from North Viet Nam, and not primarily an internal South Vietnamese revolution.

Rusk asserted that the United States is committed to principles of international law and procedure that bar aggression by one country against another; that it is concerned with the safety of allied nations, and that it believes in the right of small states to live unmolested by their neighbors.

"But underlying the general principles is the harsh reality that our own security is threatened by those who would embark upon a course of aggression whose announced ultimate purpose is our own destruction," he said.

"Surely we have learned over the past three decades that the acceptance of aggression leads only to a sure catastrophe. Surely we have learned that the aggressor must face the consequences of his action and be saved from the frightful miscalculation that brings all to ruin."

Red Beatniks Taunt Russian Easter Parade

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet - style beatniks, some with guitars, hooted, taunted and threw objects at a Russian Orthodox Easter procession outside Moscow's main cathedral early Sunday.

Several thousand youths jammed the streets around Yekholovsky Cathedral for the start of the traditional midnight search by worshippers for the body of Christ.

Several groups gathered around the guitar players singing non-religious songs while they waited for the procession to emerge from the packed cathedral.

When the faithful came out, mostly elderly people, some of the youths whistled, hooted, booed and shouted rude remarks.

Hooligans also heckled worshippers outside another Moscow church.

Alexei, patriarch of Moscow and of all Russia, 86-year-old head of the Russian Orthodox Church, presided over the service. The Orthodox Easter this year falls a week behind the Western Easter.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1♣	Pass	1♥	1♠
3♣	3♠	4♣	Pass
5♣

Opening lead — three of spades.

Errors of omission can be just as expensive in the play of the cards as errors of commission.

Let's say that you have the South hand and West leads a spade, which you ruff. Prospects of making the contract are very good, since you can make eleven tricks, after drawing trumps, if it turns out that the hearts are divided 3-3 or, failing that, that East has the ace of diamonds.

But if your thinking stops right there, you haven't carried it far enough. There is still another possibility of making the contract, even if the hearts are not divided 3-3 and West has the ace of diamonds.

This possibility costs nothing to investigate and greatly increases the chances of making the contract.

After ruffing the spade, you draw two rounds of trumps, play a heart to the queen, ruff another spade, play a heart to the king, and then ruff dummy's last spade.

These preparations, which do not (in and of themselves) gain any tricks, are made in order to cover the possibility that the hearts are divided 4-2 or 5-1—with West having the heart length.

When you now play a heart to the ace and it turns out that East has no more hearts, you have a right to congratulate yourself on having been smart enough to clear the dummy of spades. These preparatory moves now assure the contract, regardless of where the ace of diamonds is located.

You play the seven of hearts from dummy and, instead of ruffing it, discard a diamond. West wins with the jack, but now finds himself so placed that he must return a spade, giving you a ruff and discard, or else a diamond, which makes your king a trick.

As a result, you make the contract. The underlying principle is that you should not be willing to settle for just a good chance to make the contract without first looking for a still better chance.
