Among them will be seen, Forbie Kennedy, well known hockey player who last winter started with the Detroit Red Wings and who it is expected will act as lifeguard at Fort Edward, Victoria Park, Charlottetown.

Lifeguards And Instructors Are Tested At The Causeway

That Prince Edward Island's resort beaches and other public swimming areas will be well taken care of from a water safety standpoint this season was well illustrated yesterday when the lifeguards and swimming instructors who will work this summer under the supervision of the Provincial Red Cross Water Safety Services, were given the special tests required by the Royal Life Saving Society to qualify for the awards for proficiency. In the morning, seven lifeguards who will be stationed on the North Shore were tested at Cavendish in the art of surf board rescuing. This feat consists of taking the surf board for a distance of 100 yards and rescuing a "victim". The time required by the various candidates varied slightly, but Lifeguard James Gallant performed the feat in two minutes and eleven seconds. This is: in two minutes and eleven seconds from the time of the "alarm". Mr. Gallant had travelled the distance stated and had the "victim" safely on the beach. Other items of the test include handling a row boat, getting patient into boat, swimming continuously for 800 yards, applying artificial respiration, treating for shock and several other operations. The seven lifeguards tested successfully passed and tomorrow morning will be presented with The Royal Life Saving Society's Bronze Award for Lifeguard Proficiency. They are as follows: John Fielding, Don Murray, Don Matthews, George McGuigan, Vince MacIntyre, Ronald Nicholson. The following instructors who will be teaching water safety skills throughout the Province include public swimming areas and summer camps were tested in the first and general stage of water safety and were awarded the Royal Life Saving Society's Bronze Medalion for proficiency: Bob Simmons, Forbie Kennedy, Martha Meyer, Imilda Kelly, Carol Ann Hogan, Patsy MacDonald, Norma Duvar, Janet Curry and Harriet Campbell. The tests were supervised by Mrs. Evelyn Cudmore, Director of Red Cross Water Safety Services for the Province and Douglas Cudmore, Provincial Field Supervisor.

Mr. E.J. Kipping, Supt. of the Province's National Park, under whose supervision the lifeguards will work on the North Shore was present as an observer at the tests and expressed himself as being well pleased with the type and efficiency of the young people in the group. Prince Edward Island's swimming season normally begins about July 1st, so the next two months will see great activity in swimming and boating. Following the tests, Mrs. Cudmore stated that she is "quite proud" of the group of lifeguards and swimming instructors under her care this season and hoped that all would co-operate with them in observing water safety precautions and so enjoy a happy summer free of tragic accidents.

Canadian Research Puts MASTER Ahead

There is no substitute for feeds which are custom-built to meet the conditions under which they will be fed. Master Dairy Feeds are developed in Canada, thoroughly tested on the Master Feeds Farm, proved and improved through the experience of leading Canadian dairymen. As part of Toronto elevators continuing program of research, the Master Feeds Farm has recently begun the purchase of identical twin calves. The reason behind this is that in nutritional research on milk production, one set of identical twins is approximately equal to 22 unrelated individuals. You can be sure of good results when you follow the proven Dairy Program and feed Master Dairy Feeds. See your Master Dealer.
