Long-Standing

Blood Diseases are cured by the persevering use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

This medicine is an Alterative, and causes a radical change in the system. The process, in some cases, may not be quite so rapid as in others; but, with persistence, the result is certain. Read these testimonials:—

"For two years I suffered from a severe pain in my right side, and had other troubles caused by a torpid liver and dyspepsia. After giving several medicines a fair trial without a cure, I began to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I was greatly benefited by the first bottle, and after taking five bottles I was completely cured."—John W. Benson, 70 Lawrence st., Lowell, Mass.

Last May a large carbuncle broke out on my arm. The usual remedies had no effect and I was confined to my bed for eight weeks. A friend induced me to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Less than three bottles healed the sore. In all my experience with medicine, I never saw more Wonderful Results.

Another marked effect of the use of this medicine was the strengthening of my sight."—Mrs. Carrie Adams, Holly Springs, Texas.

"I had a dry scaly humor for years, and suffered terribly; and, as my brother and sister were similarly afflicted, I presume the malady is hereditary. Last winter, Dr. Tyson, (of Ferdinand, Fla.) recommended me to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and continue it for a year. For five months I took it daily. I have not had a blemish upon my body for the last three months."—T. E. Wiley, 140 Chambers st., New York City.

"Last fall and winter I was troubled with a dull, heavy pain in my side. I did not notice it much at first, but it gradually grew worse until it became almost unbearable. During the latter part of this time, disorders of the stomach and liver increased my troubles. I began taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and, after faithfully continuing the use of this medicine for some months, the pain disappeared and I was completely cured."—Mrs. Augusta A. Furbush, Haverhill, Mass.

Here and There.

A man who, it is said, has tried it and found it to work well, offers the following as a cure for rheumatism:—"It costs only a few cents," said he, "and will cure the worst case of rheumatism that can be imagined. Let the affected part be exposed to the heat of a stove, until the skin begins to redden and smart. Then rub the spot with the hand until the heat is distributed over a large surface. Continue to do this for five minutes, and bearing as much heat as possible without blistering. Have ready at hand a mixture composed of a teaspoonful of finely pulverized table salt, thoroughly mixed with one tablespoonful of molasses golden syrup. Apply this mixture as a salve to the affected part after the skin has been well reddened and rubbed with the hand. No matter how long the inflammatory rheumatism may have existed, almost instant relief will be felt. Continue the treatment every day, and at the end of a week a permanent cure will be effected. Meanwhile the patient should take internally four times a day a mixture composed of two drachms of wine of colchicum, two drachms of iodide of potash and one pint of water. The dose is one tablespoonful before meals and on going to bed. It is not absolutely essential that the internal remedy should be taken, but it helps. I was on crutches four years and cured myself in seven days."

Much surprise was caused in Augusta, Me., one day last week when the indictments from the grand jury were reported, at finding that nearly every druggist in the place had been indicted for liquor-selling, and that in the county, out of a total of sixty-five indictments fifty-five were for transgressions against the liquor law. The druggists in nearly every case have stepped promptly up and paid their fines, amounting to about $100 and costs in each case. One hotel was indicted and also paid promptly. It is what is called a "squeeze" in Maine, and comes three times a year when the grand jury sits. The stores, hotels and saloons willingly pay and then keep right on selling as if nothing had happened. Really it amounts to a court law, nothing more or less, and the court machinery is used to collect the money from the liquor sellers, who willingly pay $200 or $300 a year. It works beautifully. Every place is running wide open, and in the capital city there is plenty of drink, and the coffers of the County Treasurer are filled. The prohibitory law is becoming more and more a farce in the State, and a license law is probably near at hand.

A beggar was sitting in a New York street, holding out a battered hat. The following placard was hung about his neck: "Please good people help a poor blind man, who was once rich, but who has been reduced from affluence to poverty. You will never regret it." Presently along came a pleasant-faced man with a sharp, shrewd eye. He looked at the poor old beggar curiously for a moment, and then suddenly drew back his arm as though to strike him in the face. The movement was only a feint, but it served the purpose. The beggar jumped backward about a yard and started on a run up the avenue, winding his way in and out among the passing vehicles with wonderful skill for a blind man.

This love adventure is reported from Shamokin, Pa.: "A young man who is engaged to a young lady proposed a stroll to the romantic cemetery a few evenings since. She demurred at first, but as he was going away to Atlantic City she finally consented. At the cemetery they sat down to watch the moon, and the young man fell asleep. Presently his lips moved with an endearing speech, and he breathed the name 'Mollie.' His lady love, aflame with jealousy, jumped up and gave him a push that sent him rolling down the bank and crashing through the brush till a railing stopped him twenty feet below, badly torn and bleeding. He is recruiting by the sea, and the betrothal is hung up."

One of the laziest men in the country is John Curtis, who is serving a three years' sentence in the State prison at Salem, Ore. Curtis worked in the foundry, and about three months ago took off his boots on the plea that they hurt him and then burned his foot so severely that he was laid up. When the burn was healed he put vinegar on it, and aggravated it to prevent its getting well. The prison physician threatened him, and managed to cure the wound. Curtis was set at work again. He worked four days, and then with a hatchet cut off his left hand. It took two blows. One cut through the fleshy part of the hand, the other clean through the wrist joint. He confessed that he did it to avoid work.

A saloon keeper was brought before an Indiana justice of the peace recently for violating the excise laws. The Magistrate, finding there was great public curiosity about the case, saw a good chance to turn an honest penny, and charged ten cents admission to his office where the testimony was to be heard. Even the lawyer for the accused had to pay an admission fee. He complained to the courts, and, upon the ground that the payment had been exacted—the accused saloon keeper was released from prison.

Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe was poor when she wrote "Uncle Tom's Cabin." The last chapter was written in the office of her publisher in Boston. It was a cold winter morning, and she arrived at the store half frozen. She stood over the stove half an hour before she was sufficiently thawed to hold her pen. Three months from that time she received a cheque for $10,000 as the first payment on the sale of "Uncle Tom's Cabin."

An English shoemaker who visited the Paris exhibition went through the sculpture gallery, and, instead of viewing the statuary from an artistic standpoint, true to his professional instinct, contented himself by examining the feet. In the course of doing so he made the curious discovery that in the case of one otherwise excellent work the sculptor had modeled the feet of his nymph after those of some fashionable young lady who had been in the habit of wearing tight boots.

Prof. Wiggins is on deck again. He says "the tidal wave on the American coast was caused by the recent occultation of Jupiter by the moon." He says "he could have predicted it, but the prediction would have driven the pleasure-seekers from the coast, and thus injured business." Sensitive Wiggins! However, Washington meteorologists say the high tides were due to a hurricane sweeping off the coast from the West Indies. This a clashing of authorities!

The court of Austria has seen the last of his majesty the Shah with unrestrained delight. The Shah carries about with him a young vagabond whose business is to amuse his royal master by playing pranks on other people, without regard to rank or station. In pursuit of this playful mission he placed a stool for the Grand Duke of Austria to kick his shins against, and the Shah laughed gleefully at the success of the experiment.

A romantic wedding recently took place in Easton, New Hampshire. Mr. David Thompson and Mrs. Carle Drew were united in the holy bands of matrimony by John Lord, Esq. The happy bride has seen eighty-three (83) summers, and the gay bridegroom sixty-three (63). The youthful couple took a wedding tour of one week, and are now quietly settled down to house-keeping.

The Czar has a new travelling train. The saloons are covered with iron outside and then come eight inches of cork instead of the steel plates with which the carriages of the old train were protected. All the saloons communicate by a covered passage, and are exactly the same in outward appearance, so that no outsider may be able to discover in which carriage the Czar is travelling.

New Features in the Cronin Case.

BEGGS AND COUGHLIN SEEN ENTERING THE COTTAGE—LONDON TIMES' STORY.

A Chicago despatch says the latest story told in connection with the Cronin suspects is that John Sturzen, a Swede, living a block east of the O'Sullivan residence on Bosworth street, saw Beggs and Coughlin going to the Carlson cottage twice—once on the 1st of May, three days before the murder, and again on the 17th of May, five days before the finding of the body.

Sturzen was coming south on Ashland avenue on Wednesday evening, May 1, when he met the two men whom he has identified as Coughlin and Beggs coming north on the same street. They passed him a few feet south of the cottage, and when Sturzen turned to look at them he saw them go up the steps. Coughlin opened the door with a key that was one his key ring with several others, and both went into the cottage. He got a good view of the men.

The second time he saw them enter was late on the evening of May 17. This time he was coming home from down town. He was going north on Ashland Avenue when these same two, who were also going north, passed him just as he got to the corner of Bosworth street, and he saw them again enter the Carlson cottage. It is stated positively that Sturzen identified Beggs and Coughlin yesterday afternoon in the court room.

A story is rife to-day that the prosecution in the Cronin case has succeeded in having J. T. Kirby, the London Times correspondent, who was in Chicago last year, interviewed at his home in Majara village, Ont. The Chicago detectives persuaded him to talk, it is said, and the story is that he told a blood-curdling tale of the conspiracy to murder Cronin. He was asked to assist in the murderous enterprise, but declined. He says that when he learned that Dr. Cronin was to be removed last fall he hastened out of Chicago, fearing he might be detected. From the information given by Kirby several arrests, it is said, are about to be made in Chicago.

He has fully cleared up the whole plot which was entered into to show that Dr. Cronin had gone to Europe and was murdered. He was the man, so the story goes, who telegraphed Long from Hamilton, Ont., when the latter lost track of his mythical Dr. Cronin in Toronto. He knew of all the arrangements in Chicago for the murder of Cronin, and assisted in perfecting those agreements by communications between LeCaron and the North Side camp which passed through him.

It is asserted that Kirby's story implicates the persons now on trial and fully a dozen others. Some of the latter are well-known north side citizens. These are all under police surveillance, and will be arrested within a few days. It is said that four of them are already in custody. The police say they do not know of Kirby's having made a confession, but that if he had they wouldn't give it out.

Odds and Ends.

The Shah has left Paris for Baden. If all the stories are true, the Shah is rather a bad 'un himself.

"George, there is a sadness and melancholy in your eyes to-night, and your cheeks seemed blanched." "Yes, Maoni, I am far from being happy." "Confide in me, dearest. Let me share your sorrow. Have the buffetings of this cruel world cast a gloom over your soul?" "Well, not exactly; but, you see, those shoes are new, and they pinch like thunder."

An English shoemaker who visited the Paris exhibition went through the sculpture
