P.E.I. Exchange Group Stops Over In Ottawa

CAPITAL BUREAU OF THE GUARDIAN
OTTAWA — A group of 24 Prince Edward Island students representing 22 high schools in the province, arrived in Ottawa at noon Wednesday on their way to Melville, Sask.

The group, led by the principal of the Queen Charlotte High School in Charlottetown, Wendell Horton and Mrs. Horton are the third island group to take part in this summer's centennial travel program. They will be away for 12 days and spend most of their time living at the homes of Saskatchewan people.

After touring Ottawa the students gathered in the railway committee room of Parliament Hill and heard short addresses from secretary of state Maurice Lamontagne and centennial commissioner John Fisher.

Mr. Lamontagne was substituting for Prime Minister Lester Pearson who has started a 10-day visit to British Columbia and Alberta.

He said the youth travel program was one of the most important undertakings of the centennial celebration. In 1965 the federal government would be spending $75,000 to enable about 10,000 young Canadians to get to know one another better.

"We believe this is one of the most effective ways of promoting national solidarity and fostering the more human and personal values of Canadian life," Mr. Lamontagne said.

Mr. Fisher showed a replica of Champlain's astrolabe which he lost in the Ottawa valley. It was subsequently found by a farmer who sold it in the United States. Mr. Fisher said this

W. A. Moose Sweeps Hog, Lamb Classes

Results of lamb and hog carcass competitions, classes 20 and 22 of the Provincial Exhibition prize list, were released yesterday by Harold C. Heitz, Canada department of agriculture Livestock Officer.

In lamb carcasses W. A. Moose Kensington, placed first and third, Guy Thompson, Frenchfort was second, and John R. Thompson, Frenchfort was fourth.

In the hog carcass competition the top carcass was also owned by W. A. Moose. Borden Boswall was second, Ivan Boswall third, and Earl Boswall fourth (all three are from Dunstaffnage) and Cecil Godfrey, New Wiltshire, had the fifth place carcass.

W. A. Moose also showed the top group of four animals, so that gives a clean sweep of top placings to the veteran Kensington livestock breeder.

Quality Hay Classes Draw Keen Interest

Keen and widespread interest was manifested this year in the classes for quality hay, an innovation at the Provincial Exhibition, for which Dave Rogers is most directly responsible. Mr. Rogers is director of extension with the provincial department of agriculture.

Grand champion hay sample of the show was entered by Wilfred MacKinley, North River, and it topped the class for legume hay which had 21 entries.

The grass hay competition drew 35 entries and it was topped by St. Vincent's Farm, Charlottetown RR 7.

The class for mixed hay drew 26 entries and it was won by Ivan Turner, Winsloe.

The competition was so close that only one point separated the placements in some cases.

For example Ivan Turner's second place grass hay sample with 91 points was just one point back of the winner, Scott MacArthur had a 90-point sample and the fourth place sample was worth 89 points.

The hay was placed by Art Lelacheur, district supervisor, plant products division, Canada Department of Agriculture at Sackville, N.B.

Illusionist's Story Starts In Hungary

By RALPH CAMERON
Bewildering speed of performance is only one of the many startling things about the Korengos as the man known throughout the entertainment world as the World's Fastest Illusionist takes the stage to delight and amaze Islanders and tourists alike.

A top vaudeville performer in Budapest, Joe Korengos found himself caught up in a revolution-torn country as his native Hungary was in revolt back in 1956. At that time he and his lovely wife had a tiny daughter who happened to be visiting her grandmother 200 miles away from the capital.

When an opportunity to escape offered there was no time to get the baby, but they knew she was in good hands. So Joe and Irma started alone on the long trek that eventually brought them to Canada and freedom.

Of their escape from Hungary they have little to say, simply shrugging. "It was simple," Joe finally states, "we only had to walk 26 miles and get over the border into Austria." Later they managed to get their daughter out and she rejoined them in America. "They just let her go," Joe says wondrously.

GET CLOSING SPOT
Today they are in Charlottetown where they are being seen by thousands of people daily as they occupy the prized Coliseum vaudeville spot of "closing the show." But they have added something to the act since coming to the new world and are proud of the addition. "He is a Canadian," Joe says of their seven-year-old son Michael who is just plain Mike to everyone.

Now the whole family gets to the act as daughter Eva, now 12, appears to defy all laws of gravity under her father's hypnotic spell, while Mike, in the opening number, is caught among the plumes with a seven-year-old girl friend.

Back last March when they played the Boulevard Room of the Conrad Hilton Hotel in Chicago the act was billed as Korengos and Shari, but in private she is Irma to Joe.

While there are many illusion, or magical, acts in show business, it is the breathtaking speed with which Joe handles all his numbers that has made him a favorite performer for the American Magician Society. Joe learned his trade early because when he was only in his teens in Hungary he won a scholarship which enabled him to study at the feet of a master of the business, the great Rodolpho of Budapest.

MUCH BETTER HERE
Speaking of the difference between working in America and in his homeland Joe says conditions are much better here "and so is the money." On this side of the ocean "if you don't like the sound of a job you don't have to accept a contract. There it is under government control and you do what you are told. And the pay is much smaller — even when you get it."

Most of their performances now are in the United States "because there is more work and higher pay there." However "we love it in Canada and when we quit show business we will make a permanent home in this country. Now we just rent a furnished apartment in Montreal for when we are home and give it up when we have to move off for long periods."

Although it is still a long way in the future, Joe and Irma already have their plans made for the retirement years. "We will open a restaurant in the Laurentians," Joe says, "there is skiing in winter and a resort area in summer. And we have already bought the land," he added to prove his point.

MAKES A HIT
It is little wonder the act made such a hit on the Ed Sullivan show back in 1962. Every afternoon and night the packed Coliseum echoes the astonished gasps of thousands of Islanders and tourists as Irma appears, disappears — and reappears in front of their unbelieving eyes and they go home still not believing what they saw. They are just "at good."

KINGSTON
Kensington had the reserve male champion in Girlie's Duke. No longer are junior and senior and grand champions declared in the cattle rings. Under the Harry Hays formula, champions are declared in male and female classes. There are also reserve champions in each case. But that is all.

L.W. Roper, Brudenell, P.E.I., former director of livestock for the province, placed the Guernseys yesterday.

In addition to Bert Palmer and Sops, Elwood A. Smallwood of O'Leary was a new breeder competing, and he was a strong competitor, with top place cattle in the two-year-old male class, and also in the two-year-old female section.

GUERNSEYS
Bull calf — 1. Harrison Green and Sons, Clyde River; 2. Bertram Palmer and Sons, Kensington; 3. and 4. Roy H. Younker, Kingston; 5. Mrs. Mary Palmer and Sons, Kensington.
