MR. AND MRS. RICHARD DUFFY

Young Couple Plight Troth In Ceremony At Tracadie Cross

Mixed flowers adorned the altar and marked the guest pews at the Roman Catholic Church at Tracadie Cross for the wedding of Eileen McInnis, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John James McInnis, and Richard Duffy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gavin Duffy.

The solemn vows uniting the couple in the holy bonds of matrimony were spoken before the Rev. K.C. MacMillan. Joseph Power served as altar boys.

Given in marriage by her father the bride was radiantly lovely in her gown of white nylon sheer embroidered in "lover's knots". The bodice featured a bateau neckline appliqued in floral design, and long sleeves tapering to lily points at the wrist. A flowing panel from the neckline to the floor formed a chapel train over the full skirt. Her veil fell from a crown of nylon leaves studded with pearls, and she carried a bouquet of red roses.

Shirley Corrigan as maid of honor was becomingly dressed in turquoise sheer over peau de soie with lace jacket finished with tiny bows. She wore a matching headdress and carried a nosegay of golden mums with ribbon streamers.

The flower girl, Karen Pople, niece of the bride wore a frock and headdress of identical design to that of the maid of honor in canary yellow, and carried a basket of mixed flowers.

James Duffy capably filled the role of best man for his brother. Ushers were Michael Hughes, friend of the groom and John Pople, brother-in-law of the bride.

The wedding music was under the direction of Bernadette Power and she and her sister, Patricia rendered many beautiful hymns. George MacDonald sang "O God of loveliness during the ceremony, and "Mother of Christ" during the signing of the register.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Smith for about 50 guests.

Mr. Daniel MacDonald was toastmaster, and the toast to the bride was proposed by the Rev. K.C. MacMillan, and responded to by the groom. Complimentary speeches were made by others.

The bride's table was centered with a three tier wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and groom. Assisting Mrs. Smith in serving were Mrs. Daniel MacDonald, Dianne Corrigan and Mrs. John Pople.

Shirley McInnes of Sudbury, Ont., niece of the bride, circulated the guest book.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. McInnis wore a navy two-piece ensemble with white accessories and a corsage of white carnations. The groom's mother, Mrs. Duffy, was attired in a dress of white and black with accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

A telegram was received from Toronto, and a long distance phone call from Waterville, Maine.

For a honeymoon trip to Maine the bride donned a two piece dress of coral linen with white accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

Out-of-the-province guests were Mrs. Mauriono Crocco and Ronnie Crocco of Toronto, Ont., Mr. and Mrs. John Pople, Karen and Kathy, Waterville, Maine Mr. and Mrs. W.F. O'Regan, Barry and Shelly, Halifax, N.S. Mr. and Mrs. John McInnis and Shirley of Sudbury, Ont., Mrs. Mary Hendricken, Red Rock, Ont.

Prior to her marriage the bride was tendered showers at Tracadie Cross Hall, and at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley C. Thompson, Charlottetown, when many useful gifts were received.

Mr. and Mrs. Duffy are residing at 10 Grafton St. Charlottetown.

Senior Citizens Party Is Held By Kensington CGIT Group

KENSINGTON — The skies smiled in a rare sunny afternoon for the CGIT annual Christmas party for senior citizens on Saturday, November 24. Some thirty five guests at the United Church Assembly Hall, were welcomed as they entered, by Barbara Paynter and Dianne Waite, and registered by Norma Ramsay and Marlene MacEwen.

When all had assembled Sharon Clark, department president extended a warm welcome after which Valerie Bowness presided for a short program. A poem "retrospect", by Dr. A.S. Weir of Pownal, was read by Marjorie Paynter, and a duet, "Good Christian Men, Rejoice", was sweetly rendered by Nancy Clark and Kathleen Walker. This was followed by carols sung by the members of the CGIT and the guests joined in the singing "silent Night".

The Rev. L.M. Murray addressed the company, extending a welcome and expressing his views on the benefits derived from this annual get-together, not only by the senior citizens meeting each other, but by the girls broadening their outlook by becoming interested in the older people of the community.

Rev. Alexander MacKay spoke with appreciation of this annual event, and expressed as his opinion that cheerfulness in spite of trouble, will do much to preserve youth and beauty.

Mr. C.C. Baker, in brief remarks, said "It doesn't make us a bit mad to be considered old", and thanked the girls and their leaders for the "wonderful little get-together".

Mrs. Carruthers introduced the other leaders, Mrs. Donald Glover, Miss Dorothy MacKenzie and Mrs. James Murphy, the latter unavoidably absent.

Tea, sandwiches cake and ice cream were served by the girls of the three groups. The tables were gay with centerpieces in the Christmas motif.

Grace was offered by the Rev. Mr. Murray.

The department president is Sharon Clark. Valerie Bowness is president of the first senior group, and Kathleen Walker of the second Senior group. Patsy Bowness is president of the intermediate group.

CONSERVATIVELY SPEAKING

By ISLANDER

Something occurred to me the other night while I was listening to Premier Shaw on television and I don't know why I hadn't thought of it before. But he was reciting what his government had done in a little over three years and all of a sudden it came to me that practically no one has been left out of real government benefits during that time.

No, Sir, everybody has been taken into account. You can start with the young people of this province who are now going to the kind of schools I wish I could have gone to. And before too long a whole lot of them will be going to those new vocational schools where they'll get some training that will make it easy for them to make the kind of living I'd like to be making. This is a great day for the kids of this province and I'm glad for them.

The fellow that works has had it pretty good too. In the first place he's got some new labour laws that are by far the best he's ever had. But what really counts is the fact that there are more jobs for him today than ever. And with this new plant coming in the provincial government is going to train a good many of the key people in that plant. This means that Islanders like myself will have a chance at some of the real good jobs.

Then there's the farmer. He's the backbone of things and during the last three years he's had it pretty good. And before long he's going to have it even better. Mr. Shaw knows a lot about the problems that come up on the small farm and knows they're not easy. But with new plants coming a man's going to be able to take four or five acres and make a good living off it. And you'll see within a very few months that the farmer and his family who want to improve their farm or their home will get help. It will be an amount that will help the farm family to get on its feet and expand a little and make farming what it can be.

Then there's the fellow that works for a living — or who wants to work for a living. You take a fellow who lives within a few miles of one of these new food plants. He can work off his farm part of the time and his wife can work in season and if he's got some grown kids they can get work too. But those new plants help everybody. They make work for capenters, electricians, truckers, machinists, gas station operators and store people. So when the government does what it's doing right now to bring in more jobs it helps every one that wants to work for a living. And that's one of the things I like best about the present government — they're making jobs fast.

Take the fisherman. I read last week in the paper where the Russians are right out here in the Bay of Fundy with great big ships. One of the fellows who fishes saw one of them close and said to me, "fat chance we've got against them, they're big as a house". Well, things are going to be better because the fishermen have not been forgotten and they're not likely to be. Young fellows that want to go to sea can get some training now and you'll see the Shaw government making the first steps into steel trawlers sooner than you expect. And look what the government just did by working on gill nets. They tell me this is the greatest thing that's hit fishing since the hook and line was invented. If I was young and this government was in I'd go back to fishing.

And one more thing: There was a fellow came into the store the other night and he was talking politics and I couldn't tell what side of the fence he was on. But pretty soon he started talking about tourists and he said, "you know, those people from away aren't so bad after all," we all said to him, what do you mean? Well, he went on to tell how there was a family with a whole mess of kids camped in the park near him and it seems like every day they came down and bought vegetables and milk and before they went home they gave a lot of money for a quilt his wife had made. No, Sir, he said, they're not so bad, so I slipped over too and I said, "of course they're not so bad, they're good, and if you want moe of them and more dollars in your pocket just vote for the Progressive Conservative Government. They'll bring them in." And he said, "I guess your're right," and I said, "I am right," then he kind of laughed and said, "It's kind of like voting to put money in your own pocket," I figured he'd got the point and I said no more.

ELLEN'S DIARY

Alderlea's Family Votes TV Cake Toothsome Good

Was there ever such rainfall as that which now descends on this dim November night? See it thrust its silver spears against the yard-lights! Hear it beat on the rooftop, and fall from the eaves! And at Alderlea, here on this rise of the valley, see the streamlets run, coursing down driveway and lane! The wind too is high. It wails at the door, like, we fancy, some banshee forlorn.

Below the front meadow, down where through the summery days the herons that come in from the river, stand as though painted and fish, and across which the summer-swallows flit lightly, the stream runs in an increased and angry flow. The sound of the many waters rushing through the spillways in the dam now underlies that of the wind. Indeed so high and wide has been the flow, swollen by today's feeding streamlets, that James entertained a fear the bridge in the lane might not withstand its force.

"Now, Ellen, it will be dark when you are coming home" James reminded us this afternoon, when we were about to set out on an excursion to town, with Jamie, eldest grandson of the name." So when you get to the lane, mind you stop at the entrance, and see if the bridge is still there!"

It was. It accepted the little truck's passing, though the stream ran wild, and the rain continued to fall heavily to give us a damp welcome home.

And in the meantime, while we were in town, perhaps we visited you? Came in to your home in company with the dark-eyed, dark-haired lady in the pretty red-dress, who brings you so nicely the popular TV feature that is known as "Today At Home." Or were you busy at the time with the children recently in from school? Or perhaps you were spreading the table for supper and like Martha of old, were "troubled about many things?" If, so, you missed viewing the attractive date-cranberry cake of that cook's mixing and baking. And that is to be regretted, for we can vouch as to its delectability, having sampled it, as did the family at Alderlea later, to vote it altogether toothsome and good.

So we called on you perhaps, enjoying it after a manner, and yet not caring actually to talk of this ordinary woman we are. Much preferring, if that could be, to come in the flesh and meet you, and chat and learn instead, at first hand of those interests of yours and your family.

Sodden the fields lie tonight, as are those stooks of ours yet ungathered.

"We'll thresh no more of them" James in the old armchair comments looking up now from his reading. "We'll feed the rest as they are, to the cattle — yes, in sheaf."

"Now don't talk — at least not until I've finished this'" Granddaughter begs, pen halted for a moment above some "treatise" of class, she is writing. The orangey Curiosity-cat on the couch chuckles quietly. "Everyone has his, or her, worries" he offers. "And" he grins. "though perhaps you'd never guess it, I too have mine!"

"You-"

"Yes, I" he nods.

He smooths back his whiskers and touches delicately here and there his handsome face. Then rises to the window to look out at the night.

"Now wouldn't that rain break a fellow's heart!" he sighs, sinking back on his pillow.

Until tomorrow — — Diary—Good-night.....

Holland Is Topic Of Speaker's Talk

KENSINGTON — A delicious pot luck supper was enjoyed by the members of the Margate Fellowship Group at the regular meeting on November 20.

Following the supper, the meeting was called to order. After a brief business period, the president, Philip Henderson called on Robert Heaney who introduced the guest speaker, Mr. Zeber Salome, of Ross' Corner, manufacturer of Salome's Cereal.

Mr. Salome gave a very interesting and informative talk on his native Holland which he left nine years ago, after losing everything he owned (for the second time) in a flood. He stated that although Holland is only about the size of Nova Scotio, the population is very little less than the whole of Canada. In spite of a great number of people in a small area, the standard of living is high and the people are prosperous. He attributed this to the fact that the country is rich in natural resources which allows for many industries, and to the efficiency with which they are carried on. The people are industrious and well educated. Education (including books etc.) is free through both elementary and high school. The great enemy of Holland is water. Much of the land has been reclaimed from the sea, and the building and repairing of dykes is a major undertaking of the government. If a part of a dyke gives away the sea comes pouring in, destroying everything in its path as happened in Mr. Salome's case. Much of the land being farmed today was, just a few years ago, under many feet of water. The speaker said that only a very few Dutch people wear their national costume as a lady's outfit would cost in the vicinity of $800.00.

The president thanked Mr Salome for his very interesting talk and presented him with a memorial plate depicting Margate United Church.

The meeting closed with the hymn "The Church's One Foundation", a hymn which is also sung in Holland.
