IN A TIGHT CORNER.

An Instructive Story For All Amateur Fortune Tellers.

At one of the recent church fairs they had an imported fortune teller. Her booth was fitted up in compliance with oriental suggestions, her slippers turned up at the toes, her features were tinted to a rich, light brown, and her jewels had their most striking feature in their size. Among her patrons was a tall, dark and distinguished looking man who extended his aristocratic hand without a word. She dropped her luminous eyes after one look at his face and began reading the lines of fate.

"You should complete your college course," she began. "You have learned much, but it is in connection with the speculative and doubtful. There is a brilliant future for you, provided you will concentrate your forces and display a proper tenacity of purpose. You are not convincing enough for a lawyer, you could never keep the secrets of the medical profession, and you lack the application requisite to success in the business world."

"How about the ministry?"
"Absurd! You are so cynical and so insistent upon following the lead of pure reason that you have no religion."
Next afternoon the fortune teller was entertained at the parsonage. In the smiling host she encountered the man whom she had barred from the professions and from business. She learned from the talk about her that he is doing a grand work in the pulpit, but a bright woman is never without an excuse.

"I charged you nothing," she laughed, and no other reference was made to the matter.—Detroit Free Press.

UNUSED TO THE CLIMATE

A Frenchman Finds Canadian Weather Had a Bad Effect on His Health

St. Eustache, Que., Feb. 12.—Auguste Dubois landed here from France, a perfect stranger to the weather conditions prevailing in this country. The food also differed from that to which he had been accustomed, and his heart being weak, the change had a serious effect upon it. He went to a medical man who did him no good. He went to others with a similar result in each case.

"I had to go to Montreal," he says, "to work for the Grand Trunk in that city and met a man who was suffering the same as myself, but had started to take Dodd's Kidney Pills. He told me they were doing him good. He was kind enough to give me a few of them. I took them. I felt much better. I procured a box, and in fifteen days felt like a different man."

Weapons of the Skunk.
A skunk once challenged a lion to single combat. The lion promptly declined the honor. "Why," said the skunk, "are you afraid?" "Very much so," said the lion, "for you would only gain fame for having the honor to fight with a lion, while every one who met me for a month would know I had been in company with a skunk."

This reminds us of the story about Henry Ward Beecher's father, the famous Dr. Lyman Beecher, who, when asked why he did not reply to somebody who had severely attacked him in a newspaper, replied that when a young man, crossing a field one night with an armful of books, he saw a small animal and after hurling several volumes at the animal found he got the worst of it, and ever since had thought it better to let such animals alone.—Our Dumb Animals.
