BRIGHT'S DISEASE CONQUERED.
Entreprise, April 13.
Gentlemen,—Five years ago I fell with a bag of grain, which caused weakness in my back, and was brought on an attack of Bright's disease, and which caused me to lose considerable in weight. After wearing your Pad for six weeks, I gained 13 pounds. All pain and weakness has left me. I would have been yet in the doctor's hands, had it not been for my using your Kidney Pad.
Signed, W. FEWICK, Miller.

THE ONLY PERMANENT CURE.
Tamworth, April 13.
Gentlemen,—I was troubled with painful back, and could not retain my urinal secretion, from painful inflammation of the bladder. I have been treated by a dozen physicians to no purpose, but have worn your Special Pad six weeks. The pain, swelling and inflammation are gone and I am well.
Your Pad is the only cure for kidney diseases.

ALL PRAISE THEM HIGHLY.
Tamworth, April 13.
Gentlemen,—An accident 12 years ago wrenched my back. I could hardly walk, and never lifted anything. The Pad purchased from Mr. Jas. Aylsworth has nearly made me as strong as I ever was. I know of several being used, and all praise them highly.

Hanlan and Kennedy.
THE FAMOUS OARSMAN IN TRAINING FOR THE POINT OF PINES RACE.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 22.—Mr. Edward Hanlan, the oarsman, arrived here this morning from Toronto, accompanied by Wm. Ramsey of the same city. They are stopping at Willard's. It is Hanlan's intention to train here for his coming race with John Kennedy at Point of Pines, near Boston, on the 30th of May. Mr. Corson, president of the Anolostan Boat Club, this morning invited Hanlan to make his headquarters while in the city at the Anolostan boathouse, and he will go into active training as soon as the weather will permit. John Kennedy keeps his boat at Cumberland's boathouse adjoining the Anolostan House and the two oarsmen will be near neighbors during the preparations for their race. Kennedy was not aware of Hanlan's intention to come to Washington to train until he read the telegram to that effect in yesterday's Star.

BOTH MEN WILL BEGIN THEIR TRAINING on an equal footing; for, although Kennedy has been here for some time, he has been able to take but one row on the Potomac, on account of the unsuitable weather. He will go out for a practice pull this evening, and will row regularly unless prevented by bad weather. The presence of these famous oarsmen in Washington is a source of gratification to the members of the local boat clubs, as it will give the boating interests quite a boom early in the season. Hanlan, in the course of conversation to-day, said that he came down to Washington because he wanted to practice on the water instead of the ice. When he left Toronto, the ice on the bay was two feet thick, and the snow 50 inches deep. He was particularly desirous of coming here because of the former good treatment he had received, and the warm friends he had made here. He is looking splendidly, and weighs some twenty pounds more than he will on the 30th of May. This is an advantage, however, as oarsmen prefer to begin their training with plenty of flesh to work off. He had housed his boat in the Anolostan boathouse, and this afternoon took his initiatory spin on the river. The janitor of the boathouse was engaged to-day in putting down a temporary float for his use. Both Hanlan and Kennedy will remain here until about the 20th of May. Boating men all over the country are satisfied that this race will be rowed on its merits, and that the best man will win. Boating men here think that Hanlan feels that he has a good man to row against, or he wouldn't have taken the trouble to come down here in order to get to work early. Hanlan called upon Kennedy at his place of business this afternoon to pay his respects.

WHAT KENNEDY HAS TO SAY.
The Post-morrow will have the following: Shortly after the arrival of Mr. Hanlan a reporter of the Post called upon Mr. John Kennedy, the oarsman, and asked him if he had yet commenced to practice. "No," he answered, "not yet; I expect to get to work during the latter part of this week or the first of next. My boats will arrive next Monday, if not before."
"What kind of boats do you use?"
"I shall practice in a paper shell and row in a cedar one. The boat which I have donated to the Washington Light Infantry fair will also arrive on Monday with the rest of my rig."
"Would you not rather row this race on the Potomac course?"
"Well, I don't know. The way the Boston race came to be selected was that a friend of Hanlan and a friend of mine were appointed a committee, so to speak, to select a place, both of us expressing our willingness to abide by the decision of this committee. They selected the course of the Point of Pines, a piece eight or nine miles from Boston. It is a little cove, the water being always smooth except when the wind come from the southward. I have never rowed on the course, but I have been there. Hanlan rowed an exhibition race there last fall."
"Who is your trainer?"
"I do not know that I will have any trainer. I have always looked out for myself, and have managed to get along very nicely. I have been training others also, and I think I know what I want, in order to make myself perfect as an oarsman, better than any man can tell me."

THE REPORTER'S PRIMER.
"Who is that Angry looking man?"
"That, my Son, is a Reporter."
"Do Reporters always look Mad?"
"Not always."
"What ails that one?"
"He has been to a church Supper."
"Wasn't he invited?"
"Oh, yes. Five of the prettiest Girls in the parish Urged him to go."
"I should think he would have liked that."
"He did. And each of those girls wanted him to give 'my table a special Mention."
"Did he get any Supper?"
"Of course he did. He bought A 5-cent Sandwich for a Quarter and ate it after the Rest got through."
"Where is he going now?"
"He is going to the Office to write that the parish Church supper last Night was a most agreeable Success. The lovely Faces of the fair Maidens in attendance on the Tables were Only rivalled by the Charming liberality with which they Dispensed the finest of Viands."
"Are Reporters ever Sarcastic?"
"No, my son, never."

After his recent election for Newcastle, Mr. John Morley made a brief speech, in which he thanked the electors for choosing him—a total stranger—to represent them in the House of Commons. He was followed by several local men, all of whom admitted that the Liberal victory was due to the support of Mr. Morley by the workmen of a locality in which workmen are exceptionally numerous. Mr. Morley was for many years the editor of the Fortnightly Review, and is now the editor of the Pall Mall Gazette. Since the election of John Stuart Mill for Westminster in 1865 no publicist of the reputation and calibre of Mr. Morley has appeared in the English Parliamentary arena, and he possesses qualities necessary to a practical Parliamentarian, in which Mr. Mill was almost entirely wanting. Mr. Morley's majority was 2,000 in a total of 16,705.

Unknown to himself, Victor Hugo was recently outrageously insulted by the proprietor of the Continental hotel in Paris. A banquet was given in his honor by his literal confederates. During the progress of the festivity batches of people, forty or fifty at one time, were admitted to apartments from which the banqueters, and Hugo in particular, could be advantageously observed. It has now leaked out that all these batches of people paid the hotel proprietors liberally for the chance to see the great literateur.

Prince Frederick Charles, son of the late Prince Charles of Prussia, falls heir to his father's immense estates, which yields him $2,000,000 cash in hand, and as much more in real estate, to say nothing of other valuables. Previous to his father's death he had to skimp along on an allowance of $100,000 a year, about which he complained a great deal.

A Buffalo scientist explains that the aesthetic way of cracking a butternut is to make an incision in the osseous endocarp at right-angles with the plane in the region of the rudimentary sutures. In this way the operator is able to strike the oleaginous ovule laterally. The old method was to break the shell with a flat-iron and pick out the fruit with a fork.

Gov. Butler, of Massachusetts, keeps on attending to his extensive law practice, and justifies himself as follows:—"Gov. Talbot did not stop his woolen mills when Governor; why, then, should I stop my jaw mill when I am Governor?"
In a lecture on gambling and gamblers' methods, Mr. J. H. Stanley said $40,000,000 was squandered annually in New York city on gambling games.
