

upon to protest against such an unworthy course, and to demand the proofs of the charges preferred. George Sutherland took up the gauntlet, and at length, disdaining disguise, has rushed into the field with vizor raised, and lance in rest.

"Who, at the ear of Eve, familiar toad, Half froth, half venom, spits himself abroad."

Hear the Parson:—

"Now, however far Maclean may have sunk, he is yet a human being." (great discovery that!) "and not a toad; and the application of that term to any man is scurrilous, and therefore immoral."

Now, we trust we shall not be considered as referring irreverently to the Holy Scriptures, when we request our readers to recall the passages in both the Old and New Testaments, wherein individuals and classes are described figuratively. St. Paul, for example, called the High Priest Ananias, "a whited sepulchre."

In the next passage of the letter under review, the Reverend George has adduced what he conceives to be a very conclusive proof of our immorality. We quote it at length:—

"Again, under date of Feb. 23d, 1857, he (editor of Examiner) says of a presbyterian minister: 'He has confounded the bible with another work, which he holds, no doubt, in equal reverence, viz: the Awful Disclosures of Maria Monk.' Is it true that any presbyterian or protestant minister, in good standing, regards any production of any mortal with reverence 'equal' to that with which he regards the word of God? I have no hesitation in saying that it is not; and therefore the Examiner has not only stated a falsehood, but published a slander against a protestant minister. Is there no immoral tendency here?"

The allusion to Maria Monk's book was necessarily called forth by an allegation of the Rev. Alex. Sutherland, at the Protestant meeting in February last, to the effect that the Bishop of Charlottetown had sometime previously ordered the Bible to be burnt. This statement we denounced as utterly false and unfounded, and the author of it was dared to prove his words, which he has not done, and cannot do; but in connection with our refutation of the slander, we observed, that infamous publications like Maria Monk's had probably been burnt in the way alluded to, and very properly so; and that in the fullness of his wrath and confusion the Reverend calumniator had confounded such works with the Sacred Volume.

Now, perhaps the Sanctified scribe of the Protector will answer a question similar to the one he put to his readers: Was there nothing immoral in the conduct of his namesake stating a gross falsehood of a Christian Bishop? and was not the falsehood grievously enhanced in immorality when the destruction of the Word of God was the substance of it? Perhaps, according to Mr. Sutherland's way of thinking, the sting of immorality is taken out of it, by the fact, that the false charge was not preferred "against a Protestant minister." Next we find that we are, by a very summary process of logic, stripped of our Christian character, and declared to be an infidel, because we are a Catholic. Well, if it be true that we are not to consider ourselves within the pale of the Church, we suffer in common with a good many; and, among the crowd of outside barbarians, we have the consolation of finding ourselves in company of many nearly as talented, well-educated and intelligent, as that band of confessors whose pious dullness mystifies the readers of the Protector.

that they shall not be characterised by vulgarity and abuse. Can the Protector people say as much?

Come we to the next argument of our infidelity. "Whatever represents the ministers of the Gospel, uncondemned, either by public report" (a queer tribunal of condemnation!) "or fair trial, as hypocrites, liars, slanderers and such like, tends most directly to infidelity!" So says Mr. Sutherland. Thus saith the Examiner, "whatever tends to represent men, be they priests, parsons or laymen, as they really are, tends most directly to the advantage of society, the spread of morality and true religion."

Not wishing to encroach on the Islander's peculiar province, we have left our Reverend Boanerges to be dealt with by our contemporary with reference to that portion of the letter we have noticed, which more particularly refers to him. We have not wearied our readers with a protracted notice of all the nonsense which has been penned against us, as it would be wasting their time and our own, and might suggest a reflection that the Examiner was fast sinking to the level of the Protector. We desire, by all means, to guard against so damaging an impression.

LATEST NEWS FROM INDIA.

The steamskip Baltic arrived at New York from Liverpool, on the 25th ult. with four days later news from England. The following particulars respecting the Indian mutiny are furnished by this arrival:—

The intelligence from Delhi extends to the 30th August. The siege train was expected to reach the English camp by Sept. 3d, after which the place would be probably assaulted. On the 25th of August a body of the rebels, which left Delhi with the object of intercepting the siege train, was attacked by Gen. Nicholson at Najafgarh, and utterly defeated, with the loss of all their guns.

Gen. Havelock gained his ninth victory on the 16th August, driving the rebels from their strong position near Bithoor, which they desperately defended. After the battle he retired to Cawnpore, where he awaited reinforcements before advancing to the relief of Lucknow.

The garrison at Lucknow held bravely out, and no doubt was entertained of their being able to do so until relief arrived, which was expected to be about the middle of September. The garrison had made a second successful sortie, in which two guns and a large quantity of provisions were captured.

The Dinapore mutineers had again been defeated by Major Eyre, and were trying to make their way to Delhi.

At Agra all was well. The rebels from Oude were threatening Allahabad and Benares, and those places were being put in a state of defence. Large bodies of troops were marching from Calcutta towards Allahabad.

A despatch to the London Post says: "The British forces, taking the offensive, had attacked the batteries at Lucknow Castle, capturing the guns."

A SHOCKING AFFAIR.—Late papers from St. John, N. B. received by this morning's mail, furnish accounts of a horrible affair which occurred on the Black River Road, near that city, on Saturday night, the 24th ult. We learn that two houses owned, and one occupied, by a Mr. Robert McKenzie were consumed by fire on that night, and himself and his whole family, consisting of a wife and four children, were found buried in the ruins. It is stated, that there is good reason to apprehend that the fire was the work of an incendiary, and that the unfortunate family were first murdered, to enable some yet undiscovered miscreants to possess themselves of a considerable amount of money which McKenzie was supposed to have in his house. Suspicion has fallen on several individuals, of whom the police were in pursuit.

THE ATLANTIC MONTHLY, DEVOTED TO LITERATURE, ART, AND POLITICS.—This is the title of a new Magazine, the first No. of which came to hand by the last mail, from the well-known publishing house of Messrs. Phillips, Sampson & Co., Boston. It is splendidly got up, and filled with the choicest reading. Its list of contributors embraces the names of Prescott, Emerson, Bryant, Longfellow, and many others who stand high on the roll of Literature both in Europe and America. It promises to be an excellent periodical, and will no doubt command an extensive circulation. It can be had, we believe, at any of the Bookstores.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.—We have received several communications during the past week, in addition to those which appear in our present issue, but we are unable to make room for them to-day.

RECENTLY IMPORTED STOCK OF THE ROYAL AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY.

[We take from the People's Journal, of the 24th ult., the following extracts from a letter addressed by the Secretary of the Royal Agricultural Society to the editor of that paper, in reference to some observations published therein respecting the recently imported Stock of the Royal Agricultural Society. These extracts from Mr. Irving's letter supply all the necessary information regarding the importation referred to.]

The stock purchased by me for the Agricultural Society consisted of a Cart Stallion, two Cart Mares, one Durham Bull, two Durham Heifers (in calf), two Leicester Rams, five yearling Leicester Ewes, five Leicester Ewe Lambs, and a Boar and Sow Pig. These animals were all high bred, young, and in full health. They had been properly prepared by physic and food for the voyage. The slings were made, and stalls put up in the vessel by persons fully experienced in such matters. A fifty days' supply of the best hay, oats, bran, swede turnips, mangold wurtzel, oil cake, straw, &c., &c., was put on board, as well as medicines of different kinds. A very experienced person, and an assistant, were engaged to look after the stock. Their hammocks were slung alongside of the horses, where a lamp was kept burning all night, that immediate assistance might be rendered when necessary, and I had for my own convenience a communication from the cabin to the stock to render the thing still more safe. After all these arrangements were made, and the stock shipped, I had everything examined by Mr. John Ellis, of Liverpool, Veterinary Surgeon, Mr. John Spinks, and others accustomed to the shipment of stock, in order that nothing might be left undone for their safety and comfort. These gentlemen approved of every thing that had been done, and even their experience could suggest no improvement or alteration.

You stated that the loss of the stock was caused by "insufficient ventilation." This is a very great error, for the ship having no cargo between decks, there was a constant circulation of air fore and aft, and, with the exception of a few hours, occasionally, during heavy rains, or when the ship was taking a little water on board over the bows, the lee door of the booby hatch—which was placed over a portion of the main hatch—was always open, the draft from the sails down upon the stock being usually too great to enable us to keep them both open. The stalls were well padded all round. The slings supporting the horses were kept in their places by breast-plates and breeching, and the horses were supported when the ship rolled by strong breast-plates and breeching, fast-ned to ring-bolts in the planks which separated the one from the other. Animals of all kinds suffer from sea-sickness, and it was not to be expected that those in question would be exempt from the general rule. They will, however, stand a good deal of knocking about, provided they have a day or two, occasionally, to recruit; but in such weather as the Ellen experienced during the voyage, when gales succeeded gale almost without intermission, this was denied them. On one occasion we laid-to for five days, during twelve hours of which it blew a hurricane, such as had not been experienced in the Atlantic for the last ten years, so that had the stock possessed constitutions of iron, they could not have stood it with impunity,—and the wonder is, not that some died, but that so many escaped. The loss, which is a serious one to the country, consists of a Cart Stallion and Cart Mare, two Rams and one Ewe. The stallion died from what may be called malignant catarrh; the mare, from madness caused by fright, which produced so much general irritation, that ultimately the brain became affected. One ram died from liver complaint, and bursting of the gall bladder; the other ram and ewe, from exhaustion, and bruises received during the heavy gale commencing on the 22d September, and which continued about five days.

SHIPWRECK.—The barque "Maria," of Milford, England, Thomas Davies, master, on her voyage from Milford to Richmond, in Baie de Chaleur, was driven on shore at Savage Harbour, on the north side of this Island, in the dreadful gale on Tuesday night, the 27th instant—the crew managed, with great difficulty, to effect a landing. Lloyd's Agent will proceed immediately to the wreck to have a survey held and do the best for all concerned; from the position of the ship and the injury she has received, it is generally supposed that she will not be got off. Great credit is given by the inhabitants on the coast to the master and crew for their exertions in endeavoring to keep the vessel off the land at the risk of their own lives.—Com.

Found on the shore a little above Indian Point, so called, near Cape Tormentine, at Botsford, of the 5th inst., by Mr. John McKay, the body of a man apparently past middle age; about 5 feet 10 inches in height, rather stout, with dark hair, and whiskers quite grey; dressed in a blue coat, black vest, grey homespun pants, long stockings and boots—nothing in his pockets but a knife and tobacco. The body was taken by the inhabitants of the place and decently buried. It is more than probable that the poor man belonged to Prince Edward Island. The Editors of Charlottetown will no doubt confer a favour upon the friends of the deceased by publishing the above description.

Yours most respectfully,

C. VANBUSKIRK, Post Master.
