Court Ruling Causes Concern To Industry

Premier Walter R. Shaw, Agriculture Minister Andrew MacRae and R. L. Burge, chairman of the provincial potato marketing board expressed concern over Magistrate James B. Johnston's ruling Friday that board regulations calling for the levy of one cent per hundredweight on potatoes shipped out of the province are not applicable.

Fees collected by the board through the levy are used by the board to promote the potato industry.

Premier Shaw said "while we have not yet had time to assess the situation, it is something that will have to be thoroughly explored and a decision made on what is to be done after proper consultations held. Investigations will be carried out to see whether or not the ruling will be appealed."

Agriculture Minister MacRae said he will meet with the board to discuss the situation.

While Mr. Burge had no comment yesterday he did stress the need of funds by the board to finance its promotional work and pointed out that the levy is the board's source of income.

Mr. Burge added that only a small amount was involved in the test case in Queens County Magistrate's Court. "But," he said, "some of the fees involve several thousands of dollars with one case involving $4,000."

He said that back around 1956 shippers agreed voluntarily to pay the levy at the board's request. Later the levy was made compulsory, but there were some shippers who neglected to pay it in both cases, he said.

Beef Marketing Committee To Present Report July 31

Tuesday evening, July 31, has been named as the date for the committee, investigating means of improving the beef cattle marketing situation here, to report to a general meeting of beef producers, it was learned yesterday.

The meeting will be held in the Prince of Wales College auditorium at 8.30 and approximately a dozen proposals will be suggested, it was learned from J.L. Dewar, committee secretary.

INTEREST HIGH

Committee chairman Daniel Gass, Cornwall, observed recently that the interest has been sustained at a high level throughout the lengthy discussions. The 12-man committee was named at a general meeting of producers here in mid-April, and it has been working over since on the task of exploring all possible means of improving the beef cattle marketing situation.

In addition to meetings with Canada Packers' top people, including president W.F. McLean, to discuss a formula which the Canada-wide organization suggested, it has probed and discussed many other ideas.

There has been no announcement on specific suggestions — that must await the general meeting on the last of the month — but it has been indicated by committee members that livestock yards are one of the many ideas the committee had in mind during some of its discussions.

Shipping cattle outside the province to some of the bigger marketing outlets is another possibility that has been discussed, according to an unofficial report.

Canadian Teachers College Evaluates General Activities

An analysis and evaluation of Canadian College of Teachers' activities and a business meeting occupied the morning session for delegates to the annual CCT meeting at Montgomery Hall yesterday.

In a closed session, Prof. D. C. Monroe led the discussion on the accomplishments of the organization. Prof. Monroe is director of the Institute of Education at McGill University.

CCT ACTIVITIES

General activities of this 'professional and scholarly organization' include holding of national, regional and local meetings, exchange of information through publication, establishment and maintenance of a library or libraries, encouragement of research and writing, and expenditure of funds for scholarships, etc., in research.

According to the constitution the CCT has as its objects the stimulation of professional growth of teachers, improving of standards of teachers' professional service, and holding the concept of a good teacher before the public and the profession.

Value Of Construction Nears $4 Million Mark

The new Mother House for the Sisters of St. Martha, to be built on Mount Edward Road at Mount St. Mary's, will cost upwards of $1,250,000, it was learned yesterday.

The contract for the building is expected to be awarded Saturday, with work to commence Aug. 1.

The announcement of this new contract pushes the value of construction for 1962, to date, in Charlottetown and immediate vicinity to nearly $4,000,000. It is expected that by year's end an all-time record will have been set for building in Charlottetown.

The record was set last year when in excess of $5,000,000 worth of construction was started.

Other major projects underway in the city are the Recreational Centre being constructed by St. Dunstan's Parish, valued at $750,000, and the St. Dunstan's University Library at about $400,000. Expected to start before the year is over are construction on the new vocational school, valued at approximately $1,500,000, and a new Canadian Legion Home, the value of which has not yet been announced.

CITY HALL APPROVAL

To date, City Hall has approved building permits valued at $1,278,650. This figure does not include the Recreation Centre nor the SDU Library. Major projects included are the $363,000 West Kent School and $300,000 in construction being carried on by Maritime Electric at their local plant.

Architect for the new Mother House is Joseph Dunne of Montreal, in association with Charlottetown architect Peter A. McNeil. The contract will be awarded Saturday when Mr. Dunne visits Charlottetown.

It is expected that it will take two years to finish the E-shaped building, which measures 251 feet in length, is 113 feet deep, and rises three storeys. It will be constructed of steel and concrete and will house about 150. One of its main features is a large chapel seating 175 persons.

French-Can. Have 81 Members In New Commons

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's 25th Parliament will have 81 French - Canadian members in the commons as a result of the election Monday of Liberal Lucien Lamoureux in Stormont. There were 73 in the last Parliament.

Six provinces have French-Canadian MPs. The majority are from Quebec, which has 69 French-language members, including 30 Liberals, 26 Social Crediters and 13 Progressive Conservatives.

Ontario has six and New Brunswick three, all Liberals. Nova Scotia has a Conservative, Manitoba a Liberal and Alberta a Conservative.

Not all have French names, however. For example, there is Defence Production Minister Raymond O'Hurley, member for Lotbiniere; Roland English, Conservative for Gaspe; Frnn. - Paul Cook, Social Credit MP for Montmagny-L'Islet and Guy Crossman, Liberal in Kent, N.B.

7 KILLED IN CRASH

BOMBAY, India (Reuters)— Seven persons were killed and two others feared dead after a DC-3 aircraft crashed while on a food-dropping mission in India's northeast frontier area, it was announced here Tuesday. A spokesman for the plane's owners, Kalinga Airlines, said seven unidentified bodies were recovered and the other two persons on board were feared dead.

U.S. Railroads Have Scheduled Economy Steps

CHICAGO (AP)—The American railroads notified their union operating personnel Tuesday that economy and other steps recommended by a presidential commission will be put into effect Aug. 16.

J. E. Wolfe, chairman of the railroads' bargaining committee, said the move means elimination during the next year of about 13,000 firemen employed as second men on diesel locomotives in freight and yard service.

"The firemen displaced will receive unprecedented severance pay, retraining and rehiring," Wolfe said.

The remaining 37,200 firemen in freight and yard service, he said, will keep their jobs "subject only to natural attrition."

"Their retention will at the outset cost the railroads about $216,000,000 a year for doing nothing," Wolfe said.

He added that presidential railroad commission's recommendation for wage increases and other benefits which would affect about 75 per cent of the operating employees thus will be put into effect Aug. 16.

The unions now are expected to end a strike date — a move that would bring the federal government back into the dispute.

"Everything is bought at all bases from all dealers, only if produce is from inspected plants."

Mr. Sangster said that there might be some difficulties in selling in Argentia "as at present, we have no direct market contacts there. For instance, potato shippers may have to rely on getting independent carriers to take their produce in."

Mentioning perishable goods, Mr. Sangster said "I feel we will have to arrange service, using our own Maritime Central Airways as the carrier."

The marketing director said that Cornerbrook is developing into a good market for Maritime produce. "Recent arrangements have been made," he said, "between MCA and a competent trucking line to carry perishables and other foodstuffs from Harmon Field into Cornerbrook.

"This service, which has just been instituted, is available to provincial shippers. Goods from here are flown to Harmon Field, then trucked to Cornerbrook.

"In Cornerbrook, there are about 150 outlets for Maritime goods, and I hope Island producers will make use of this service.

"I might add that one Maritime firm is making good use of the service, selling bread and pastries," Mr. Sangster concluded.

Trade Expansion With Bases Seen

By DON MacLEOD
Guardian-Patriot Staff Writer

Island firms that have passed inspection, and are shipping produce to American bases in the north, will be contacted in the near future by provincial marketing director Reid Sangster, with a view to expanding export trade, particularly with the naval base at Argentia, Nfld.

Mr. Sangster, accompanied by King Forde, a vice - president of the Atlantic Province's Economic Council and cargo director of Maritime Central Airways, spent most of last week at Argentia, investigating the possibilities of increasing trade.

NOT UNFAVORABLE

"While in the past most of the base's requirements came by ship from the Eastern United States area, American procurement officers are certainly not unfavorable to changing their buying methods, and are anxious to do so if it can be of value to this province," Mr. Sangster said.

"Some of our potatoes are getting into Argentia, and we hope to build this trade to a greater extent. Their pootato requirements run as high as 90,000 pounds per month, which on a yearly basis is a good market. They also require about 14,000 dozen eggs per month, 2,000 pounds of carrots, and cabbage and turnips. There is also interest in frozen foods.

"Like all other bases in the American chain, firms that intend to ship there must have either a clearance from the base

C. America Tour Dangerous, 2 Ottawa Students Discover

By RON LEBEL

OTTAWA (CP)—Two Ottawa University men are staying close to home for a while after a six - month tour of Central America in which they faced death in the desert, constant hunger, the risk of malaria, and even arrest as suspected pro-Castro agents.

Thin and haggard, Pierre Nadon, 22, and Maurice Vaney 21, arrived here by bus after driving their shaky two - cylinder pickup truck into the ground and going through a bare-boner $600 budget. They left here Jan. 5.

"Now that we know how to travel, we hope some day to visit South America or Africa but with a more realistic attitude," Nadon said in an interview.

The young men travelled on roads ranging from fair to atrocious, and had a close shave when their truck overshot a hairpin curve at night and rolled down a 30-foot embankment in Guatemala.

Their first hair-raising experience also took place in Guatemala in mid - February, when they were picked up with pro-Castro students who had led anti - government riots a few days earlier.

They were detained for a few hours until an army officer arrived, examined their passports and released them.

CASTRO CHIEF TOPIC

They found that Cuba and Premier Fidel Castro were the most common topics among Latin Americans. At a May Day rally in the Nicaraguan capital of Managua, workers shouted such slogans as "Cuba today, Nicaragua tomorrow" and in most Central American cities they saw pro-Communist leaflets and posters.

"People are split in their opinions on Cuba," said Mr. Nadon. "Castro is a hero everywhere, especially among workers, but most people we saw were strongly nationalistic and opposed to communism."

He found that his hosts had great respect for Canada because of her "non-interference" in Cuban affairs. They had a pretty good knowledge of Canadian geography and politics, although "many have the impression we're still a British colony."

"Everywhere we went, first they asked us if we knew Paul Anka (we don't) and then what we think of Castro."
