Avro Workers Register As Unemployed

TORONTO (CP)—Hundreds of A.V. Roe (Canada) Limited workers, laid off Friday with the federal government's decision to scrap the Arrow jet fighter program, lined up Monday to register for work and unemployment benefits.

The National Employment Service used carloads of processing forms to service the more than 13,000 workers made jobless at Avro Aircraft Limited and Orinda Limited, subsidiaries of A. V. Roe (Canada) Limited at suburban Malton.

The Unemployment Insurance Commission set up three temporary offices at the Avro plant. The commission announced it was starting a drive among employers in the region in an attempt to find jobs for at least some of those dismissed.

City Group Makes Flight To Baddeck Bay

Many Islanders were on Baddeck Bay, N.S., yesterday to witness the flight of the Silver Dart II, commemorating the 50th anniversary of the first flight of an aircraft in Canada which took place from the same bay. Among those present was a group from Charlottetown who went by special Maritime Central Airways flight.

The group included: Dr. Jack because this was the only "fruitful" field of taxation still available to hard-pressed provincial governments, faced with rising costs in such fields as education, highway construction and welfare services.

Premiums, the normal method of purchasing insurance protection, could not be used to build roads, he asserted. British Columbia may sometime run the day that to pay for the plan it imposed a sales tax and gave up the premium method, he added.

Dr. Taylor pointed out to Mr. Bell that in Ontario the number of those unable to afford premium payments would in all probability be far larger than in Prince Edward Island.

The hospital insurance plan was perhaps the most important piece of legislation ever to come up for consideration in the P. E. I. Assembly with the possible exception of Confederation itself. Dr. Taylor observed in his opening remarks.

The unanimous approval accorded the measure in the Canadian House of Commons destroyed the contention of those who asserted that the scheme was foisted on the people of Canada as a vote-catching measure, he noted.

GENUINE PROBLEM It was a genuine problem solution of which had been the subject of voluntary study on the part of many voluntary organizations for many years.

By enabling the citizens of a Province to purchase protection by means of small regular payments when well, the "catastrophic effect and actuality" of hospital costs, necessarily greatly increased through the "march of medical science" was wiped out. This fact alone, Dr. Taylor contended, was alone almost worth putting such a plan into effect.

To retain democratic control such plans must necessarily be made responsible to the Legislature of the Provinces concerned, but to cut down unnecessary costs, independent commissions were also needed, the Alberta-born expert declared.

Victims Of Misfortune Said Main Concern Of Red Cross

"Refugees from war or political upheaval, victims of misfortune anywhere, regardless of religion, race or political belief, are the concern of the International Red Cross," Marshal Stearns, chairman of the national executive committee, Canadian Red Cross, told those attending the annual dinner of the P.E.I. division at the Charlottetown Hotel last evening.

He reviewed that 100 years of Red Cross service to humanity since its founding by a Swiss national after the battle of Solerno.

"We are a great international volunteer organization — the greatest humanitarian movement the world has ever known. More than 120 million men, women and children are members of the Red Cross, the Red Lion and Sun societies in 84 nations of the world. In Canada almost two million active, voluntary members are dedicated to this common ideal."

By the middle of this year, said Mr. Stearns, the National Blood Service will be available throughout the length and breadth of Canada, with the possible, sole exception of parts of eastern Quebec.

"Disaster relief," he said, "continues to receive a high priority among programs." Expansion of the Water Safety Service was recommended by the program evaluation committee.

It was felt, however, that First Aid is no longer a proper Red Cross service except in Prince Edward Island where, so far, St. John Ambulance is not ready to cover the field.

Holy Redeemer Scouts, Cubs Hold Father And Son Banquet

The annual father and son banquet for the Holy Redeemer Scouts and Cubs was held last night at the Community Centre, with an attendance of over 250. Guests included R.C. Parent, Provincial Boy Scout Commissioner; Rev. Father Swift, representing the parish clergy; and Wilfred Duffy, chairman of the local group committee.

Costello made a presentation to Mrs. St. Clair Trainor, president of the Ladies Auxiliary Group, for the work done during the past year by the group. Toasts proposed included the Queen by Cub David LeClair; Baden-Powell by Scout Charles MacMillan; Clergy by Cub Ian Hunter; Dads by Scout Larry Hughes and Mothers by Cub Lorne MacDougall.

During the banquet Frank J. receiving government social assistance such as mother's allowances, old age assistance, blind pensions, etc., those on regular municipal relief rolls; and those normally self-supporting who did not come to the Commission's attention "until they landed in hospital."

So that non-payment of premiums may not be encouraged municipalities concerned are made liable for five dollars per patient day in such cases, he said, but added that the Ontario provincial government policy of increased grants to municipalities had the effect of reimbursing them for this additional burden.

Replying to a question put by Mr. Myers, Premier, Matison said that in this Province such cases would be handled by the provincial welfare department.

Asked by Morley M. Bell, QC (L-5th Prince), how many must join to make the plan operative, Dr. Taylor said that Premier

When inability of these in the third classification is determined, municipalities pay the initial assessment and the Hospital Services Commission assumes the bill.

In their case, the federal government shares the hospitalization costs in the same manner as if they were insured, Dr. Taylor asserted.

administrative machinery had been taken over by the Hospital Services Commission, Dr. Taylor asserted. However the Blue Cross were still permitted to sell private and semi-private room coverage, an extra, demanded by approximately 70 per cent of their clientele prior to the plan.

The extra premium charged was collected with the regular premium and paid over to the Blue Cross less five per cent for costs of administration.

Similar privileges were granted Ontario's 38 co-operatives respecting additional coverages, he added.

Labor's reaction to the Ontario plan was generally favorable, Dr. Taylor reported. Most unions devoted the premium savings to purchasing added medical protection, life insurance and other similar benefits, he said.

Replying to the third question asked by Mr. Acorn, the Ontario expert stated that the federal regulations required participating provinces to pay in full the operating costs of the participating hospitals.

The annual payments would include estimated depreciation on equipment, but would not include anything to cover interest on capital debt or depreciation on buildings.

These two liabilities he later informed J. B. St. John (L-1st Kings) were fully assumed by the Provinces of Manitoba, while other Provinces in the scheme allowed the hospitals to keep the sum collected for private and semi-private care.

NEW SUGGESTION Asked by Dr. Bonnell if any Province had given consideration to permitting the hospitals to keep one quarter of these extra payments and devote the remainder to some form of equalization grant to assist hospitals having less private and semi-private facilities.

Dr. Taylor stated he could not recall a similar suggestion having been made, but expressed the opinion that it was "extremely worth while."

Costs of additional hospital construction, depreciation charges and interest on capital debt could be met easily in the Province of Ontario, where fund-raising campaigns had additional support from the many corporation head offices located there, the guest expert observed.

In Canada, calculations of patient-day costs varied between $18 and $24 dollars, Dr. Taylor noted. Based on whatever figure arrives
