LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Reply to "Shellfish."

SIR.—I notice a scribbler has appeared in THE EXAMINER of the 4th inst., signing himself "Shellfish." It is the right name for him. There is neither sense nor argument in anything he has written. For instance, "Shellfish" says: "Suppose for the sake of argument that the Government saw fit to close up all the tailors in Summerside for three years in order to afford the sheep an opportunity to grow more and better wool." I regret that "Shellfish" is so ignorant of sheep culture. Every one of common sense knows that sheep require to be shorn every spring, and if not, the wool will get very coarse and be a total loss if not shorn. "Shellfish," you know, has no brains, and I would certainly advise him to keep as close to the shore as possible, for if he gets in deep water he will be sure to drown or be gobbled up by a big lobster.

He advises me to stick to my goose. If Andy Johnson had stuck to his goose he would not have been President of the great American Republic. Nor would "Stone-wall" Jackson be a great warrior, nor Lincoln a great statesman. Had Grant stuck to tanning his fame as a great General, and as a President would not have been known to the world. If the Hon. Alexander McKenzie had stuck to his trade as a mason, this great "Canada of ours" would have lost a great statesman and reformer. But "Shellfish" should have lived in the dark ages for his remarks to be appreciated. I would advise "Shellfish" to hide himself under a small stone, near the shore, in order that he may be with congenial small fry. If "Shellfish" will come out under his own name and answer my first letter, I will then give him "Tally Ho," as my friend Brazil says, besides all the information required.

JOHN MCKENZIE.

Summerside, March 5th 1886.

Lower Montague Notes.

The young men of this section have been occupied for some time past in training their horses for the Montague races, in which Mr. J. E. Buchanan's Don Juan mare won laurels from all comers. J. S. Poole's Blackfoot stallion maintained his place among the "fliers" of this county, and bids fair to make a fast trotter.

The carnival in Georgetown occupied the attention of the juvenile portion of the community, and profound regret was expressed when the weather proved unfavorable. We understand the carnival is to be repeated through the kindness of the managers, Messrs. E. Stewart and W. S. Easton. We wish them success in their undertaking.

The splendid skating during the past month has afforded the young people a fund of healthful exercise and pastime. Too many overlook the benefits derived from skating, when indulged in moderation.

The scholars in this district are progressing rapidly, under the very able management of Mr. W. A. Judson and his energetic assistant, Miss Florrie McPhail. They manifest interest in attending to the respective duties devolving upon them. Our school accommodation have been greatly increased by the addition of a spacious classroom, built to the north end of the old building. This shows the interest taken in school affairs.

A beautiful Hall, finished and furnished by the Orangemen of this section, occupies the upper portion of the building.

A short time ago some of the young folks, armed with baskets laden with all kinds of good things, proceeded to the house of one of the neighbors with the intention of having an evening's amusement. The music was rendered by R. B. Jenkins, our genial Georgetown friend, who, with the violin, discoursed such sweet music that the young folk, finding it so entrancing, "tripped the light fantastic toe" until the "wee sma' hours" put an end to the merriment. Thanking the host and hostess for their kindness, and well pleased with the enjoyable time spent, they quietly dispersed after singing "Auld Lang Syne."

Some persons who were present acted as reporters, and aided by professional friends and vivid imaginations, have been exercising their poetical talents in a way that clearly expresses their ingratitude for kindness extended them.

We understand there is a counter poetical production, which no doubt will be set to music, as we are informed a singing school teacher has taken a prominent part in the Sun-Play production.

A verse of one of Burns' poems gives a clear description of the leading character who composed the doggerel effusion:—

Great is thy power and great thy fame,
Far kind and noted is thy name;
An' though you brewn house's thy theme
Thou travels.

An' faith! thou's neither lag nor lame
Nor blate nor scaur.

CRITIC.

School Examination at North Bedeque.

Mr. Arbuckle, Inspector of Schools for Prince County, examined the above school on Friday last, 6th inst. There was quite a large number of the ladies and gentlemen of the district present, who manifested a very lively interest in the proceedings. The junior department, under the tuition of Miss Hall, was first examined. The pupils in the different classes acquitted themselves well and showed thorough drill in the branches taught. In the examination of the advanced department, taught by Mr. Fraser, the Inspector was assisted by Mr. West, of the Centreville Grammar School. The higher branches, as Latin, Algebra, Geometry, &c., were taken up by Mr. Arbuckle, whilst Mr. West conducted the classes in Arithmetic and History. As in the junior grade, the scholars here reflected credit upon their teacher by their prompt replies to the questions submitted to them. It may be here remarked that Mr. Arbuckle thoroughly understands his business as Inspector, and spends the necessary time with each class to satisfy himself of its standing. At the close of the examination, complimentary remarks were made by the Inspector, followed by Mr. West and Alexander Laird, Esq., who, by the way, is one of the trustees.

Publicity of Marriages.

The Albany Law Journal cites a remark that fell from the lips of Judge Deady, in giving his opinion in the famous Sharon-Hill divorce suit, recently decided by the Circuit Court of the United States. The Judge observed that he could not "refrain from saying, in conclusion, that a community which allows the origin and integrity of the family—the corner-stone of society—to rest on no surer or better foundation than a union of the sexes, evidenced only by a secret writing, and unaccompanied by any public recognition of each other as husband and wife, or the assumption of marital rights, duties and obligations, except furtive intercourse, more befitting a brothel than otherwise, ought to remove the cross from its banner and symbols, and replace it with the crescent."

This was said with reference to certain letters, purporting, on their face, to have been addressed by Mr. Sharon to Miss Hill, in which he spoke of and of her as his "wife," and on which she mainly relied as proof of the marriage she alleged. Both Judge Sawyer and Judge Deady, who held the court, were of the opinion that these letters were forgeries, and hence entitled to no consideration. They were accompanied by no adequate collateral evidence, tending to show what was sought to be established by them. The conduct of the parties toward each other, as known to the general public, had not been such as ordinarily marks the marital relation. The marriage, if it ever took place, had not been publicly solemnized in any way, but was wholly a secret affair between the parties themselves.

What Judge Deady says in regard to this case implies that, in his opinion, marriage should, at the time of its occurrence, have some formal and public recognition and solemnization by which it shall be known beyond all dispute, and that the law should so ordain and provide. We thoroughly believe in this doctrine. It is true that marriage, regarded simply as a legal institution, is a civil contract, in which the parties, by mutual consent expressed to each other, agree to take each other and live together as husband and wife, with all the reciprocal rights and obligations involved therein. It is, however, different from all other civil contracts, in that it is the basis of the family; and in that, as Judge Deady justly remarks, is "the corner-stone of society." For this reason the law, in all civilized and Christian countries, supplies special regulations applicable to this contract, and that, too, in the interests of the family and of society at large.

Outrage on Board a Man-of-War.

Letters from the Pacific station contain particulars of a serious case of things existing on board the Pelican, Commander Richard W. Hope, which was commissioned at Vancouver in April, 1884, and is now at Vancouver Island. The relations between the officers and men are of such a character that already no less than 40 of the crew have deserted from the ship, and it is expected that others will follow. A short time since, while the master-at-arms was discharging his duties below, a large shot, weighing 30 lbs., was deliberately thrown down upon him from the lower deck. The shot struck him with such force that he was dangerously wounded. The surgeon of the ship ordered his immediate removal to the hospital, where he will be confined for some time, and it is feared that he will have to be invalided home. Although the Pelican has been only two years on the Pacific station, she will shortly be relieved by another vessel from England.

Michael Davitt on Outrages.

The regular fortnightly meeting of the Irish National League was held in Dublin on the 2nd. Michael Davitt presided. The receipts since the last meeting were announced to be $30,600. Davitt denied that outrages were now of frequent occurrence in Ireland. If any were committed the League was not responsible for them. He charged the enemies of home rule with conspiring to injure the League, and declared that the so-called outrages were mere inventions of their malice. He urged that a record of evictions be published weekly.

Canada's Mining Interests.

A delegation of twenty members, representing mining constituencies, waited on the Minister of the Interior, on the 4th inst., urging the collection of mining statistics, as frequent complaints reached
