"Corn bread," said an Irish waiter, "we haven't got it; an' isn't it corn batic ye mane?"

Good wives are like filberts, will remain good for a long time. It depends on the care you take of them and how you husband them.

CHARMS OF MATRIMONY.—A pleasant wife is a rainbow in the sky when her husband's mind is tossed with storms and tempests.

Why is an editor's life like the book of Revelation? Because it is full of "types" and shadows, and a mighty voice like the sound of many waters is ever saying to him—WRITE.

An auctioneer put up "Drew's Essay on souls" for sale, which was bid off by a shoemaker, who gravely asked if he had "any more articles on shoemaking to sell."

A traveller, lately describing a tropical shower, wrote to a friend in the following words:—"The rain-drops were extremely large varying in size from a shilling to eightpence pence."

A girl was married in New York the other day, to a young man she had known but four days, and woke up after the first night of her honeymoon, to find that her husband had gone west on a permanent visit.

A recent English work thus describes an old clergyman: "Old Leverick . . . had been notorious for the rapidity with which he had got over this duty, being accustomed to say that "he would give any man up to Pontius Pilate in the creed, and then beat him." He was called the "hetkail" priest; for heretofore over the service at such a hard gallop, and gave such short sermons—never beyond a quarter of an hour—that the "kail" had no time to cool, but was hot enough for dinner when church was over . . . He used to talk to his congregation from the reading-desk or the pulpit in quite a paternal and familiar manner.

"John, steek t' door t' wind's like to starve me," he would say in the middle of the Litaney; "Isane, open t' windy, I've scomefished wit' beat," when half way through the lesson, and so on. Once, when publishing the bands of marriage between Joe Coulson and Mary Postlethwaite, he forgot Mary's surname, and could not read it on the paper. After vain endeavors to decipher it, he broke out with: "Mary—Mary—dang it; why ye'a ken her. She bides down at t' mill yonder."

A formal fashionable visitor thus addressed a little girl: "How are you, my dear?" "Very well, I thank you," she replied. The visitor then added, "Now my dear you should ask me how I am." "The child simply and honestly replied, "I don't want to know."

My first is what lies at the door; my second is a kind of corn; my third is what nobody can do without; and my whole is one of the United States.—Matrimony.

A wag says of a woman: "To her virtue we give love, to her beauty admiration, and to her hoops the entire side-walk."

"Doctor, do you think that tight lacing is bad for consumption?" "Not at all; it is what it lives on."

When did Moses sleep five in a bed? (for he slept with his four fathers, (forefathers).)

Why is the letter D like a naughty little boy? Because it makes ma mad.

When you fall out of a carriage what are you most likely to fall against? Against your will.

What is that which people wish to have and then wish to get rid of? A good appetite.

Agricultural.

Signs of a Prosperous Farmer.

We clip from an exchange the following appropriate observation on the signs of a successful farmer, and we earnestly recommend them to the consideration of every thoughtful reader:

When lights are seen burning in his house before the break of day, in winter especially, it shows that the day will never break on the breaking in of the winter of adversity.

When you see him drive his horse instead of his work driving him, it shows that he never will be driven "from good resolutions, and that he will certainly work his way to prosperity.

When he has a house separate from the main building purposely for ashes, and an iron or tin vessel to transport them, it shows that he never built his house for a funeral pyre for his family and perhaps himself.

When his hog-pen is boarded outside, and it shows that he is "going the whole hog or none," in keeping plenty inside his house and poverty out.

When his sled is safely housed in summer, and his farming implements is housed both summer and winter, it plainly shows that he will have a good house over his head in the summer of early life, and the winter of old age.

When his cattle are properly shielded and fed in winter, it evinces that he is acting according to Scripture, which says that "a merciful man is merciful to his beasts."

When he is seen subscribing for the "Summerside Journal," and paying for it in advance, it shows that he is spreading like a book-respecting the latest movement in agriculture, and that he will never get his walking papers to the land of poverty.

Young Stock of all kinds should be kept vigorously growing all winter. Comfortable, warm, dry yards, sheds or stables, some grain or roots, plenty of fresh water and salt, with regular care, will ensure thrift and much better sized animals than if the winter treatment checks their growth, as is usually the case. Their manure will be worth something too.

New Triumphs of Rogers' Medicines.

Run your eye over them and tell your efficient neighbour about it.

From the Halifax "Citizen."

A VALUABLE REMEDY.—As a general rule, we do not endorse, editorially, any of the numerous notices of popular medicines, that from time to time appear in the advertising columns of our paper; but we depart from our usual custom to-day to direct attention to the advertisement of Rogers & Co's. Medicine, because we believe the facts disclosed in the advertisement are such as to justify, if not call for, such special attention. The facts of the case detailed in the advertisement are placed beyond dispute by the certificate of the High Sheriff of Cumberland, and ten of the most respectable and well known citizens of Anchester, so that there is nothing of mere puffing about it, but a truthful statement, that ought to be laid before sufferers afflicted as young Copeland was. The character and social position of Mr. Rogers, who is well known over a great part of Nova Scotia, is sufficient to say that this is no mere quack nostrum, made only to sell, and put money in the pockets of speculators, at the expense of the credulous and unfortunate.

NAPAN, Cumberland Co., N. S. } July 23, 1866. } Messrs. ROGERS & Co.:

Gentlemen—Your medicine has done such wonders for my son, that I feel it my duty to make the case public for the benefit of others. The facts of the case are as follows:—

About three years ago he took a severe cold; it settled into his lungs, he suffered most excruciating pain; he was often out of his mind. The doctors called it, Inflammatory Rheumatism. At about the month his arms and legs—which were very much swollen—were ulcerated, and continued to discharge freely for eighteen months, and he could only get about on crutches. Numbers of pieces of bones came out of the sores on his arms and legs. He heard of your medicine, and concluded to try it. It is now well, and walks to and from school daily about a mile. I may say that your medicine has transformed him, by the blessing of God, from a puny, sickly cripple to a cheerful, lively boy; the change is wonderful. I hope I shall ever feel grateful for the great blessing.

Yours respectfully, OSCAR F. LOWE. PUGWASH, August 28, 1865.

Messrs. ROGERS & Co.:

Gentlemen—Your medicine cured my wife of a most distressing case of hip disease; and as some persons seem disposed to misrepresent the case, I give you the following facts in relation to it; to all of which I am prepared to make oath, and prove by many other witnesses if necessary:

Three years ago she fell upon the ice, and broke or injured the bone of her hip. She was confined to her bed for three months. She then recovered and got comparatively well, and continued so for nearly twelve months, when her hip began to get painful, and swelled and broke, and discharged freely, and in great quantities. She suffered most excruciating pain; it broke in three places. The doctors were attending her, but could not cure her; in fact we gave up all hopes of her ever getting well. The doctors told us that she never could recover. We, however, thought we would try your wonderful medicine as a last effort, and she soon began to improve, and in a few months she was able to attend her domestic duties. The sores all healed up, and she got as well as ever she was, with the exception of a little hitch or limp in her walk.

She died last fall; but there was no symptoms of the old complaint. She was entirely cured of that. She died from other causes. ARCHIBALD DAWSON.
