White Collar Personnel Get Okay For Dock Jobs

York Judge has upheld the right of the New York-New Jersey waterfront commission to permit the use of white collar personnel to do work normally handled by Longshoremen.

U.S. Longshoremen have been on strike from Maine to Texas since Dec. 23 in a contract dispute. A chief issue is work gangs. The shipping companies want the number of men on each gang reduced.

State Supreme Court Justice Saul Streit made his ruling shortly before mediators resumed their efforts to get the striking International Longshoremen's Association (AFL-CIO) and the New York Shipping Association together for a new round of contract talks.

The shipping association represents 145 shipping and stevedoring firms.

Assistant Labor Secretary James J. Reynolds, who met separately with both sides Wednesday, reported no progress toward settling the strike.

In another development, Boston Longshoremen defied a federal court order Wednesday and set up picket lines as usual along the Boston waterfront.

Meanwhile, the number of ocean-going ships tied up in New York harbor reached a new high of 108. President Kennedy was reported concerned at the effect of the tie-up on foreign aid as international pressure mounted for a settlement of the work stoppage.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	1♥	Pass
1♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead—nine of clubs.

World championships are tense affairs where the players go all out and do everything they can to record their feats for the benefit of posterity. The light moments are few, but here is one enacted in Budapest way back in 1937. The names of the contestants are mercifully omitted.

The contract was one spade.

North decided there was no game in the hand after his partner had passed originally and merely responded with a spade to the opening heart bid. He therefore passed one spade. North's judgment was in a sense correct, because it turned out that the enemy could take the A-K of spades and two side aces to hold the contract to three spades.

However, the defense didn't function well and South did better than that. West led the nine of clubs. Declarer played low from dummy and so did East. South won with the king and led the nine of diamonds, winning in dummy with the queen.

He then played a low club. East was afraid that his partner had led originally from the 9-8-7-2 of clubs, which would give South the KJ alone, so he went up with the ace to prevent the jack from winning.

Declarer ruffed, of course, and entered dummy with a heart to discard his king of diamonds on the queen of clubs. Still not completely satisfied with having stolen two tricks, South decided to try and purloin one more.

He ruffed a diamond and led a low spade toward the queen. West was determined not to let the king of spades also be stolen from him, so he went up with the king.

The king held the trick for a moment — until East won it with the ace. When the queen of hearts fortunately dropped later, South was able to state with pride that he had made twelve tricks on the hand. His one regret was that he had been unable to find a way of shuttling out the ace of trump!

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.
