BIGGEST PUSH BY NORTH KOREANS APPEARS IMMINENT

29 Die In Week-End Accidents In Eastern Canada

Speculate On Opening Date, Duration Special Session Of Parliament

OTTAWA, Aug. 13 (CP)—Speculation is rife on the probable opening date and duration of the session of Parliament being called to authorize the recruitment of Canadian forces for use by United Nations in Korea or elsewhere.

Prime Minister St. Laurent has said that the session will be called within the next six or seven weeks. Some members of the Commons believe that it will be called for either Sept. 24 or 26. Others pick Oct. 5. The dates fall on Thursdays, the usual day for the opening of a session.

Guesses on the probable duration of the session range from 12 or 14 days to three months.

The government possibly may study the procedure followed at the special session called in 1950 which sent Canada into the Second World War and deal with special war legislation. The 1950 session opened Sept. 7 and was prorogued Sept. 13.

Members dealt with a war appropriations bill providing $100,000,000 for defence and war expenditures during the balance of the fiscal year. A special budget was adopted increasing taxes.

At the outset, members agreed to suspension of some of the regular rules of the Commons. All time was devoted to Government legislation.

This time the length of the session probably will depend largely on the Opposition's willingness to accept the Government's emergency legislation in the form in which it is presented. While the present international situation is tense, there may not be among members the same feeling of urgency as existed during the wartime session of 1939.

Probable Business
The Government will ask for approval of its decision to recruit an armed brigade of 5,000 men for use by the United Nations in Korea or elsewhere. It is not yet known whether the Government will seek authority to send the troops anywhere or whether it will leave to Parliament the decision on where the troops may be used.

The Munitions and Supply Act, repealed only last session, will be revived. It will renew Government authority to allocate and control the use of strategic materials needed for the production of war equipment.

Supplementary estimates of expenditure likely will be presented for approval, but no thought has yet been given to presentation of a new budget for the 1950-51 year which ends next March 31.

There likely will be some legislation extending provisions of the veterans charter to those who volunteer for the special service force. Should the Government declare that a national emergency exists, there may be new measures introduced to provide for the revival of some price controls.

Opens Fair Tonight

Premier J. Walter Jones, who will officially open the Provincial Exhibition and Old Home Week at the Exhibition grounds this evening. Other speakers will be His Honour Lieutenant Governor Bernard, Hon. C. C. Baker, Minister of Agriculture, and His Worship Mayor MacDonald.

Record Livestock Entries At Exhibition This Week

Heading the record lists of livestock exhibits at the Provincial Exhibition this week will be dairy and beef type cattle with an entry list of nearly 900 on tap and an expectancy that at least 825 animals will parade before the judges stand during the next three days.

The cattle have been streaming into the new and old barns since early Saturday morning and last night most of the buildings were filled. Caretakers were busy in their old familiar haunts while spectators were getting first glimpses of some of the finest cattle in Eastern Canada.

Jersey and Ayrshire breeders will be grooming their cattle today for the judging competition which opens tomorrow. Record numbers of both breeds will enter the show ring.

The Holstein breed, with approximately 250 entries listed, top all other classes. Lewis Brothers, York will likely be the biggest exhibitors with 24 entries followed by Premier J. Walter Jones with 22 Holsteins. Colby Lewis, Freetown, has 15 cattle ready for the competition.

Roy C. Woodside and Son of Malpeque, better known as fox breeders, will have a dozen cattle. This is the Woodside's second showing at the Provincial Exhibition.

Large Entry List In W. I. Exhibits

Entries for the domestic division of the Women's Institute display at the Exhibition have been pouring in until they have reached a total of almost 550. This represents approximately five times the number received in this division last year.

Entries in knitting and needlework are also much higher than previously, and it is expected that visitors to the Show Building will spend many a pleasant hour looking over the work of the people of Prince Edward Island.

This afternoon the judging of handicrafts and art will be held, and tomorrow the classes for food and flowers will be judged. It is anticipated that the building will be opened this evening directly after the official opening of Old Home Week by Hon. J. Walter Jones, but will be closed all Tuesday afternoon to allow for the judging of the food and flowers.

Also in the building will be displays by the Department of Labour, the National Parks of Canada, and the Dairywomen's Association. An information booth has been erected.

The former Russian school teacher made her memorable leap to escape before being returned to Russia.

Americans Seek To Disrupt Reds' Plans By Counter Blow

Churchill Urges Early Session

(By The Associated Press)
LONDON, Aug. 14 (Monday)—Winston Churchill urged today that Parliament be recalled before the Sept. 12 date set by Prime Minister Attlee.

Churchill said Sept. 12 "is altogether too remote and bears no relation to the crisis and the new facts which are before us."

Clement Davies, Liberal Party leader, also requested an earlier session, preferably Wednesday or Thursday of this week. Their requests were contained in letters to the Prime Minister released today.

Attlee, who called Parliament back last Friday, said in a reply sent to Churchill's home that all relevant facts had been considered when he fixed the date for reconvening.

By MILTON MARMOR
TOKYO, Aug. 14 (Monday) (AP)—American defenders of the Nakdong river line launched counter-attack today in an attempt to knock off balance an imminent North Korean drive—heralded as probably the biggest Communist offensive of the Korean War.

The Communist push appeared timed for Tuesday to coincide with the fifth anniversary of Korea's liberation from Japan, Aug. 15, 1945.

U.S. 24th Division troops pushed forward in heavy rain and through thick mud for an assault on the Red bridgehead near Changnyong 23 miles south of the important American supply hub at Taegu. Maj.-Gen. John H. Church, commander of the 24th, said the aim of the push was "to drive the enemy back across the river, or destroy him on this side," reported AP correspondent Jack MacBeth.

The Changnyong bridgehead was the location of the most serious Red threat to the American central front lines, but the enemy has been reported moving up massive strength also at other points along the river.

60,000 Enemy In Position
An estimated six Red divisions—probably 60,000 men or more—moved into attack positions with tanks and artillery to storm this American line protecting Taegu, important advance United States supply base.

Medical Party Sent To Stem Flu Outbreak

HALIFAX, Aug. 13 (CP)—A medical party from Goose Bay, Labrador, was flown into the Northern Quebec settlement of Fort Chimo yesterday in an effort to stem an outbreak of influenza which already has claimed three lives and struck 300 others.

Search and Rescue headquarters here said the party, after arriving at the Fort Chimo airbase, maintained by the United States Air Force, crossed the bay to the stricken village by boat. Both natives and white persons are affected by the disease. The epidemic, however, has not struck air-base personnel.

First word of the influenza outbreak was received by radio "hams" at Yarmouth, N. S., and Halifax, from another amateur at Fort Chimo, on the southern shore of Ungava Bay. Goose Bay airbase reported that in addition to the three already dead, another person at the settlement was dying of the disease.

Famous Castle To Become School

KIMBOLTON, England, Aug. 13 (Reuters)—Kimbolton Castle which King Henry VIII gave to his first wife, Katharine of Aragon, as part of her dowry, and then used to imprison her after their divorce, is to be used as a school. Kimbolton Grammar School authorities have bought it for £12,500 ($37,500). Dormitories and classrooms are to be built into the castle, a vast place of 400 rooms, famous for its Jacobean courtyard.

Will Press Demands For United European Army

By Philip Clarke
STRASBOURG, France, Aug. 13 (AP)—Britain's Winston Churchill and political figures of nine other Western Powers are preparing to demand support from their governments for creation of a United European army, sources in the Council of Europe said Saturday.

Churchill proposed such a unified army Friday as Western Europe's answer to the threat of Soviet aggression, and the Council's Consultative Assembly voted approval, 29 to five with 27 abstentions.

But the assembly has no powers to create an army or to set up the European defense ministry which it decided should be the directing agency. Its function is limited to recommendations. The assemblymen represent sections of national opinion, but not their governments.

The French situation is illustrative. Two former premiers of France, Georges Bidault and Paul Reynaud, are expected to lead the drive in France for Churchill's plan. But a Foreign Office spokesman in Paris commented: "What he (Churchill) asks is ex-

Princess Elizabeth Surprises Sightseers

LONDON, Aug. 13 (CP)—Princess Elizabeth, expecting her second child soon, surprised sightseers in St. James Park today by leaving her home to lunch with the King and Queen.

The unexpected departure from Clarence House surprised thousands of persons who had believed the birth might take place at any moment.

The Princess drove the short distance from Clarence House to Buckingham Palace. Her husband, the Duke of Edinburgh, was at the wheel of their jade-green Rolls Royce.

They managed to escape the attention of all but a few of the thousands of curious persons milling about the sun lit Mall. The last thing the watchers had expected was a personal appearance of the Princess.

But the crowd was not caught napping, a second time. When the couple returned to Clarence House shortly after 2 p.m., the 24-year-old heiress to the throne waved to the thousands and smiled cheerfully. She was dressed in a floral summer frock and appeared in excellent spirits.

The King and Queen had just returned to Buckingham Palace from a religious service at the Guards' Chapel at Wellington Barracks when the Princess and her husband drove over for lunch.

A few hours earlier the Princess had been visited by her physicians. A Buckingham Palace spokesman said it was a routine check, but the crowds believed the visit significant because heretofore the doctors had made their calls later in the day.

Good-natured policemen, some mounted, kept a crowd of more than 10,000 on the move in the vicinity of Clarence House and Buckingham Palace. Those at Clarence House were rewarded at mid-afternoon by a glimpse of 21-month-old Prince Charles, the Princess' first born. Dressed in a blue suit, he was taken for a drive by his nurse.

Charles is the second in line for the throne. The new baby would be third in line.

Meanwhile, a gossip columnist in the Sunday Pictorial says Princess Elizabeth intends to have four children "because she considers it an ideal family unit."

"She sympathizes with wives who cannot afford this luxury," the writer added.

A few hours after the Princess had visited Buckingham Palace, she was expected to leave London to go to the royal home at Balmoral Castle, in Scotland. The Queen decided to remain in London.

The King and Queen previously had cancelled their annual summer visit to Balmoral to await the birth of Princess Elizabeth's child.

Princess Margaret went to Scotland several days ago to visit friends.

Probe Possibility Of Fatal Love Triangle
TORONTO, Aug. 13 (CP)—The possibility of a fatal love triangle is being investigated by police seeking a married school teacher who disappeared at the same time as a bricklayer's wife he once taught at night school.

Alfred P. Greene, 38, was reported missing Friday, more than 36 hours after his blood-stained automobile was discovered under a bridge in East-Central Rosedale ravine.

The disappearance of the woman, Mrs. Betty Reason, 31, came to light Saturday when police questioned friends and acquaintances of the missing man.

Greene's wallet, apparently rifled and left in the car, contained three photographs of the vivacious brunette, who, police said, has been married four times.

The thick-set, bespectacled, bushy-haired teacher of English and history at Toronto's Danforth Technical School set out for Toronto from a summer cottage on Lake Simcoe, 75 miles north of here, at 7:15 p.m. Tuesday. Six hours later, patrolling police saw his small, British-built car abandoned on a little-used roadway in the ravine.

Frank Reason, husband of the missing woman, said she left him last Sunday and telephoned Tuesday night to say she was running away with a married man. He said she had been a member of Greene's night-school class in English last winter and had taken special lessons at Greene's home during the spring.

Police traced Mrs. Reason to a rooming house on north-end Briar Hill Avenue, to which they said she was taken Sunday night by a man answering Greene's description. She was registered there as Mrs. Reid. She told the lady Sunday night that she was checking out and, soon after, a man came for her in a car similar to Greene's.

Police said it was possible that the man and woman, if together in the car, left the vehicle alive. They said they could have been abducted or perhaps walked away.

Greene's wife suggested that her husband was attacked by a hitchhiker during his drive to Toronto. She said he would never pass a person walking on the road if there was room in his car.

She and their four children had been with him at the cottage.

Special Mobile Recruiting Unit Here From Halifax

Tornado Rips Through Reservation, Four Killed

CALGARY, Aug. 13 (CP)—A tornado ripped through a section of the Stony Indian Reservation at Morley Friday, leaving four Indians dead and six injured.

The twister slashed through several hundred acres of forest land before hitting the Morley settlement, 55 miles west of Calgary.

The dead: Mrs. Peter Nancy Ear, 77; Mrs. Lazarus Dixon, 69; Virginia Ear, 5, and Rina Ear, eight months. Injured were Mrs. Alex Ear, 32; Doris May Ear, 10; Barbara Ear, 13; Doreen Ear, 3; Mrs. Noah Ear and Lazarus Dixon.

The twister struck the group of Indians during a family get-together at the home of Noah Ear, seven miles southwest of the Indian agency in a thickly-wooded foothills area.

Just before the tornado struck, the group had been in a tent visiting a sick relative. They saw it coming and went to a nearby log house for safety. The twister smashed the cabin and its occupants, but left those who remained in the tent unharmed, although the tent was blown down.

The cabin and those in it were picked up in the swirling wind and scattered over an area of several hundred square yards. The nearest of the dead was found 180 feet away from the cabin, while one body was found 200 yards away.

First word of the tornado was brought to Mrs. J. R. Wilde, wife of the Indian agent, by Horace Holloway, who raced to the agent's house by horseback after he discovered the smashed cabin.

Constable Miles Dodwell of the R. C. M. P. said the scene of the twister, normally, a tree-dotted hillside, was like a field of mown hay. The area for half a mile around had been levelled.

"The cabin, which had been about 13 by 20 feet in size, was made of heavy, eight-inch logs," Dodwell said. "But it looked as if a giant had come along and pushed it over and knocked it a couple of hundred feet." The roof was 100 feet away from the original site.

Trees of eight inches in diameter were snapped off and fell in every direction."
