PROWSE FAMILY ENTERTAINS ROYALTY

Royal Standard Flutters Over Island Farm Home

The Royal Standard fluttered for twenty five minutes over the Prince Edward Island farm yesterday as Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip made a scheduled stop at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Willard Prowse, Brackley.

For the Prowses it was a never-to-be-forgotten day which was shared by several hundred of their neighbors who gathered around the front lawn to get a close up glimpse of the Queen and her husband.

Accompanied by Premier A.W. Matheson and Hon. J. Angus MacLean, Minister of Fisheries, the Royal Couple was introduced by Mr. Matheson to Mr. and Mrs. Prowse and their son, national park superintendent, Eric Kipping and Mrs. Kipping and to Colonel E.W. Johnston and Mrs. Johnston.

SECOND FARM VISIT

The Prowse home which was the second Canadian farm visited on their present tour had won consecutive honours in the P. E. Island rural beautification, contest of which Colonel Johnston is founder and president.

Wearing a Hartnell creation consisting of a yellow sheathing dress and jacket, the Queen looked lovely against the background of Island red soil and green grass. The Prince wore a grey business suit and was hatless.

Mrs. Prowse who had been widely acclaimed for her good house keeping and culinary art proved the perfect hostess as she conducted Her Majesty through her attractive but simple home. The Queen showed keen interest in Mrs. Prowse's flower garden and potted plants.

STOLE THE SHOW

On his visit to the barn Prince Philip stole the show as he adeptly used a short stick to release a hook high up on a barn door. Twelve-year-old Ernest Prowse had first tried to open the door but discovered that a hook out of his reach was holding it closed. Glancing quickly about him, the Prince picked up the stick and released the catch.

The ease with which he performed this simple act, made it appear that the Prince had been used of doing such things all his life. Photographers gasped as they saw and missed what they realized was one of the best pictures of the Royal tour.

Prince Philip by the tone of his questions displayed a better than average knowledge of agriculture. He inquired what type of machinery was used for harvesting hay; how did Mr. Prowse put his silage in the silo; what was the average return from a dairy cow and was a herd sire used in preference to artificial insemination.

MUTUAL INTERESTS

For the Prince and young Ernest Prowse it was a case of a couple of coin collectors getting together. When the lad happened to mention that he was a collector of coins, the Prince said, "Are you a collector of coins—so am I."

After returning to the house and seeing Ernest's 68 foreign coins, Philip said, "You have a fine collection there." The lad also displayed with pride his five-gum selection which caught the fancy of the Prince.

As the Royal tour swung northward on the Brackley Point Road small groups of a hundred or so gathered at a number of points to cheer the Royal couple as they passed by.

However it was at the National Park that the Queen and her consort received the most tumultuous welcome.

Thousands of tourists in beach attire rose from their lawn chairs where they had perched for some time, and gave a lusty or three cheers for Elizabeth and Philip.

TOURISTS WELCOME

Large signs at Stanhope beach read "God Bless the Queen" and one made from clam shells on the road bank read, "Welcome to our Royal Visitors."

While the Royal party was dining at the DeBello residence at Dalvay a huge crowd gathered outside the gateway and cheered as the tour swung toward Charlottetown.

Along the route at Corran Ban a large group of people were gathered and similar groups were in evidence at Bedford and at the end of the York Road.

Everywhere there was mutual love and affection as the crowds cheered and the Queen and Prince Philip acknowledged with a wave and a smile.

Inquest Is Ordered Into Highway Death

An inquest has been ordered into the death of a Beach Point girl, Mary MacNeill, age 16, who died in a collision near Murray River Wednesday night. Dr. L.E. Frowse says a jury has been empanelled and a hearing will be held Aug. 7.

Eight others were injured in the two-car collision, and one of the injured, 10-year-old Harold Lecco has been flown to Halifax for special surgical treatment.

The boy along with Wayne Harris of Murray Harbour were brought to the Prince Edward Island Hospital following the accident Wednesday night. Wayne is still a patient in the hospital at Charlottetown but the Lecco boy was flown to Halifax at noon yesterday.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harper Lecco, of Point Pleasant, and three other members of the family are hospitalized at the Kings County Memorial Hospital in Montague. Also hospitalized at Montague is Stephen Palmer, 17, of Westboro, Mass.

The fatal mishap which also caused injuries to the eight mentioned above is believed to have occurred about a mile from Murray River on a newly-paved stretch of highway.

It is believed that one of the cars pulled out to avoid crashing into the rear of a parked truck and collided with the other car head-on. Miss MacNeill was a passenger in the car with Palmer and Harris. All members of the Lecco family with the exception of 18-year-old Barry, are reported suffering from fractures and other injuries.

Mr. and Mrs. Lecco and their four children were returning from a visit to a married daughter at Abney when the accident occurred about 9 p.m. They have two other children, both living out of the province.

In addition to her parents, the MacNeill girl is survived by two brothers and three sisters Ralph 12, Donald, F. Ruth 10, Geraldine 4, and Jean, 2.
