Monticello Farm Field Day Is Largely Attended

A very successful Field Day was held at the Illustration Station yesterday on the farm of Jugh J. MacDonald, Monticello, with more than 100 farmers in attendance.

A feature of the day was a practical demonstration of cutting poultry for canning and barbecuing chicken was also given and resulted in those in attendance being served some tasty morsels. Demonstrations were by L. W. Ramsay, poultryman at the Experimental Farm, Charlottetown.

Hon. Eugene Cullen, Minister of Agriculture complimented Mr. MacDonald on the splendid appearance of his farm. He stressed that greater use should be made of the fact finding studies at Stations and the Experimental Farm. "Agricultural workers in the Dominion and Provincial Departments are specialists in particular fields and they are only too glad to help farmers in any way possible," the Minister said. He emphasized the value of field days and urged all farmers to keep in touch with the activities on such occasions.

Dr. Fisher outined the policies of artificial insemination units in the province and advised farmers that any problems confronting them in connection with the health of animals will be given consideration if brought to the attention of the department. Laboratory facilities are at the disposal of anyone requiring information at any time. Trained provincial departmental inseminators are available and the department bears the cost of semen by which farmers have the best bulls that can be acquired.

R.C. Parent, Superintendent Experimental Farm, complimented Mr. MacDonald on the splendid showing. "Farming today is scientific" he said, "and farmers should avail themselves of every bit of scientific data available." He suggested also that farmers visit the farm at Charlottetown at frequent intervals.

J.D.E. Sterling, Cerealist, Experimental Farm, reviewed various varieties of cereals under test at the Monticello Station and advised farmers as to some of the latest recommended varieties of oats, wheat and barley. He recommended Garry - Sheppard outs Acadia wheat and Charlottetown Number 80 barley.

W.N. Black explained the various projects under study including pasture fertility, the use of chemical weed killer and the control of Ragwort and the various grass and clover mixtures for hay and pasture.

Don [illegible]stone, President of the P. C. [illegible]men's Association, Charles F[illegible]ps, president of the Queens County P. C. Association; W. R. Shaw, John A. MacDonald Mrs. Hees also spoke briefly.

The speaker was introduced by Mr. R. R. Bell Q.C., leader of the Progressive Conservative Party on Prince Edward Island and thanked by Mr. Heath MacQuarrie of Victoria.

OFFICERS

Officers elected for the two districts are as follows: Third District, President John J. MacDonald, Johnston's River; Vice president, William Wood, Southport; Secretary treasurer, John Smethurst, provincial representative, Wylie Gibson, Marshfield; County representative, Charles Philips, Harrington. Fifth District, President Alban Farmer; Vice-president, Thomas White; Secretary treasurer, C. R. McQuaid, Executive members, Ben Gallant, Miss Gertrude Coady and John H. Morris.

The president of the Provincial association, Mr. Melvin J. MacQuaid of Souris stated that the executive planned to get their federal candidate in the field in the near future and said that all provincial candidates should be in the field by December 1957. He also announced that a provincial rally would take place some time this Fall.

POTATOES

Charging that the Federal Government is coming more and more under the domination of the United States Government, Mr. Hees said this policy has cost Canadian producers many millions of dollars, and that one group which has suffered for some time past is our potato growers.

"It is obvious," he said "that if Canada allows American potatoes free entry into this country, the American Government should, in all fairness, reciprocate and allow Canadian potatoes free entry into the United States. If that is done, there is no doubt that the fine quality of Canadain potatoes will enable the Canadian potato producer to gain an important additional market for his product.

"I feel sure that if our government at Ottawa had put this matter squarely and forcibly before the American government, they would have recognized the fairness of this request and it is quite possible that Canadian potatoes entering the United States would be receiving the same treatment as American potatoes receive when entering Canada.

AT A DISADVANTAGE

"The fact that the Canadian potato grower is at a disadvantage with potato growers in the United States if further evidence of the subservient position with regard to the United States which our government seems always willing to accept. Whenever the United States government imposes a restriction, tariff, or quota against our products, the government at Ottawa meekly submits to this offhand and unjustifiable treatment.

"It is about time our government at Ottawa stood up to the American government and fought for the legimate rights of Canadian producers in matters of trade between our two countries. A good place to start would be on behalf of the rights of Canadian potato producers today.

FOREIGNS DRAGGERS

"Another matter of great concern to the Maritime Provinces is the fact that foreign draggers are allowed to operate to within three miles of our coastline, because this interferes seriously with the operations of our inshore fishermen.

"What makes it difficult to understand the federal government's willingness to allow foreign draggers to operate so close to our shores is that they quite rightly require our own draggers to remain outside of the twelve mile limit. To safeguard the means of livelihood of our inshore fishermen, it is necessary to require our own draggers to remain outside the twelve miles from our coatline, and it is equally necessary for foreign draggers to observe the same rules.

"What is needed is for the federal government to speak to the foreign governments concerned, and explain to them the reasons why we require our own draggers to operate outside the twelve mile limit, and ask them to obey the same rules. I feel sure that if this matter is put up to them in a straightforward manner, they will see the reasonableness of our request and comply with our wishes. If for no other reason they will do so in the interests of good international relations.

FOREIGN RIGHTS

"When the Prime Minister was urged in the House of Commons on July 30th to have our representatives at the United Nations ask foreign governments to direct their fishermen to remain outside the 12 mile limit, he said that the rights of foreign fishermen must be observed. That means that our government is quite willing to have foreign fishermen continue to fish to within three miles of our shore.

"It seems to me highly regrettable that the spineless attitude of our government at Ottawa permits foreign draggers to enjoy privileges which permit them to disrupt the operations and means of livelihood of our inshore fishermen.

"I once again urge the government to stiffen its backbone and speak up to the foreign governments which are infringing our fishing rules. If our government will do so, I feel sure that it will gain the respect of the governments concerned, and will succeed in protecting the rights of our fishermen."

POLITICAL HEADQUARTERS

OTTAWA— The national headquarters of three of Canada's political parties are located in staid former homes within blocks of each other in uptown Ottawa. The Liberals, latest to buy permanent headquarters, recently paid $60,000 for their building at left. The CCF moved into their headquarters (right) in 1946 and the Progressive Conservatives have occupied theirs (centre) since 1944. (CP Photo)

C.N.R. Facilities At Truro Being Extended

MONCTON N. B. Aug. 22 (Special) — Extension and improvement of existing facilities of the Canadian National Railways at Truro, N. S. were announced today by R. G. Hayes, vice-president and general manager of the Atlantic Region of the company. The betterments are designed to provide faster and more efficient movement of all rail traffic through that important point on the Halifax division.

"The improvements at Truro, in conjunction with those already made or in course of preparation at other points in the Maritimes, are part of an overall plan which will mean more efficient handling of the record volume of traffic being transported by the C. N. R. throughout the entire region", Mr. Hayes said. "The Truro innovations are now being carried out."

Extension of the yard office by an additional 15 feet, the lenghtening and re-arrangement of switching leads to provide more storage tracks, and the installation of a talk-back system are included in the revision of the railways yard facilities at Truro.

A portion of the present main line at the eastern end of the Truro yard on the hopewell subdivision will become a switching lead and additional main line trackage built to replace it. Three long storage tracks will have their capacities increased by approximately 3,750 feet to provide accommodation for additional freight cars. A total of 20 switches will be re-located, and there will be several new ones installed.

The talk-back system will provide instant communication among all widely-scattered points of the big yard. It is actually an outdoor inter-communication system. Nine receiving and sending speakers will be strategically located throughout the yard and all will be centrally controlled by a master console in the yardmasters office. By this means, crews handling cars anywhere in the area can report or be given instructions without time-consuming checkbacks with the office.

The necessary equipment and materials for the Truro job are now being delivered, and the work is being pushed with all possible speed.

"When completed, the revised system will make possible faster movement of import and export freight in and out of Halifax traffic enroute to Yarmouth and points on the south shore and Annapolis Valley and huge volume of steel and coal from Cape Breton and the ever-increasing tonnages which are carried between the Maritimes and Newfoundland," Mr. Hayes said.

New Orchard Spraying Technique Is Discussed

By ARCH MACKENZIE

MONTREAL (CP) — An orchard - spraying technique may arouse the most controversy at the 10th Internatoinal Congress of Entomology here.

The technique, which has consumer, grower and scientific interests, boils down roughly into a better way to throw insecticide around a growing apple. It is claimed that the poison thus is not concentrated on one part of the apple, creating the problem of getting rid of the deposit before the fruit is marketed.

It is claimed that it blankets the fruit with insecticide, giving more poisoned surface, and that it is cheaper and more effective.

NOW CATCHING ON

British Columbia was the first area in the world to become completely mechanized with this new so - called "concentrated spraying." Its champions say it is catching on in Ontario, the Maritimes and elsewhere in the world.

Some European scientists, however, say it can't be done and this is expected to produce a clash when the subject arises Friday.

Dr. James Marshall of the federal government's field experimental station at Summerland, B.C., will be speaking on the technique. He predicts the clash.

As he explains it, the new technique uses air rather than water to propel the spray to orchard trees from a mechanized carrier. The poison still is in water so it will stick to the tree and fruit.

"But where 500 gallons of water was required to cover one acre, 50 gallons are carried now."

CHEMICAL AGENT

A chemical agents in the mixture causes the poison to spread further, something like gasoline or alcohol spreads to cover a surface.

Dr. Marshall, who calls the problem involved a complex of biology, chemistry and -engineering, said Canadian research in the development started in 1946 with both the federal and provincial governments involved.

He went to Australia about three years ago to show fruit farmers there how it was done. Now Canadian machinery is being built there under licence.

Defence Minister Leaves On Policy Tour Of Europe

By DAVE McINTOSH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—Defence Minister Campney leaves here today for a European tour to sound out Allied opinion on a review of NATO defence policy.

He said recently that NATO policy in Europe must be reviewed in respect to numbers of men and type of weapons to be employed. He also said any decision by Britain and the United States to withdraw forces from Europe would be "most unwise."

Mr. Campney will confer in Paris with representatives of member countries of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and be briefed in Bonn by Canadian diplomats on the German defence situation. He will also visit Canadian air force and army bases in France and West Germany.

Both Britain and the U.S. have been talking of manpower cuts in their armed forces with more reliance to be placed on nuclear weapons. West Germany has strongly opposed any withdrawal of Anglo-American forces from Europe.

WRONG TO CUT ARMS

The view here is that it would be wrong to cut armed forces manpower on the thesis that any future war would be fought almost exclusively with nuclear weapons. The opinion of the Canadian defence department is that any future war is just as—or more—likely, to be waged with conventional arms.

Canada has stressed that no unilateral action should be taken by any NATO member without prior consultation and agreement by the alliance partners.

Canada maintains a 12-squadron air division and an infantry brigade group in Europe.

Informants here have said that if Britain and the U.S. reduce or withdraw their forces from Europe, Canada will consider similar action. But it would carry out such a policy only with agreement of its NATO allies.

T. B. Incidence In Queen's County Cattle Decreases

More than 47,000 cattle have been tested in Queen County for T. B. under the restricted area plan by the Health of Animals Division, Canadian Department of Agriculture, according to information released last night by Dr. R. S. MacDonald, Sub-division veterinarian. He reports the incidence of T. B. in the cattle examined was very low. Approximatey 7,000 more cattle were examined in this sixth general test than were submitted for testing in 1949 when the last survey was made in the Province.

The co-operation of the farmers in Queen's in assembling their cattle has been most helpful and Dr. MacDonald is looking forward to a similar experience when the testing units move into Prince County next week to begin the work there.

Dodgers Dump Flyers 9-6

The Dodgers dumped the Flyers 9-6 in Little League playoffs yesterday morning at Memorial Field.

Ronnie Rice on the mound for the winners allowed only 1 hit but it was a mighty grand-slam homer off the bat of Frankie Dow.

Rice struck out seven and walked seven.

Bobby Shepherd took the loss allowing 9 hits. He struck out 5 and walked three.

Rice and Johnny Weatherbie paced the Dodgers plate attack with a double and single each. Jimmy MacLean and Rex MacCarville each nailed triples and Art Strang hit a double.

British Columnist's View of Convention

LONDON (Reuters)—Cassandra, the grumpy Daily Mirror columnist, told his readers Thursday the United States Republican party convention chose a "sick man" and a "salesman" as candidates for president and vice-president.

The crusty columnist, writing from San Francisco, dismissed President Eisenhower's re-election as a sure thing.

"With his ailing heart, his damaged intestines and his preoccupation with golf, Eisenhower will almost inevitably go back to the White House," Cassandra wrote.

Nixon, the columnist said, is an "astonishing man . . . if mediocrity is a surprising characteristic."

"He is the perfect sales executive who would do extremely well selling after - shave lotions, but will not do so hot when it comes to dandling the H-bomb upon his knee."

Four Russians Tour Nfld. Fishing Areas

By GERALD FREEMAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Four top Russian fisheries officials spent Thursday on the northeast coast of Newfoundland getting their first loook at how Canadians catch fish.

They saw the Newfoundland fishery in action at Bonavista where men in small open motorboats brought their codfish catches to the plant for handling. The Russians stood on the wharf breathing air heavy with the smell of disembowled cod as the fishermen heaved their morning's production up beside them with pitchforks.

They watched skilled cuttecs split and clean the cod and drop them on conveyors for processing inside the plant without being visibly impressed. Such methods are colorful but age-old and the Russians pride themselves on the mechanization of their fishery.

"PIRMITIVE"

"I look. look, look and sometimes see something to interest me," said Igor M. Semenov, Russia's deputy fisheries minister in charge of shipbuilding, with an attempt to be non-committal. Then smiling frankly "it is all primitive."

But they showed greater interest inside the plant where the split cod are fed into up-to-date machines for skinning, filleting and packaging. The remains are made into fish meal. Utilization is 100 per cent.

Newfoundland's fishing industry is gradually modernizing, and Canadian fisheries officials say the Russians will see more mechanization today when they visit plants on the south coast. They arrived here Wednesday to begin a three-week Canadian visit to repay Fisheries Minister Sinclair's trip to Russia last year.

Boston Post Will Resume

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Post, which suspended publication eight days ago, will resume operations immediately and publish a Friday morning paper, editor-in-chief Joseph J. McManus announced Thursday night.

McManus said he had been advised by three court - appointed trustees before making the announcement.

The trustees were appointed last week after the 125-year-old Post petitioned the federal court for reorganization under the National Bankruptcy Act.

Federal Judge George C. Sweeney authorized the trustees Wednesday to borrow $500,000 through issuance of trustee certificates.

Some 800 editorial and mechanical employees, who refused to work Aug. 15 unless they were paid $180,000 in back wages and benefits, have voted to return to work.

Trustee Joseph P. Healey told Judge Sweeney Wednesday that "a close examination of the financial picture. shows that The Post has an underlying value and is capable of being reorganized."
