IMPORTANT SELECTIONS.

HIGHWAY OF THE OCEAN.—An article in Chambers' Journal, entitled "Steam around the Cape," contains the following explanatory remarks:—"Persons who do not pay special attention to nautical matters, are likely enough to suppose that, considering the large number of vessels at sea, the surface of the great ocean must be dotted over, almost in every part, with the countless fleet. This, however, is not the case: the ocean, like the land, has its frequented highways, and its wide regions of loneliness. If an observer, furnished with a forty-Herschel-telescope power of vision, could be elevated to a height great enough to give him a view of the whole Atlantic, he would be struck by beholding hundreds of vessels following one another upon certain lines along a very irregular course, while over a very large portion of the surface not a sail would be visible. Thus he would see the ships which leave this country for the Cape or India, pursue at the first a south-westerly course, until they reached the neighbourhood of Madeira, then keep more directly to the south, at a safe distance from the African coast, until they crossed the line; then stretch away again to the south-west, in the direction of South America, till they gain the zone of westerly winds; and finally, making a rather sharp turn into these winds, go blowing along before them to the eastward till they arrive at the Cape, or else, if so directed, pass to the Southward of it. On the return voyage a similar circuitous route is persued, although the cources are to some extent reversed, the widest circuit, or deviation from the direct line, being made in the northern instead of the southern hemisphere. In the extensive spaces on either side of these frequented routes few vessels will be seen, Here and there an African trader might occasionlly be perceived, dodging from port to port, or a slaver scudding swiftly across the ocean—perhaps with a royal cruiser following steadily upon her track, like a fierce blood-houud in persuit."

THE MORMONS.

Large numbers of emigrants professing the Morman faith, have recently arrived or are on their way to this country from Europe There are now in St. Louis from 3000 to 4000 mormons, many of whom are making arrangements to leave for the Salt Lake. The St. Louis News says:—

"The Grand Tower, upon the 29 March, had 225 Danes, all Mormons, and bound for Salt lake, The John Simonds, in this morning (March 30) has 240 English and Welch of the same faith, and bound for the same destination. Large numbers of emigrants professing this creed are on their way from Europe. A ship was at the Balize when the John Simonds left New Orleans, with about 400 of them on board."

On the other hand it is stated that many of the English and Welch emigrants in St. Louis refuse to emigrate further, having only professed the mormon faith with a view to avail themselves of the cheap facilities for emigration afforded by the mormon agents.

The accessions to the population of the great Salt Lake must be mainly from foreign countries. In connection with this fact, it is worthy of remark that most of the Americans who are members of the community are smarting under a sense of injustice and oppression either experienced by themselves or by their church when located at Nauvoo. They are subjected likewise to some restraints by the government established over them by congress, and various other causes combine to make them disaffected towards our country.

It would not be surprising therefore, if serious troubles should grow out of their peculiar position at some future day. Their rapid increase in population and resources, the isolated position—their location upon the maine overland route to California, and their religious fanaticism—all will tend to make them formidable neighbours if they become seriously disaffected. It has been the policy of the government to treat the Mormons with moderation and forbearance, tolerating their religious dogmas and precepts, and their social relatious, and allowing them to manage their own affairs with as little interference as is consistent with maintaining the jurisdiction of the general government over the teritory. The continuance of this policy is dictated by a wise and prudent forethought. Error must in the end give way to truth; but the day when this result will be attained cannot be hastened by arbitrary legislation or by a stringent government, even though that government be sustained by the power of the bayonet.
