

MR. AND MRS. LEIGH GRAHAM Double Ring Ceremony At Hampshire United Church

Hampshire United Church was the scene of a recent wedding when Mary Alberta, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Proud, Hampshire, became the bride of Leigh Gordon, son of Mrs. Floriz Graham, Cavendish, and the late Edward Graham.

The double ring ceremony was performed by Rev. Wilfred E. Dindial and the church was decorated with potted plants and white satin bows marked the guest pews.

Mrs. Cecil Stewart, church organist, played the wedding music and accompanied Nancy Stewart as she sang, "O Perfect Love" during the signing of the register.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length gown of white flannel and the fitted bodice featured a beaded - scooped - neckline and long tulle - point sleeves. Her elbow length veil of tulle illusion with embroidered border was held in place by a tarr of sequins and pearls, and her only jewelry was a pearl necklace, a gift from the groom.

She carried a nosegay of red roses, centered with a white carnation.

Miss Doris Proud, sister of the bride and matron of honor, and Miss Audrey Cole, niece of the groom and bridesmaid, were identically attired in street length dresses of red velvet with matching lace pieces. They carried nosegays of white carnations.

The best man was George Proud, brother of the bride. Mr. Lois Parkman, friend of the groom, and Ellsworth P. Oud, brother of the bride, ushered the guests to their pews.

ELLEN'S DIARY

Peace Seen In Lads Eyes As He Sings In Armchair

A thin veil of mist lifted from this morning's hills, past the dawning. Presently a warm wind blew a veritable chink of a breeze. And merry little rills of brooks commenced to run from the yard streamward. And the drifts of March there was, after all, no last to them - loved. The sun beamed. And "Isn't this the loveliest day?" folks said.

James eyed the stream in the deep of the valley, flowing darkly between his white banks. He shook his head.

"All this snow thawing could make such a freshet as would wet the lace-bridges!" he offered.

"On this farm, it takes a freshet to bring us the summer," we said.

"And what else does it take?" Alex overhauled the summer.

"Oh, mistis and wild geese. Sunshine and showers. Blue jays in the orchard, and..."

"... kittens!" he smiled.

"And colds! Mack, somewhat afflicted today with the same, added with a rueful grin.

"We made bread this morning, adding to the four earls, those subtle touches that for better or for worse mark the handiwork of the cook concerned. It may be the bit of sugar, or the dot of cream or shortening added or omitted which contributes to its taste: "The little more, and how much it is, the little less, and what worlds away!"

The mildness of the day continues into the night, which now appears - shadowing wings over all. No stars light the dimness. Silent the countryside was, and, to us, engagingly peaceful, when we came along the path from the house across the lane, minutes ago. Or have we a misconception of the term? For one writer has put it this way:

"Two turtles agreed to paint pictures which would portray their respective conceptions of peace. The first painted a calm little pond, surrounded by woods and open plain. There was no sign of life in the picture, not even the faintest trace of a breath of wind was stirring. That was his idea of Peace."

"The other artist painted the scene of a wind-swept landscape, with a raging torrent in the foreground. A tree hung over a river bank, and on a slender bough, just above its leaping rapids, sat two birds - singing! This latter picture represented true peace; the other depicts not peace but stagnation."

Peace is in truth, where we find it. In calm or storm. In
