Annual Meeting of King's County Board of Trade Last Evening

Mr. R. K. Clements was re-elected President of the King's County Board of Trade at the annual dinner meeting held last evening at the Poole Hotel, Montague.

Other officers elected included Vice-President L. H. Poole, Montague; and Secretary, C. A. Shaw, Montague. The Board of Directors is as follows: Crilly Lea, Murray Harbour, John Stephen MacDonal, Cardigan; George McIntyre, Montague; Leslie Hunter, Dundas; Keir Clarke, Montague; Major J. A. MacDonald, Cardigan; S. S. Hessian, K.C., Montague; Dr. A. Kennedy, Georgetown, and Murdoch McGowan, Kilmuir.

President R. K. Clements presided at the meeting and introduced Mr. Walter Hyndman, Charlottetown, as the guest speaker. In his address, Mr. Hyndman told the meeting there was need of such an organization as the Board of Trade to take a long view with respect to the development of community affairs outside the every-day problems as handled by the Town Council.

He continued by saying the Board of Trade was an organization which should screen out all proposals which were unreasonable and present only those which were of practical value. In reforming the local organization, he said the members should strive to select a President, who is ready and willing to serve diligently and well, assisted by an executive who are ready at all times to foster the projects of the Board.

Mr. Hyndman concluded by urging the formation of the local Board of Trade, indicating that its voice will help greatly in the determination and the fulfillment of projects and purposes of the community.

All members present spoke briefly respecting several projects which included the erection of a new bridge at Montague; improved mail service; the connection of Wood Island with Souris by paved highway, and the uniformity of business hours.

His Worship Mayor B. H. Yeo extended a vote of thanks to Mr. Hyndman for his kindness in coming to Montague to speak so capably before the Board. This vote was seconded by Mr. George McIntyre.

More than one ex-service man feels that the local Canadian Legion branch, warned over old tea when they spent about fifteen thousand dollars remodeling the present Legion home. Even after this considerable expenditure the building is not exactly what the doctor ordered. Its inconveniences are to obvious to need listing. It is nevertheless well located in a business sense, and of more value from that angle than any other, since the building itself is no great shaker. It was a fine dwelling, but was never built for the scurry and bustle of dances, bingo, meetings and conventions. Even with the additions it still is more of a dwelling than a club.

Ottawa is not favorable towards approving the new Federal Building project for Charlottetown at this time, in the opinion of those who recently sounded out the Dominion Minister of Public Works, Mr. Cheverier.

When interviewed the Minister used phrases such as "careful consideration", "will take the question under advisement," which can usually be interpreted as the polite method of preparing the way for a flat refusal.

Defence needs must be given priority, say the Federal authorities and who can outmanoeuvre that argument? But Charlottetown has a long-pending project, which fits right into defence plans and which has been at the top of the Federal Government list for several years—the naval barracks. It must be at least three years since residents in the west end of town objected to having the naval building erected in that vicinity. Since then, it is known that a water-front site has been talked about, without any hard and fast decision being made about its suitability.

Having muffed the opportunity of getting the new Federal building and all that it meant in the improvement of our downtown district, perhaps war or the imminence of war, will push the City into acceptance of the naval barracks. Opportunity does not call as often as the mailman, after all.

Power And Phone Services In Montague Disrupted By Ice Damage To Wires

Electric and telephone service were cut off to Montague and district yesterday morning after ice had formed on the lines.

The north-east wind which blew during Sunday night brought a cold drizzle which at the prevailing temperature of 32 degrees froze on all lines in the Eastern section of the Province. Electricity was cut off at 8:30 yesterday morning when several lines fell on the Sparrows Road.

The local crew under the direction of R. K. Clements, local manager of the Maritime Electric went to repair the damage but their equipment had to be towed through the heavy mud to the actual break. Electric service was restored about mid-day.

Telephone lines also suffered severe damage and all lines were down for a short time. Up until late last evening only one line to Charlottetown had been restored.

For the purposes of its membership, it could even be partly self-sustaining if the building included some office or store space for rental.

Made attractive enough, it might become, as in other cities, a well patronized civic centre, and not overlooked, as it is at present, by the great majority of veterans. Perhaps some day one of the younger generation of veterans will fire his comrades with "the spirit of the offensive" in go after a Legion home more in keeping with the war record of Islanders.

Hockey and curling may be in favor but many a citizen is beginning to wonder whether the old fishing rod needs rewinding, varnishing, or a new tip, or if last year's flies should be trusted the first week or two in the new season.

It's playoff time in hockey circles, the payoff end of a long season in the Big Four, too long most people thought, to expect the fans to keep a sustained interest. But with the teams in the home stretch, and every one of them with a chance to win the blue-ribbon, Island fans will follow their Islanders to the end, regardless of the results. Everybody wants to be in on the deal when the chips are really down.

Playoff hockey is tricky stuff and more often than not the league leaders are tumbled from their high estate when the last period has been played. It is not to be taken for granted, for instance, that the hitherto highstepping Islanders will easily dispose of their first opponents, Moncton

Bail Granted In Wilfred Watterworth Case

Wilfred Watterworth of Montague, sentenced in July to two years in Dorchester Penitentiary was admitted to bail at Georgetown yesterday to permit him to take an appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada.

The bail was $12,000, including $8,000 by Watterworth himself and $4,000 each by two sureties.

Watterworth was convicted in Supreme Court in Georgetown for theft of a five horse power marine engine and a quantity of rope at Cape Spry in King's County in June last year. The goods were the property of Leon Johnston, Montague.

He was tried before a jury and Mr. Mark R. MacGulgan.

Watterworth subsequently appealed to the Court of Criminal Appeals for P. E. I. and the court in a judgement delivered in January disallowed the appeal. Then on Feb. 13 leave to appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada was granted.

Hawks. That club has good potential strength, and if the team starts clicking may be the surprise package of the playdowns. It has happened so often before it, so many leagues, that the possibility must be kept in mind. In this horse racing country we have seen too many favorites beat in the stretch drive, to install even our Islanders as top-heavy favorites.
