POETRY.

OCTOBER.

Ah, thou art welcome, heaven's delicious breath,
When woods begin to wear the crimson leaf,
And suns grow meek, and the meek suns grow brief,
And the year smiles as it draws near its death.
Wind of the sunny South! Oh still delay
In the gay woods and in the golden air,
Like to a good old age released from care,
Journeying, in long serenity, away.
In such a bright, late quiet, would that I
Might wear out life like thee, 'mid bowers and brooks,
And, dearer yet, the sunshine of kind looks,
And music of kind voices ever nigh;
And, when my last sand twinkled in the glass,
Pass silently from men, as thou dost pass.

SOPER'S FATAL ERROR.

IMPARTING INTERESTING NEWS TO HIS WIFE. —WIDOW STACY'S HEIFER.

Mr. Soper's wife has been very sick for some weeks, but, although extremely reduced in body and mind there is still enough of the true woman remaining in her, which led her last Monday, in a faint whisper, to ask her husband, who had entered the sick room with a funereal cast of features, what was the news.

'Well,' answered Mr. Soper, sitting uneasily down on the extreme edge of the chair and balancing his hat on his fingers by the brim, 'there ain't nothing to speak of 'n p'ticlar. S'pouse you heard of Miss Cole's death; she was taken the same time you was?'

'I should think, James,' said Mrs. Soper, with a feeble emphasis, 'that if you couldn't find anythin' more cheerful to say to your poor, sick wife, you'd hold your tongue."

'Cert'nly,' said Mr. Soper, 'meekly, 'only news is so sc'arce. Lemme see,' he continued, looking thoughtfully into the hat, as if he had a reserve fund of gossip therein, 'you heard 'bout Mathy Carter's breakin' her leg.'

A snappish nod of the head from the invalid signified to Mr. Soper that he was on dangerous ground, but after a moment's reflection he brightened visibly as he said:

'You orter be'n to town meetin' a Mond'y. The town's voted to have a new hearse, an' I never was so glad of anything in all my life.'

'James Edward Soper,' whispered his wife with a painful intensity, 'be you a nat'ral born fool, or be you a lookin' forrard to gettin' rid of me?'

As the latter view had never presented itself to Mr. Soper in the light of his wife's inquiry, he looked very much subdued, and scratched his head with an air of painful abstraction as Mrs. Soper said again with a tearful voice;

'Oh, you c'n go. If you can't spare a few moments to set with me, an' jes' giv' me some little interestin' news—I don't want you to stay ag'in your inclination,' she continued with the sigh of a maryr.

Mr. Soper hastily expressed his willingness to remain and desire to please, so after a brief interval of thought he continued reflectively:

'Well, lemme think. I was over to the Widder Stacy's las night to see'f I couldn't make a trade for a Jersey hiffer, an' I tell you, Myria,' said Mr. Soper enthusiastically 'if she aint a harnsum critter, I never seed one.'

An omnious light appeared in Mrs. Soper's sunken eyes, and if her husband had been observing closely he would have seen a restless motion of the hands, indicative of an apparent desire to make a personal attack upon some one or something, but he saw nothing and continued.

'She's just about the right size, an' her skin as white as snow. She's got the pootiest legs,' continued the unreflecting Mr. Soper, with a descriptive motion of the hand; 'an' when you come to talk about shape—why M'ria,' said Mr. Soper, rising from his chair in his warmth, 'she'll measure two foot across her breast—'

The scream which came from the afflicted invalid at this juncture was of such piercing shrillness that Mr. Soper placed his fingers in his ears, and Mrs. Soper's mamma, who was in the next room, appeared on the scene in the twinkling of an eye.

'Oh, you awful brute!' she exclaimed as she bathed her daughter's brow with hair oil in mistake for camphor, while the wretched man feebly endeavored to explain that he was only telling Mrs. Soper about a Jersey heifer that he was going to buy.

'There, ma,' said Mrs. Soper with a gasp, 'I'm better now.'

'You'd better leave the room,' said the matron, with a world of significant wrath in her eye, and the unfortuuate Soper departed, muttering as he slammed the outside door behind him, that he'd be master in his own house some day; but he hasn't been yet, for Mrs. Soper has recovered, and her mother has taken up a permanent residence with them.

To this day they don't speak to the Widow Stacy, and Mr. Soper's reiterated explanation has always been received in dignified and incredulous silence.

The Emperor of Germany, on his approaching visit to Italy, will not go to Rome. He will only meet King Emmanuel in upper Italy.

The Standard special from Vienna says the leaders of the Insurrection are convinced that Servia and Montenegro will join in a war against Turkey, by the spring.

The Admiral of the the English Channel Squadron, who is said to be primarily responsible for the foundering of the iron-clad Vanguard, is to go scot free. The captain of his ship was court-martialled and dismissed.

A HORRIBLE STORY.—A terrible affair is reported from Falmouth, near Jamaeia. If the story is really true, it stands out in horrible contrast to that of the child on whom Solomon once exercised his wisdom to ascertain which of the two claimants was the mother. Cutting in halves with the sword would be a blessing compared with this. The story is that a man and his wife having had differences resolved to seperate, and a judical order to that effect was obtained. A dispute arose as to the custody of their youngest child, and this one day was followed by a scuffle. Each seized the infant and attempted to drag it from the other, and in the struggle they actually tore the child in pieces, killing it. They were seized by their neighbours, and would have been hanged to the nearest tree had not the authorities overpowered the mob and taken the wretched couple to Falmouth, where they were committed for trial by the magistrates.

Gardner Welch, an old man living with his son at Farnham, P. Q., on Monday last visited his wife, who was residing with another son, at Knowlton, and shortly after arriving there he shot his wife, inflicting a fatal wound. The son and his wife came into the room immediately after the shooting, whereupon he fired at his son; the son grappled with him, taking his revolver away from him, and in self-defence shot his father, killing him instantly. It seems that the old lady has been residing in Farnham with a son-in-law a short time before the tragedy and wanted to visit her son at Knowlton. On hearing of this desire her husband forbid his daughter and son-in-law from carrying her to Knowlton, notwithstanding which, the son-in-law drove her over in his carriage. On leaving Farnham last Monday morning the old man told his son with whom he was living, that he was going to shoot his mother, but the threat excited little attention. The old man has borne a very hard character; has not lived with his wife for several years, and when he did live with her, used to abuse her shamefully. He has been in jail several times, and has been suspected of burning several buildiagh belonging to members of his family. He is a man of property and no motive is known for the crime, expected his inherent ugliness. The old lady has since died; living long onough, however, to give her deposition before the proper authority as to the facts and circumstances of the case.

LATEST NEWS SUMMARY.

CANADIAN.

A boat upset on St. Peter canal, last week, by which two men, a woman, and three children were drowned.

It is stated that the Canadian Fisheries Department have prepared figures showing that Canada has claims on the United States for seven million dollars.

The Anticosti Company has been resuscitated The new board has issued a call to subscribers to stock to pay up 10 per cent. The scheme the company seeks to adopt is a grand one, and the island of Anticosti may yet became a valuable addition to the province of Quebec through this company's exertions.

A gale at the Magdalen Islands did considerable damage last week. On Monday a south west wind prevailed at the Islands. The American fishing schooners 'Martha E. Pike,' of Newburyport, and 'Seth Stockbride,' were driven ashore. The latter will probably be got off; the former will be a wreck. The crew were saved. On Wednesday the schooner 'Anemone,' of P. E. I., and 'M. Elizabeth,' of Gysboro, N. S., were blown ashore at Amherst harbor. The latter subsequently floated off. On the 29th ult., a brig supposed to be a Canadian was wrecked at Grosse Isle. It is thought that all on board have been lost. Two bodies were discovered on the shore not far from the wreck.—St. John Globe.

Ottawa, Oct. 4.—At Toronto yesterday, a Catholic procession was attacked and pelted with stones at the corner of Church snd King streets. The police who were in the procession charged the crowd and fired several revolver shots, wounding a nnmber of persons. The crowd retreated, but made several subsequent attacks with similar results. Five regiments of volunteers were then called out, but no other attacks were made. No deaths are reported, but over a hundred persons were wounded. Among the wounded was the Hon. Mr. Fraser, whose arm was fractuaed. Thirty arrests have been made. One of the possessionists, when the row began, fired a revolver in the crowd and wounded a policeman in the mouth. With the exception of six men, the whole force were wounded.

ROBBINS SENTENCED.—At 4 o'clock on Saturday Judge DesBarres, after asking the prisoner why sentence should not be passed upon him, addressed him very lengthily, giving explanation of the evidence and referring to the premeditation and atrocity of the deed. He mentioned that this was the second time he had to pass the death sentence, in almost similar cases, the witnesses in both cases being the culprits own children. He concluded by saying: 'The sentence of the Court is that you, David Robbins, be taken from this Court to the jail in Digby, from whence you came, and there to be kept until Thursday, the 16th of December, and on that day, between the hour of seven o'clock in the forenoon and 12 o'clock noon, you be hanged by the neck until you are dead, and may God Almighty have mercy on your soul.' Walter Ervin was tried on Saturday and the evidence proved that he harbored, fed, and gave signals to Robbins that all was right, and for him to come out of his cave. The Jury after an hour's absence, returned a verdict of 'guilty.' The Judge pronounced a sentence of one year's confinement in the county jail, with hard labor.—Hx. Chronicle.

BRITISH.

English Revenue returns show an increase of £995,000 for past half year.

Alderman W. R. Cotton has been elected Lord Mayor of London. He will be installed on 9th November.

At the Thames Police Court the captain of a vessel was fined £25 for neglecting to provide his crew with a proper supply of lime-juice, during a voyage from Lagos to London, and for not entering on an official log the fact that two of his seamen had been ill.

The discovery is reported in a house on Great Peter st. of a side board, a book-case, and an iron chest which were made by Peter the Great when he was living as a workman in England. The London Gazette of February 9, 1698, describes these articles, which are said to have remained where the Czar left them, and as he left them, since that time.

A box has been discovered near Windsor Castle, England, containing a large number of false keys, and it is supposed that they were designed to have been used in the attempt to steal the royal jewels, as the keys fit locks in the castle. The dicovery of the box was very singular. In order to permit some building operations near Windsor Bridge, the water of the Thames was drawn off, so that the river was lowered several feet. While thus low, a man walking on the bank observed a string fastened to the lower branch of the bush, with something attached to it. His curiosity being excited, he investigated and found a japanned dressing-case filled with these keys and some other things. When the water of the Thames are at there ordinary summer level the string would have entirely concealed, but the sudden drawing off of the water revealed the hiding place of the duplicate keys.

BOTTOM'S SUIT ECLIPSED.—For some weeks there have been exhibitions in the Thames, at London Eng., of the Coudie coat. A gentleman walks up in what appears to be a respectable black overcoat. He then take s out of an inside pocket a bit of metal, connected with the said pocket by a foot-long flexible tube, half an inch thick. He blows through this, stopping to take breath if he pleases, but if he blows continuously the inflation requires about a half minute. In that time a large hump has appeared on the inflationist's back and two large mamalian developments in front. A turn of the bit of brass secures the air from escape. A man weighing 180 pounds stepped into the water at Westminister Bridge with the coat on and stood up comfortably without moving a limb or muscle, head and shoulders up like a fishing cork. A thirty pound weight was given him to hold, and his head was still out of the water. He comes out of the water, turns the brass valve's head, and in one moment is again a gentleman, apparently in a black evercoat, really in as good a Mackintosh as one could wish in walking the deck on a rainy day.

UNITED STATES.

'American Girl,' the celebrated trotting mare, fell dead on the track at Elmira, N. Y., on Saturday.

The champion Irish pugilist, Ned O'Baldwin, who was shot on last Monday night at his place of business in New York, died on Wednesday.

The Bank of California re-opened on Saturday for business with an amount of coin on hand sufficient for all emergencies, and a guarantee fund of over seven million.

That the United States Government does not yet know how to manage its large Indian population has been proved over and over again. Indian wars, Indian raids and Indian troubles of one kind or another giving much anxiety to the Washington Cabinet. Utter want of faith has been the general characteristic of the Washington policy, and this has been resented by the red men. The Black Hills difficulty is not yet settled, and will be, it may be persumed, disposed of finally only by force. The Indians naturally enough distrust agents and commissioners, and thus negotations are complicated and not unfrequently broken off. When the agents and other interested parties have swindled the Indians sufficiantly, a war of extermination will be begun, the Government justifying itself, as it did in the case of the Modocs, by saying that the savages are mere robbers and murderers. But who made them so? It is a pity that the States do not take a lesson in Indian policy from the Dominion.

SYMPTOMS OF CATARRH.

Dull, heavy headache, obstructions of the nasal passages, discharges falling from the head into the throat, sometimes profuse, watery, and acrid, at others, thick, tenacious, mucous, purulent, bloody, and putrid; the eyes are weak, watery, and inflamed; there is ringing in the ears, deafness, hacking or coughing to clear the throat, expectoration of offensive matter, together with scabs from ulcers; the voice is changed and has a nasal twang, the breath is offensive, smell and taste are impaired; there is a sensation of dizziness, mental depression, hacking cough, and general debility, Only a few of the above-named symptoms are, however likely to be present in any one case. There is no disease more common than Catarrh, and none less understood by physicians.

DR. SAGE'S CATARRH REMEDY.

is beyond all comparison, the best preparation for Catarrh ever discovered. Under the influence of its mild, soothing, and healing properties, the disease soon yields. The Golden Medical Discovery should be taken to correct the blood which is always at fault, and to act specifically upon the diseased glands and lining membrane of the nose. The Catarrh Remedy should be applied warm with Dr. Pierce's Nasal Douche—the only instrument by which fluids can be perfectly injected to all the passages and chambers of the nose from which discharges proceed. These medicines are sold by Druggists.

EUROPEAN.

A memoir of Renon, the distinguished French Meteorologist, published some years ago, is now being quoted to show that severe winters come in periods, and that four or five of them are usually bunched round one central winter of greatest intensity. The coming winter, therefore, may not be quite as cold as the last, but it may be still colder, if Renon's theory is correct. The three winters immediately preceding the last were of a character to confirm the theory. The period is supposed to be forty-one years, which corresponds with the maximum solar eruption.

Few persons are probably aware that the terrible Chancellor of North Germany was nearly being a Frenchman, or, at all events, taking service in France. Prince Bismarck's father, says a Paris journal, was forced to leave his country in consequence of a duel, and in 1807 he offered his services to the King Jerome Bonapart. In this way Prince Bismarck's father found himself in the service of France, and took part in the Russian campaign. Marshal Ney, in whose army corps he served during several dangerous night marches, gave him the command of the advanced guard. At the battle of Borodino he had three horses killed under him, and his regiment which he commanded, was one of the most ill-treated during the retreat. After the passage of the Beresina, Col. Bismarck led the shattered remains of his regiment back to Wurtemburg and recruited it. He afterwards distinguished himself as a light cavalry commander at Bautzen, and was decorated with the Legion of Honor. Having gained glory and honor in the service of France it would not have been extraordinary had Colonel, afterwards General Bismarck, unable to return home, adopted France as his country.

Arsone Houssaye, in his lettter from Paris to the Tribune, gives a new account of the declaration of war against Prussia in 1870. He says that after the more or less pacific explanation of the last interview at Ems with Benedetti there was a council at night at the Tulleries, at which peace was peremptorily decided upon by the Emperor, who was the most prudent of all the party, because he hated bloodshed, and who did not think a gory baptism was necessary to the consecration of the Prince Imperial. But there were two sovereigns at that time on the throne. Besides the Emeperor, reigned the Empress. When everything was peacefully decided, the Emperor, who was then ill, went to bed, like Titus, content with his day's work. But the Empress was more wakeful. In her turn she held a council. She took possession of every one. She was really eloquent in talking of the national dignity; she said that that the Emperor's good heart would ruin both France and the dynasty. Besides, all the newspapers and all the deputies were for war. It would not do to swim against the current. They would gain the Rhine with one battle; they would chastise Germany, and return triumphal with the peace of Europe secured for a century. Everybody was convinced; the Duke of Grammont alone, perhaps, having doubts of all these fine things. But as it was a woman who was speaking, he had the gallantry not to oppose her. They walked up the Emperor, who was already sleeping the sleep of the just, and extorted from him the declaration of war.

A PRIZE FIGHT BETWEEN A MAN AND WOMAN.—Tired of the monotony and commonplace character of the usual drunken rows and Sunday fights, the enterprising South Trojans yesterday arranged an entertainment unique and interesting. Mike Riley, a slender six footer, and Mrs. Hanihan, a woman built very much like Mike, agreed upon a prize fight, to decide which was the worthiest pugilist. Fourteen rounds were agreed upon, and Mike selected his wife for a second, while Mrs. Hanihan selected her husband for her second. The preparations for the affair were soon noised about, and a crowd of over two hundred people assembled near the nail factory to witness the contest. Both parties were in excellent condition, as if they had been in training for the season. Mike knocked his fair antagonist down several times, and she returned the compliment amid the cheers of the delighted audience. The excitement was intense, the contest close and the confusion considerable. After the fourteen rounds had been rendered, it was ascertained that although both had bloody noses and their faces resembled the map of some battlefield, each was as determined as ever and ready to renew the sport. The referee decided that it was a drawn battle, but the spectators were satisfied that Mrs. Hanihan had the best of it. The hero and heroine received the congratulations of their friends, the crowd dispersed, and the various principals went home to recruit for the next engagement.—Troy Whig.
